President discloses his financial worth

Nixon is millionaire in 5½ years

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Seeking to refute allegations he profited illegally from his office, President Nixon Saturday issued a financial accounting showing his net worth tripled over 5-½ years, making him a millionaire.

And he has paid a smaller percentage of his income in federal taxes—7 per cent—over that period than would a family of four with an income of $8,000. That results chiefly from a huge writeoff for contributing his vice presidential papers to the National Archives.

The accounting also showed he has paid no state income taxes since assuming office.

Both the President and a team of tax attorneys asserted that all his transactions were legal.

But to eleminate any lingering public doubt, Nixon asked a joint committee of the Democratic-controlled Congress to examine the transactions and vouch for their legitimacy.

"I will abide by the committee's judgment," Nixon said.

If the committee rules against him on the gift of his papers, and disallows an opinion by his attorneys that he does not have to pay taxes on the sale of some California property, Nixon could be liable for more than $300,000 in back taxes and interest.

And, although the statute of limitations has run out on his 1969 deductions and he could not be requred to pay for that year, his spokesman, press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler, said Nixon would do so anyway if the decision went against him.

The documentation, thick as a Russian novel, took a staff of a dozen attorneys and accountants more than three weeks to assemble. Nixon called it the most complete accounting of personal finances ever provided by a president.

It represented a major effort to refute widespread charges of personal wrongdoing that have crept into public print. A White House spokesman said the documentation will be followed by other similar "white papers" dealing with Watergate and related matters.

The documents, authenticated by an exhaustive $25,000 audit conducted at Nixon's expense by the New York firm of Coopers Lybrand, showed that on Jan. 1, 1969—three weeks before he became president—Nixon was worth $307,141.

As of May 31 his net worth was $988,522 and by now, his accountants said, he is a millionaire.

To do this on an annual salary of $200,000 plus $50,000 in expenses, the documents showed the President:

—Completed some enormously successful real estate deals.

—Borrowed heavily from friends, but paid them the going interest rate.

—Chiefly through a controversial deduction of $570,000 for donating his vice presidential papers to the country, managed to pay federal taxes at a rate of 7 per cent of his adjusted gross income. He paid $72,682.09 for 1969, $792.81 for 1970, $878.03 for 1971 and $4,298.17 for 1972.

—Paid no California state income taxes, although he has been a resident for voting purposes there since the spring of 1969.

—Entertained frugally and spent little more than half the $200,000 expense allowance he received during the first four years in office. The unspent expenses became personal income.

Over the four-year period, Nixon paid approximately 7 per cent of his adjusted gross income in federal taxes. According to current tax tables, this is the same rate paid by a family of four earning $8,000 per year and taking the standard deductions.

Kenneth W. Gemmill, a former counsel of the International Revenue Service during the Eisenhower administration and now a Philadelphia tax lawyer who donated his time to head the research into Nixon's finances, said he was "satisfied 100 per cent" that all was above-board.

"To the open-minded, the papers and documents provided today, the facts they contain and the figures they reveal will lay to rest such false rumors as that campaign contributions were converted to my personal use, that campaign funds were used in the purchase of my home in San Clemente, that I sheltered the income on which my daughter, Tricia, should have paid taxes, and that $10 million in federal

Nixon to give Casa Pacifica to American people as gift

WASHINGTON (UPI) — La Casa Pacifica, President Nixon's Spanish-style seaside villa, will be donated to the American people after Nixon and his wife Pat are dead, the President said Saturday.

The half-million dollar complex overlooking the Pacific Ocean, which consists of a 14-room house and a number of outbuildings, will be given as a "conference center, guest facility for visiting dignitaries, and a working base for future presidents," Nixon said.

The announcement of the gift of the Western White House was made as Nixon disclosed all his financial and tax records to try to dispel rumors that he has profitted illegally from his presidency.

In announcing the gift of the villa, Nixon said:

"I have directed my attorneys to take the necessary steps to accomplish this, so that future administrations and future generations can take advantage of this beautiful western setting to help maintain a truly national perspective for the presidency."

The main house, built in the 1920s, consists of five bedrooms, each with a bath; a living room, a formal dining room, a sitting room, a pantry, a kitchen and service porch, and two storage rooms. The only second-floor room is Nixon's office.

East of the main house, on property with 350 feet of ocean front, is a guest house with two bedrooms, a bath and a sitting room. Other structures on the property include a caretaker's house, a playhouse, a greenhouse, a laundry, garages and a 40 by 25-foot outdoor swimming pool.

Nixon could obtain an income tax deduction of about $120,000 with the gift of the home, an IRS spokesman was quoted earlier this week.

Stressing he was responding to questions about a hypothetical taxpayer, the spokesman said that if the President sets up a trust that would automatically convey the property to the government upon the death of himself and his wife, they could live in the house until their deaths but be eligible for a deduction immediately.

If Nixon sets up the trust, he would not be the first president to so claim a deduction for donated property. President and Mrs. Eisenhower obtained a possible deduction of $314,000 for the 230-acre farm in Gettysburg, Pa. when they donated it to the government in 1967.

NATO CONFERENCE

Another house call for healer, Dr. Kissinger

BRUSSELS (UPI) — U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger arrived in Brussels Saturday for the start of a two-week, 11-nation tour to smooth relations with NATO allies and secure a negotiated peace in the Middle East.

Kissinger's plane landed in Brussels at 4:10 p.m. EST. At the airport Kissinger said the NATO alliance, while "not without stress, remains the corner stone of American foreign policy."

The Secretary started his trip just hours after Egypt's Deputy Premier announced in Cairo that Eygpt would attend the Arab-Israeli peace talks Dec. 18 in Geneva.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield volunteered unusually warm praise for Kissinger's success in negotiating with the Arabs and Israelis.

"Secretary of State Kissinger has done a superb job in getting them together," he said. "He's had to walk a tightrope between the two sides."

Mansfield said arranging the face-to-face meeting at Geneva was "a markable achievement."

"If anybody can bring about a solution to the problem it is Henry Kissinger, who under the most difficult circumstances has performed remarkably," Mansfield said. "I think he's the right man at the right place at the right time."

With last-minute assurances that Egypt would sit down at the negotiating table with Israel, Kissinger can be expected to concentrate on the other major goals of his trip: to salvage the U.S. alliance with its NATO allies and convince the Arab States to end heir crippling embargo of oil shipments to the United States.

Abandon protest, Teamster chief tells truckers after Nixon meet

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Teamsters President Frank E. Fitzsimmons concluded a meeting with President Nixon Saturday by asking the nation's truckers to abandon their protest of fuel shortages. But a dissident group of drivers promised to press ahead with plans for a two-day work stoppage.

Fitzsimmons, Nixon's strongest ally in the labor movement leadership, met with the President for 50 minutes in the Oval Office and then conferred for about one hour, 45 minutes with chief energy official William E. Simon.

He said the discussions hinged on the truckers' request that highway speed limits, which have been reduced to save fuel, be restored to 60 m.p.h. and that strict controls be placed on the rising cost of gasoline and diesel fuel. He added he was confident the President would give "due consideration" to the truckers' needs.

"I urge truck drivers everywhere to exercise patience and discipline while the issue is being resolved," Fitzsimmons told reporters after the White House session. "I do not condone blockages or nation-wide strikes."

Mike Parkhurst, editor of an industry publication, "Overdrive," meanwhile declared at a news conference on the steps of the Capitol that as many as 100,000 drivers would join in a two-day shutdown Thursday and Friday.

"Neither Frank Fitzsimmons nor President Nixon has the influence or the power or the respect to stop the shutdown," Parkhurst said. "Frank Fitzsimmons has tried to manipulate the press into thinking or reporting that the two-day shutdown would be averted."

In Springfield, Ill., officials of the Midwest Truckers Association issued a call for a two-day "park-in" next Thursday and Friday. The group says it represents about 2,000 small trucking companies in Illinois and a few from adjacent states.

Fitzsimmons, who met with reporters at the White House along with Simon, indicated that both his members and the independent drivers would hold off their threatened shutdown. "Teamster members and all truck drivers are loyal Americans first and truck drivers second," he said.

Both Fitzsimmons and Simon, who has been named to head the new Federal Energy Administration, left the clear impression that no final decision had been made on the speed limit issue. Nixon has asked Congress for legislation creating a 55 m.p.h. speed limit for trucks and a 50 m.p.h. limit for cars.

Referring to the price problem, Simon said he and his staff were investigating the possibility of providing additional gasoline and deisel fuel for truckers and added that the Internal Revenue Service was trying to find and correct any evidence of retail price gouging.

"I need the help of the truckers, the people who are out on the highways —if they could call and identify any abuse of this pricing mechanism, we'd like to know about it so we could help," Simon said.

"I faithfully promise that we will promptly take action against those who are exploiting the current fuel shortage," Simon said.

Fitzsimmons later issued an eight-page statement outlining the Teamsters position on the energy crisis and the impact it is having on the trucking industry.

It called for a "universal" 60 mph speed limit for trucks, buses and cars. It added that trucks "operate much more efficiently —from a fuel consuption standpoint —at high speeds than at lower speeds proposed, such as 50 or 55 mph."

The Teamsters leader also argued that a 60 mph speed limit would conserve automobile fuel. He said motorists tend to exceed the speed limit slightly and strict enforcement of a 60 mph limit would "actually be slowing autos down anywhere from 10 to 15 miles per hour."

The statement said union members get 16 cents per mile and no hourly pay accept in cases of breakdowns and severe delays. Federal law forbids them to drive more than 10 hours at a stretch and they must take an 8-hour break between stretches.

"The very simple arithmetic of lower speed limits is that they reduce the earning power of over-the-road drivers upwards of 18 per cent while at the same time resulting in greater consumption of fuel," he said.

2 to 4 cents a gallon, says IRS

Truck drivers being overcharged for fuel

CLEVELAND (UPI) — The Internal Revenue Service here said Saturday that truck drivers are being charged two to four cents a gallon more than the ceiling price for diesel fuel.

Dale Kauffman, head of the IRS Price Control office here, said seven of 41 truck stops checked by the IRS in Northern Ohio were found to be overcharging truck drivers.

"We swept Interstate-71, I-75, I-80, I-90, I-77, I-76 and the (Ohio) turnpike," said Kauffman.

"All seven rolled their prices back on the spot," Kauffman said. "They were all located just off the interstate highways, but the turnpike stations were all okay.

Kauffman also said all truck stops checked were receiving only 70 to 90 per cent of their normal allocation from oil companies.

In turn, 21 of the 41 were limiting sales to truckers to between 12 and 70 gallons.

Nearly 800 truckers gathered Saturday at truck stops near the Toledo entrance to the Ohio Turnpike. Some threatened to resume the highway blockades of the past week to protest the high cost of fuel and lowered speed limits.

Energy crisis good for Christmas, says Yule tree king

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — The "Christmas tree king" always did think the overload of electric circuits with Christmas tree lights in recent years was "perversion of Christmas spirit."

That's why he sees in the energy crisis in America "added incentive for a nationwide return to Christmas trees that are more in keeping with tradition."

The "Christmas tree king" is Rick Kirk, of G.R. Kirk Co., Puyallup, Wash., the nation's largest provider of freshly cut evergreens.

The matter of the power shortage came up in the middle of "Operation Christmas Tree" involving the shipping of Kirk's trees to various markets. A large part of that is handled by Burlington Northern Railroad, which uses 180 to 200 box cars just for Kirk and a few other, smaller, operators.

Kirk's firm this year is wholesaling almost 1.5 million cut trees, taken from forests of Quebec, Nova Scotia, Wisconsin, British Columbia, Montana and Washington.

Distribution is made to independent dealers throughout the United States by rail, truck and even by air in special circumstances. Getting trees to market in prime condition is the tree king's big concern in the six to eight weeks before Christmas.

Power-consuming electric lights, he noted in discussing the matter with Lane Downey, Burlington's area sales manager who is coordinating the shipment of the trees, were successors to lighted candles on Christmas trees.

"I'm in no way suggesting we go back to candles, because they were not safe," said Kirk in offering ways of decorating with bright, natural things such as popcorn strings, apples and other fruit and small decorative wrapped gifts.

—Flocked trees with bright baubles of a single color—they stand out day or night. Today's flocking methods also are fireproof.

—A well-shaped green tree, dressed in streaming red, gold or silver garlands, with just a sprinkling of matching or contrasting baubles is equally esthetic, and without lights the tree lasts longer, suffers less abuse at the decorator's hand and is safer than those strung with power-consuming electric lights.

—For those who insist on electric displays, just a few low-watt twinklers strategically placed can retain the esthetic simplicity of the ideas mentioned and still cut power use sharply.

Family fun and true unity in the Christmas spirit await those who like the most expressive tree of all—one with homemade, handcrafted decorations, colorful paper cut-outs, glue-and-sparkle cards, cones and balls, multicolored ribbon bows, cranberry garlands and maybe even a nice white bone for the family dog.

"Recent years have seen a tendency toward overloading of circuits," said Kirk, "and the most plausible explanation I know is that almost everyone wants to upstage his neighbors in light-count. What perversion of Christmas spirit!"

IT LOOKS REAL

Los Angeles special agent in charge Robert Powis displays handful of bogus $20 bills confiscated by the U.S. Secret Service in Malibu Saturday. The counterfeit money was valued at $1.1 million. Agents were led to the hidden bills by James A. Muscarella, 25, Los Angeles, who was later booked on suspicion of distributing counterfeit currency.

Must ration gas—Mansfield

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield and three House members predicted Saturday that President Nixon will have to impose gasoline rationing and abandon proposals for an increased gasoline tax.

Mansfield told reporters administration officials were being unrealistic in declaring that rationing will not start before March 1 if at all.

"I think the administration is not fully aware of the gravity of the situation and that it will have to revert to rationing whether they like it or not," Mansfield said.

He rejected as unfair proposals that a 30 or 40 cent per gallon tax be imposed on gasoline to restrict consumption.

"The ordinary working stiff ... would be penalized,'' Mansfield said. "They're the ones who pay most of the taxes anyway. No one should be given preferential treatment."

Support for rationing was expressed in separate statements by Reps. Brock Adams, D-Wash., William L. Dickin[illegible], and Ike F. Andres, D-N.C.

Adams was critical of an emergency energy bill approved Friday by the House Interstate and Commerce Committee because it would not require President Nixon to impose a mandatory gasoline rationing program.

The bill, Adams said, called for "end-use allocation" but he added it was unclear whether this would authorize rationing.

"Without a definite rationing system, the average American will either be forced to stand in line at gas pumps to pay outrageous prices —or will be left to the mercy of individual gasoline companies and dealers who can exact whatever demands they want when customers try to obtain gasoline."

Dickinson said he was opposed to higher prices, higher taxes and rationing. But as a last resort, he said, he would choose rationing as "the lesser of three evils."

Andrews said a tax increase to force a reduction in gasoline use would be "discriminatory, punitive and very unfair."

Food shortage growing as strike continues

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Shoppers throughout California found their favorite foods missing from supermarket shelves Saturday in the sixth day of a food industry strike-lockout which appeared far from settlement.

"There are no dairy products and the fresh vegetables are going bad. Nobody's buying them because the prices are too high," said Carol Sornstein, a frustrated housewife of North Hollywood.

Food chain employers and butchers union representatives in San Francisco Saturday held their first face-to-face meeting since picket lines went up.

A management spokesman said, however, the Northern California dispute — involving some 13,000 employes—could not be settled until an agreement is reached in Southern California.

Negotiations to end the strike-lockout of 22,000 workers in Southern California were scheduled to resume Monday.

Leaders of the four unions striking 61 market chains, including Safeway, Lucky's and Thriftimart, threatened to increase the number of pickets this week if no agreement is reached. That could mean even more shortages at the markets.

"Nobody is going hungry but shortages are going to get worse, especially in the big markets as they work off the inventories they had built up in anticipation of the strikelockout," said Jerry Vercruse, chief negotiator for the Teamsters Union and chairman of the four-union coalition.

Robert K. Fox, president of the Food Employers Council, said management is finding alternative means of distributing food while the wholesale and retail workers are on strike.

Even some stores not actively being struck are feeling the effect of the strike-lockout by food industry warehousemen, delivery truck drivers, butchers and other workers. Bakers and some retail clerks observed picket lines.

Impeach probe looms

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The confirmation of Vice President Gerald R. Ford apparently proved to be a dry run for the House Judiciary Committee's investigation of grounds for impeaching President Nixon.

Committee staffers said Saturday that the impeachment inquiry, which began officially in October, will swing into full tilt this week now that they have completed their investigation of Ford.

Several of the staffers said they anticipate the impeachment probe will take much longer, assuming that Nixon offers the same defense as each of the 12 officials impeached in the past —that it is "politically motivated." But the White House has not yet indicated how fully it will cooperate with the committee.

"If he (Nixon) wants us to impeach him or get off his back, will he come forward and cooperate?" a committee aide asked. "The role of the President is a significant one in terms of proceeding."

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield praised the "pace" at which the House committee is moving. "I think this is something that should be done with the utmost caution and care," Mansfield told reporters.

"I don't think he will resign, I don't think he should resign," Mansfield said.

"He ought to stay in office until all the facts are laid out by the special prosecutor, by the grand jurors, by the Ervin committee and by the White House."

The 22 committee staffers who were assigned to the seven-week Ford investigation will form the bulwark of a 45-member staff for the impeachment inquiry. Anticipating charges that it is "politically motivated," the staff notes that not one word was leaked to the news media about some 100 formal interviews that were conducted in 14 states during the Ford inquiry.

The committee's 38 members —21 Democrats and 17 Republicans —will be briefed by the staff next Tuesday on a mountain of material that already has been collected and the field of candidates for a special counsel to oversee the proceedings. The field has been narrowed down to four from more than 100 prospects, according to sources.

One committee staffer said there has been some pressure from some of his colleagues to issue subpoenaes soon to demonstrate that the committee is not stalling. But he indicated subpoenaes are not likely until at least January after a special counsel has been hired and he has determined what materials are needed.

Man is booked; swings at jailer, but breaks hand

ONTARIO — A man arrested in connection with a burglary Friday afternoon became so angry while being fingerprinted that he reportedly swung at a jailer, missed, hit the wall instead, and broke his hand, West End sheriff's deputies reported.

Dennis William Bevin, 28, of 1676 Kingsley Ave., Pomona, was being booked at the jail on suspicion of grand theft and receiving stolen property when he reportedly swung at the jailer.

Only a short time earlier, William Harper of 10389 Kinberly Ave., Montclair, had reported to police the theft of a 19-inch black and white television set, a World War II Japanese rifle, and a .22 caliber Remington pump action rifle.

Bevin was treated by a doctor for his injury.

Nixon finances . . .

funds was spent on my homes in Key Biscayne and San Clemente," Nixon said.

Although both law and tradition protect the privacy of such documents even for a president, Nixon said he was making them public "because the confidentiality of my private finances is far less important to me than the confidence of the American people in the integrity of the President."

At the same time, Nixon confirmed that his chief asset— the 5.9-acre La Casa Pacifica estate he and Mrs. Nixon purchased at San Clemente, Calif., in 1968—would be donated after they die to the government for use as a conference center, guest facility for visiting dignitaries and a working base for future presidents. Its value is $571,167, Nixon said.

IRS sources said Nixon could claim this gift as a tax deduction as well.

Figures from the tax returns he and Mrs. Nixon filed in 1969, 1970, 1971 and 1972 were furnished and reporters were permitted to check the actual returns to verify them.

They show he paid a total tax of $78,651.10 during these four years on a total adjusted gross income of $1,122,266.37.

With deductions totaling $257,376 for interest on money he borrowed to purchase his estates, property taxes of $81,255, and deductions for his gift to papers of $482,019, his taxable income for this period was only $172,892.

And he still has $94,981 left as a deduction from the papers' donation against future taxes.

In addition to his $200,000 yearly salary, the president receives an additional $50,000 expense allowance each year which, by law, he has to account for only for tax purposes.

His tax records show that during his first four years in office, he spent only $108,000 of this on such items as gifts to visitors, officially related entertainment, and the use of portions of his Florida and California residences as office space. State dinners and large scale functions are paid out of a separate White House fund.

The remaining $92,000 was treated as regular, taxable income.

The documents showed Nixon profitted heavily from his real estate transactions. He purchased 199,891 shares in 1967 at $1 per share in a corporation developing Fisher's Island in Biscayne Bay near his Florida home. He sold at cost 10,000 shares to his personal secretary, Rose Mary Woods; 3,000 to his speechwriter and protege, Patrick J. Buchanan; and 1,000 shares to his valet, Manuel Sanchez.

The remaining 185,891 shares he sold in May, 1969, for $371,782—a profit of $184,891 over a two-year period.

His apartment in New York City, purchased for $100,000 in 1963 and improved by expenditures of $66,860, was sold in May, 1969, for $312,500—a profit of $142,912 over a five-year period.

In 1967, he bought two undeveloped lots in Florida on Key Biscayne for a total of $38,080. Last December he sold the properties for $150,000 for a profit of $111,270 in 5-½ years.

For this transaction, Nixon borrowed $20,000 from his older daughter, Tricia, from a trust established for her in 1958 by Elmer Bobst, chairman of the board of Warner-Lambert Co., and a long-time family friend.

There have been allegations Tricia did not pay her share of the income taxes on this transaction but, according to copies of her tax return, she paid taxes on a capital gain of $11,617 in 1972 and will pay on $32,891 in her 1973 returns.

The Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation, composed of ranking members of the House Ways and Means Committee and the Senate Finance Committee, is the only group in Congress authorized to examine income tax returns.

The President specifically asked the committee to confirm the legitimacy of his $570,000 deduction for the papers donation, and opinions by his legal advisers that he did not have to pay taxes on $117,370 capital gain from the sale of some property in California.

Questions have been raised whether the transfer of his documents was completed before July 25, 1969, when a new law eliminated such gifts as tax deductions.

Nixon's lawyers cited legal precedents to show that while he resided in California for voting purposes, his domicile was Washington, D. C.—thus he did not have to pay California state taxes. In addition, all elected federal officials are exempt from District of Columbia income taxes.

On another controversial subject, the documents show that Nixon paid no personal capital gains taxes when he sold a portion of his California estate to Robert H. Abplanalp and C.G. Rebozo, his two closest personal friends.

Abplanalp, the President's chief benefactor, had loaned him a total of $625,000 to purchase La Casa Pacifica.

The estate, consisting of 26 acres including the Nixons' 14-room Spanish-style villa, cost $1.4 million in 1969. A year later 2.9 acres was added for $100,000. In 1970 the Nixons sold all but 5.9 acres of the property on which their beachfront home was located for $1,249,000 to Abplanalp and Rebozo doing business as the B & C Investment Co.

Nixon's accountant, Arthur Blech, valued the portion of the estate retained by the Nixons at approximately $280,000 — which meant that they made no profit on the sale and consequently paid no taxes on it.

However, the auditors of Coopers & Lybrand figured that the value of the retained portion was $397,817, which would have given the Nixons a profit of $117,370 as a long-term capital gain.

Even with the higher evaluation, however, the Nixons had sufficient deductions to write it off and still would have not had to pay taxes, the figures show.

Nixon pointed out that the IRS audited his returns from 1971 and 1972 and found them to be in order.

Turning to another controversial subject, Nixon said some people erroneously believed that from $6 million to $10 million in government funds had been spent improving his homes in California.

"One myth breeds another, so many observers also believe that the government improvements have vastly enriched me personally," he said.

Actually, only $68,000 was spent on his home for security-related changes ordered by the Secret Service, he said. An additional $635,000 was spent on the grounds for other security purposes.

However, $6 million was spent to construct and maintain the Western White House office complex on adjacent government property. Nixon called this a "valuable national asset" which is used as a conference center for public and civic groups when not in use by the White House staff.

200 gather at rally to hear call for Nixon impeachment

POMONA — Rep. Jerome R. Waldie, D-14th Dist., Antioch, a leader in the national movement to impeach President Nixon, made a 10-minute whistle stop at a rally here Saturday.

"The country is trying but has not yet succeeded in telling Congress it wants Richard Nixon impeached," Waldie told some 200 gathered at the Civic Center Plaza.

"Congress will move only when the majority of its members are convinced there will be no political consequences. Maybe that's the way it should be. Impeachment should not be done for political reasons."

Waldie said that now that Gerald Ford had been confirmed and sworn in as vice president, there is a lot of talk on Capitol Hill. "Now we've got Ford in we can move on Nixon," he quoted congressmen as saying. "Some are talking impeachment. Most are talking resignation," he said.

He said the House committee to investigate what grounds for impeachment exist is "gearing up" to move.

Waldie was followed by Richard Spawn, a member of a Ralph Nader investigative group. "We all have to hurt" was the theme of his brief talk. He outlined campaign contributions, the energy crisis, income tax payments, presidential homes. White House bugging and presidential contempt for Congress as things "that make us hurt."

Another rally speaker, Bill Lindeke, former Cal State Los Angeles political science professor, said that the corporate elite of the country now holds power and "that power should be taken back and put in the hands of the people."

Lindeke said "we need the impeachment because we need to get all the information out in front of the people so we can break down this structure of power."

Mike McHahn, a student at Claremont Graduate School, served as master of ceremonies. He said the rally was sponsored by a group of about 60 persons calling themselves Concerned Citizens of Pomona Valley.

West End Demos plan Yule party

ONTARIO — The West End Democratic Club will hold its annual Christmas Party here Monday at the Mural House, 1850 E. Holt Avenue, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

The San Bernardino County Supervisor Ruben Ayala and Rialto City Councilman Ralph Carter, the two Democatic candidates in the Dec. 18 20th Senate District special election, will be the featured guests.

California tax official doubts Nixon exemption

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — A California tax official said Saturday there is a "serious question" about President Nixon's claim of exemption from state income tax.

The state tax collection authority said it wants to know why the President has not paid California taxes.

William M. Bennett, one of three members of the state Franchise Tax Board and chairman of the tax-collecting Board of Equalization, said the fact that the President is registered to vote in California indicates he is a resident.

"That ordinarily means he pays taxes here,' Bennett said.

"You can't vote here unless you're a resident, and that has a lot of tax consequences.'

At Bennet's request, the Franchise Tax Board will include the question of Nixon's tax status on the agenda for its regular meeting Tuesday in Sacramento.

"What I'm looking for is the reason he's immune from California tax liability," said Bennett.

A liberal Democrat who earlier this year expressed skepticism about property tax assessments against Nixon's San Clemente villa, Bennett said he asked the board to look into the President's state income tax two months ago.

At the time, Bennett said he was "quite suspicious. And now it appears I had a lot to be suspicious about."

He referred to the President's disclosure that he paid no California income taxes since assuming office.

Nixon's lawyers said that while the President resided in California for voting purposes, his domicile was in Washington, D.C., where elected federal officials are exempt from local income taxes.

According to the President's statement, his lawyers received an opinion from California tax officials in 1969 that he was not liable for state income taxes.

Ontario woman held in shooting

ONTARIO — A 33-year-old Ontario woman has been taken into custody in connection with the Friday night shooting of a local man in his apartment.

Ann Deloes Morris, of 860 N. Virginia St., was picked up at her home Saturday about 3:30 p.m. by police, as a suspect in the wounding of Jerry Hallam of 430 Parkside Ave.

Another suspect, Thomas W. Ridgeway of 808 E. Raymond Ave., Upland, is still being sought by police.

Hallam was listed in fair condition Saturday at San Antonio Community Hospital in Upland.

Police gave no motive for the shooting.

Do-it-yourself A-bomb? It's easy

NEW YORK (UPI) — Any reasonably intelligent person can build a nuclear bomb, claims physicist Theodore Taylor who helped design much of America's atomic arsenal.

With a do-it-yourself bomb guide drawn from publicly available federal government documents or local library, you can buy much of what you need from the hardware store and steal the rest—like radioactiive materials — from a nuclear facility, according to Taylor.

The homemade nuclear bomb is what Taylor has been warning the U.S. government about for years.

Taylor, 48, designed nuclear weapons at Los Alamos, N.M.— near where the world's first atomic bomb was exploded— from 1949-57, and has served as a consultant on nuclear physics for the federal government and private industry.

Taylor said in an interview and an article in the current issue of "The New Yorker" he first talked to the Atomic Energy Commission and government officials about homemade bombs in 1967, but was unable to convince anyone of the threat.

In the past few years he has tried to bring the problem to the public's attention "until pressure forces the AEC to stop pushing security under the rug."

According to Taylor, two things are needed to build a crude nuclear bomb: fissile (fissionable material) and know-how.

Enough know-how, he said, is available in declassified documents and standard reference works.

"The Encyclopedia Americana is very good, and so is the World Book," he said, "Los Alamos Primer No. 1, used to brief scientists in the 40s, costs $2.06 and is available from the Oakridge Technical Information Service."

Most other needed information, all but the "gory classified details," is catalogued in an annual publication, "Nuclear Science Abstracts," available in many libraries, he said.

"Anything else you need can be figured out from the declassified material and standard sources," he said.

Taylor said the only barrier to home construction of nuclear bombs is the availability of fissile material, plutonium or uranium. By 1978, energy demands should begin to cause dramatic increases in existing quantities of both, he said.

"All reactors either make or use plutonium or uranium," he said. "Fast breeder reactors make more plutonium than they use."

Excess radioactive material is a byproduct of nuclear power plants. Power plant authorities and other users of nuclear energy store the byproducts, usually in the form of impure compounds, saving it for eventual recycling.

The utility companies are holding off storing it, probably until 1978, when economics make it necessary to recycle, he said. Plutonium costs about $5,000 a pound.

"This means there are significant amounts of plutonium around right now, but there will be much more by 1978," he said.

The AEC stipulates the security precautions to be used in transferring and storing fissile material. But, said Taylor, the regulations are inadequate.

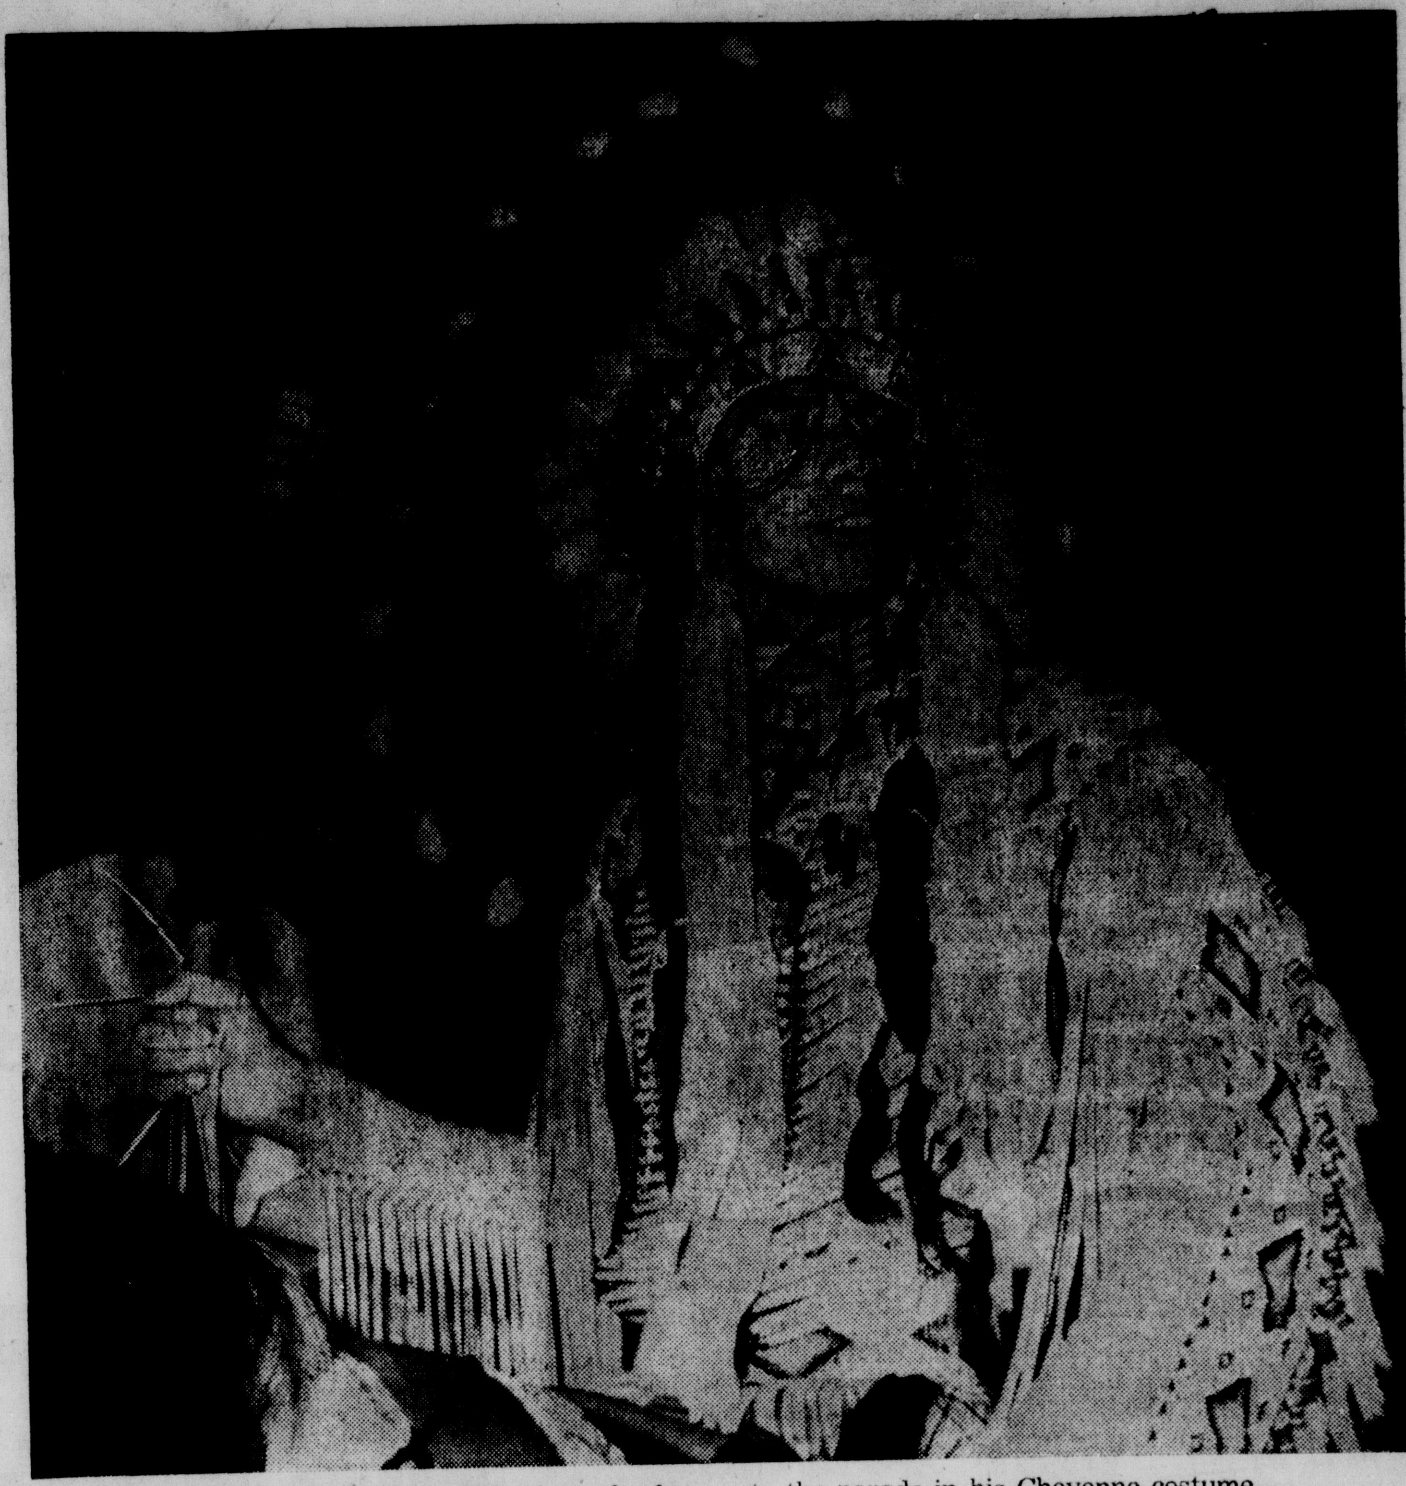
"The degree of protection is less than is typically given to money in vaults," he said, "We guard our money much better than we have guarded, are guarding or will guard our nuclear material."

New AEC regulations scheduled to go into effect this month require that users take precautions to prevent theft "short of a significant armed attack."

"Much more is needed," said Taylor, "the overwhelming majority of plant managers I talked to said they couldn't stop theft by a large group of professionals. We need more guards, fences, alarms and surveillance."

Christmas on parade in Pomona

Spending the night on the town with Dad could prove a little noisy, but this youngster appears to be enjoying his front row seat in the parade.



Chief Tom White Cloud lent a little Indian splendor to the parade in his Cheyenne costume.

Top prize to St. Joseph's

26,000 see Yule spectacular

POMONA — Unseasonably warm early evening weather Saturday drew an estimated 26,000 spectators to view Pomona's 21st annual Christmas parade along Holt Avenue.

Although the thermometer began dropping following the 6 p.m. start, the crowds held as "The Magic of Christmas" expressed in 116 units flowed by for two and half hours.

Traditional religious themes were depicted in winning float entries.

A first-place trophy and a check for $200 went to St. Joseph's Hill of Hope for its striking twin-bableau entry. Prceeded by a group of marchers forming a large cross, the float featured the birth of the Christ child at its front and the journey of Joseph and Mary to Bethlehem in its central portion.

Ganesha High School's train pulling a jack-in-the-box was thw winner of the second place award and First Church of the Nazarene took third place with it's elaborate manager scene.

In addition to the familiar marching bands, drill teams and equestrian units, there were plenty of celebrities on hand.

Los Angeles Angel's pitcher Bill Singer of Diamond Bar rode as grand marshal, with actress Ann B. Davis and Barry Williams, both of the "The Brady Bunch" TV show, division marshals.

Other marshals were The Scattergun Hill Gang, performing a raucous mass shoot-out, and Pam Lambine, currently Miss Pomona Valley.

Alta Loma High school captured the sweepstakes award in band competition and also won first place for its drill team.

Ganesha High School won first place in the high school band category, while Chino Junior High School was tops in the junior high division.

DRIFTWOOD DAIRY

A young spectator, top, is more interested in his candy apple than in watching Driftwood Dairy's float depicting a crew of pengins engaging in some wintry fun and games at left.

Mrs. Minnie C. Vance

POMONA — Mrs. Minnie C. Vance of 760 S. Elm St., died Thursday in Tahlequah, Okl.

Mrs. Vance was born Nov. 10, 1898 in Jewell, Kan. She had lived in the Pomona area since 1926. Mrs. Vance had been in Oklahoma for the past two years because of her health.

She is survived by three sons, Gerald C. of Tahlequah, Keith of Chino and Donald G. of Woodland; a daughter, Mrs. Dorthea Hartine of Albany, Ore.; a sister, Mrs. Betty Gavin of Ault, Colo.; 13 grandchildren and eight great grandchildren.

Services will be held Monday at 1:30 p.m. in Todd Memorial Chapel Pomona. Mr. Ford Carpenter, of the Church of Christ in Long Beach, will officiate. Burial will be made in Pomona Cemetery.

Mrs. Rose Ong

POMONA — Mrs. Rose Ong of 807 N. Gibbs Ave., died Thursday at her home.

Mrs. Ong was born Dec. 26, 1904 in Douglas, Ariz. She came to California in 1914 and lived in Imperial Valley before moving to Pomona in 1935. She was a member of the First Baptist Church, Pomona.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Jerry Randall of Montclair and Mrs. Jody Weaver of Lindsey, six grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Services will be held Monday at 11:30 a.m. in Todd Memorial Chapel Pomona. The Rev. Paul B. Ryan of the First Baptist Church will officiate. Entombment will be made in Pomona Mausoleum.

IN MEMORIAM

My little friend Helen Wilkins, as dear as a sister, who left us a year ago. Sincerely missed by all those who knew you and loved you.

Ruthie and Kenny

Mrs. S. Mary Pfister

POMONA — Mrs. S. Mary Pfister, wife of Edward J. Pfister, Sr., of 3727 Equation Road, died Friday in a local convalescent hospital.

Mrs. Pfister was born July 30, 1911 in Denver, Colo. She came to California in 1970 from Weirton, W.V. and had lived in Pomona for the past three years. She was a parishoner of Our Lady of the Assumption Catholic Church, Claremont.

Besides her husband, she is survived by two sons, Edward Jr. of Goldsboro, N.C. and John R. of Wellsburg, W.V.; a daughter, Mrs. Margery Zajicek of Pennsylvania Hills, Pa.; a brother, Vail S. Barker of Kansas City, Mo.; a sister, Mrs. Mildred Leslie of San Diego; and nine grandchildren.

Shipment is being made to Mingo Junction, Ohio, where services will be held in St. Agnes Catholic Church and burial will be made in the Mt. Calvary Cemetery in Steubenville, Ohio. Friends may call at Todd Memorial Chapel Pomona Monday from 2-4 p.m. and 7 and 9 p.m.

Registration on for bicycle trip across U.S.

ANAHEIM — Registration is now under way for persons interested in participating in the fourth annual See America Bike-A-Thon next year.

Deadline for registering is Dec. 15, and anyone wishing to participate should contact Dana J. Morrison here on or before that date at (714) 776-2266.

The Bike-a-Thon is sponsored by the See-the-Americas Bicycle Club, and is open to all age groups. The tour is tentatively scheduled to begin June 20, 1974, in San Diego and end in New York City 46 days later.

Each cyclist will be responsible for his own expenses.

Magnolia Junior High to offer Christmas program

CHINO — Magnolia Junior High School will present its Christmas program at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday night at the school.

The glee club and the ensemble will be directed by Mrs. John Richartz and the drama class will perform under the direction of Mr. Warner.

The PTA will hold a fun night on Dec. 19 from 7:30 to 10 at the Holiday Roller Rink in Montclair as a fund-raising event. Tickets may be purchased at the school or at the door at $1.25 each or three or more to a family for $1 each.

School Christmas parties will be held on Dec. 20 from 1 to 2:30 p.m. Games and dancing will be featured with refreshments served by room mothers.

Unitarians slate trio of films as part of series

MONTCLAIR — Three motion picutres will be shown Wednesday night at the Unitarian Society's auditorium at 9185 Monte Vista Ave. as part of its "search for the Self" series.

The films are "Requiem for a Faith," which is about Tibetan Buddhism, "Psychics-Saints-Scientists," about telpathic dreams, the "Year of the Communes," about the beliefs of commune members.

The films will be shown beginning at 8 p.m. and will be followed by a discussion led y Dr. Patricia Hodges of Claremont, a professor of psychology, and Thomas Wilde of San Dimas, who is a social worker.

Students to vie in hair styling

AZUSA — Imaginative headdresses with a holiday theme will be created by Citrus College cosmetology students during the 10th annual Fantasy Headdress Show Monday.

After final arrangements of headdresses at 6 p.m., a promenade of models and judging will follow at 7 p.m.

In addition to the sweepstakes trophy, first-, second- and third-place awards will be made for best interpretation of the "Happy Holidays" theme, most artistic, most original and unique use of hair.

The program, open to the public at no charge, will also include musical numbers and skits presented by the students.

GI pleads guilty to espionage

McGUIRE AFB, N.J. (UPI) — Sgt. James D. Wood Thursday pleaded guilty to three counts of espionage stemming from a meeting last July with a Russian diplomat where he passed highly sensitive military secrets.

The Tacoma, Wash., airman pleaded guilty to wrongfully taking classified documents, failing to protect classified material in his possession and wrongly and willingly attempting to deliver them to unauthorized persons.

He faces a maximum 10-year federal term. A life sentence which could have been imposed was dropped.

Wood, 35, who had been recommended for promotion to master sergeant and for a second Meritorious Service Medal before his arrest in July, was charged with passing classified military documents to Soviet diplomat Viktor Chernyshev, who was recalled by the Soviet Union after Wood's arrest at the request of the U.S. State Department.

BILLBOARDS CONDENSED — A traveler examines a map on a push-button electronic kiosk at a roadside rest area near Oceanside. The system condenses vast billboard displays into small advertisements.

By DONALD THORNTON

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The billboard, once the most prolific offspring of the vast California state highway system, may be on its way out.

Called a blight by its critics but a possibly true American art form by its proponents, the highway sign has been severely restricted in the past several years on federal, state and local levels.

But its slow disappearance on the more than 15,000-mile California system is leaving a big gap—especially for travelers in need of information about motorist services.

The California Department of Transportation in 1971 was directed by the legislature to establish a statewide motorists information system—based on something other than the billboard.

The department called for proposals and ideas from the business sector and has come up with what it thinks is a satisfactory replacement:

Push-button electronic kiosks tucked neatly into roadside rest areas and featuring advertisements for area traveler services.

"There'll always be some billboards," said Harry Kagen, right of way program director for the department. "But so many are coming down that there will be a real need for the motorist to find available services—where's the next service station, the next motel, the next restaurant?"

The electronic kiosk concept was developed by Carter Corp. of Costa Mesa, and one of its information centers has been in use about seven months at the Aliso Creek Roadside Rests on Interstate 5 just north of Oceanside.

The Carter kiosk, described as nearly vandal proof, has electronic equipment to accommodate 160 messages.

By activating any one of the 160 buttons, a viewer is shown his location in relation to the selected subject site. Also displayed are four color photographs of the subject, such as shots of a hotel or a restaurant menus. The motorist also will hear a 30 second message describing the service.

The Oceanside rest stop kiosks have proved so successful the state has called for similar proposals or other creative ideas on four other highways, Routes 5, 80, 10 and 15.

Linton L. Patton, transportation right of way agent, emphasized that the information centers result in "no expense to the state or the taxpayer."

Under the new motorists information plan, Patton said the state agrees to provide the space, parking, lighting, water and other basic necessities at rest areas. The selected firm provides its own facilities and services at its own cost.

"The company that is selected would then sell advertising space to businesses along the route and that revenue would go to the company and, depending on the expense incurred, a portion of it would be going to the state," Patton said.

The Carter center charges its advertisers about $35 a month, he added.

"I'm optimistic about the future and I think there's going to be more of this," Patton said.

The transportation department, he said, considered the information centers "as being something that would be very desirable if not essential for a traveler.

Navy's rent-a-ship venture costing too much

By KIM WILLENSON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U. S. Navy is going down to the sea in rented ships, and the General Accounting Office says it is a sweet little deal for almost everyone except Uncle Sam.

A GAO report on the inner financial workings of the Navy's venture into rent-a-ships, obtained Saturday by UPI, says the government will pay about twice as much to lease the vessels as it would if it bought them.

The report also says the Navy chose to rent the ships rather than buy because that was the only way it could get nine tankers it said it needs. Congress didn't think the ships were necessary.

The Navy does not dispute GAO's basic arithmetic, but it insists the deal also is sweet for Uncle Sam because two dollars spent tomorrow actually are worth less than one spent today.

Whatever the logic, details of the rent-a-ship transaction help illustrate why the Defense Department is regarded as a very good customer by the firms that sell to it.

The Navy got into the rental program in 1971 when, after several years, it gave up efforts to have Congress replace 14 aging "fleet oiler" tankers with nine modern, 25,000-ton vessels.

Despite the fact that they annually vote billions for new planes, carriers and missile submarines, neither the House nor the Senate Armed Services committees showed much interest in laying out $100-million for the tankers.

Someone in the Navy figured a way to run the blockade. Instead of buying ships, the Navy could lease them —as the big oil companies do.

It could hide the lease fees in its operations budget, approved by the appropriations rather than armed services committees, and charge off much of the expense to the Army and Air Force —as the cost of transporting fuel for those services.

Though government leases costing more than $500,000 traditionally need congressional approval, the law governing Navy transactions contained no such limit. Thus the GAO had to rule the transaction legal.

Armed with GAO approval, the Navy asked proposals on a ship "build and charter" deal. The Navy would guarantee a 20-year charter for vessels built with private money.

Marine Transport Lines of New York headed a syndicate that proposed the cheapest deal —nine ships for 20 years for $313 million. Marine and its partners, 14 banks, agreed to put up $40 million and sell $120 million in bonds to raise the total cost of building the vessels.

Actually, the charter fees cover only the cost of servicing the bonds —the borrowed $120 million at 7 ⅞ per cent for 20 years. That would seem to leave Marine and partners in the position of lending the other $40 million interest-free.

But the Navy compensated for that by getting a special tax break so the Marine group will be able to write off depreciation on the full, $160 million value of the ships against their own tax bills from other business. What's more, they will be able to do it in 12 years instead of 20.

The effect of this, says John Rinko, the GAO auditor who worked on the case, is that the government actually will be lending the Marine partners $72 million in unpaid tax money during the first 12 years of the contract.

Though eventually all of it will have to be paid back in the final eight years (in higher taxes when there are no writeoffs), the partners stand to gain $120 million in compound investment income on that money.

In addition, when the charter ends the partners still will own the ships, which will in two decades be worth an estimated $24 million. This would amount, the GAO estimates, to a total return of $144 million on a $40 million investment.

The Navy also wrote some special profit guarantees into the contract. If the ships are lost for any reason, tthe owners get back 122 per cent of the replacement cost.

So juicy was the deal that the partners hesitated just long enough to make sure the Navy had the legal right to engage the "full faith and credit" of the U. S. government before going ahead.

Although GAO ruled the

Navy rent-a-ship venture too costly

deal was legal, it was so disturbed by the details that it complained to both the Pentagon and Congress.

GAO said that the Navy will spend $178 million more in cash to lease the ships than it would to buy them outright.

It also noted that the Navy undertook the deal —obligating the full faith and credit of the U. S. government —without consulting Congress.

The Navy's response was to take the proposition to a House Armed Services subcommittee last spring — 1½ years after the project began.

The Navy told the subcommittee, headed by Rep. Charles E. Bennett, D-Fla., that it was not interested in the tax aspects of the rental, only in how much money would come out of its own budget.

On that basis, it said, the deal is cheaper than buying. When Bennett inquired how that was possible, Rear Adm. John D. Chase, explained it this way:

The value of the dollar declines every year, and if the government took the dollars and loaned them out, it also would collect interest. Between the two, the dollar depreciates by 10 per cent a year. This year's dollar is worth only 90 cents next year, 81 cents the year after, and so on.

Figuring that way, Chase said, the $313 million over the life of the contract was worth only $150 million in 1972 dollars. So, he contended, the government "saves" $10 million by spending $178 million.

Bennett turned to his counsel, George Norris.

"Do you understand it?" he asked.

"No, sir," Norris replied.

"My staff agrees with me in not being able to understand it," Bennett said.

The GAO does not understand it, either. Even if the Navy premise is accepted, the auditors say, the discount rate should be only 6 per cent. At that rate the government spends $20 million more in 1972 value —not $10 million less — regardless of taxes.

Ultimately Bennett and his committee agreed with the GAO and slapped the Navy on the wrist for having evaded the authority of Congress.

Chase's boss, Assistant Secretary of Defense Arthur Mendolia, apologized, and Bennett told the Navy that if it wanted to rent any more ships it should come back with a bill that would give the services specific authority to do so.

So far, however, "they've been stalling," says Norris. One reason may be the difficulty of explaining how the government saves $10 million by spending $178 million.

Meantime, the contract has been let and the ships are under construction. All nine are due to be completed by Dec. 7, 1974 —the 33rd anniversary of Pearl Harbor — and the U. S. Navy will officially be in the ship-rental business.

Solon rebukes Ash in dispute over legislation

WASHINGTON UPI) —Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., today gave Roy Ash, director of the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) a strong rebuke for his efforts in behalf of the administration's energy proposals.

Mansfield said he had heard Ash was taking an interest in legislation soon to come before the Senate —its own research and development energy measure which differs in many respects from the administration's proposal.

The Senate Democratic leader said Ash's interests appeared to be in restoring the administration proposals, but added "he seems to be interested in too much legislation for his own good."

The usually mild-mannered Mansfield said in Senate remarks, "We can take care of our own business in our own way. We do not need any advice from a functionary of the executive.

"They have no business up here intervening in our affairs."

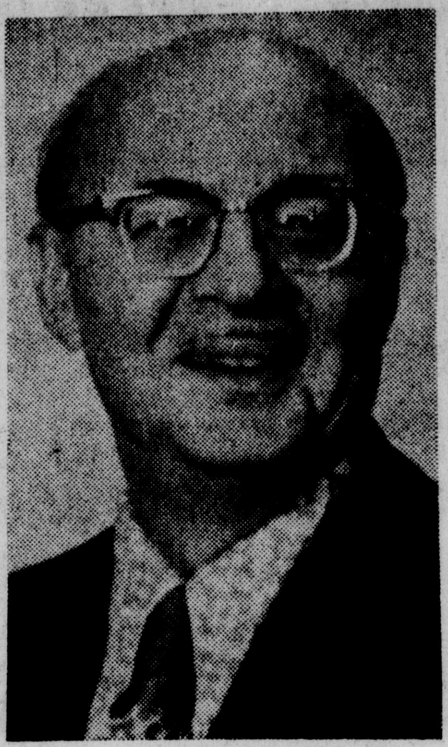
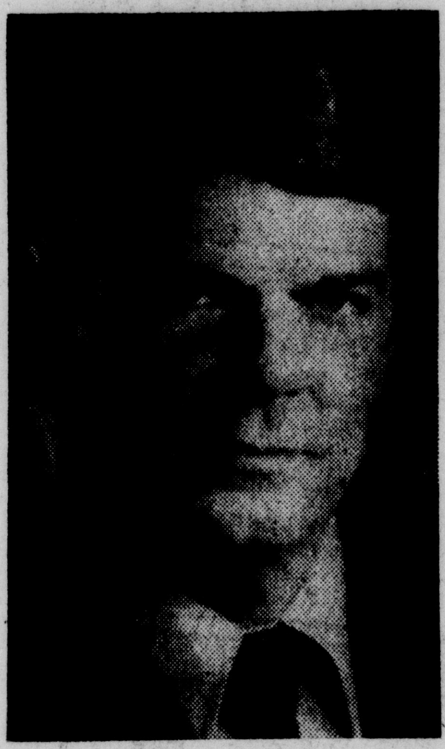
Race for state Senate seat in stretch

Election decides party control in state Senate, future incumbency

RUBEN AYALA



RALPH CARTER



JERRY LEWIS

By PAUL HILL
P-B Staff Writer

In nine days, voters in the 20th state Senate District will go to the polls in a special election to select a new senator as their representative.

They will choose from among four candidates, all of whom see integrity as the main issue in the election.

Their ultimate decision will also have an impact on the Pomona Valley, since the winner will enjoy incumbency status in next year's general elections in the newly-reapportioned 32nd Senate District.

(Under the reapportionment, the 20th district—which consists of most of San Bernardino County with the exception of the Redlands-Yucaipa area—was carved into three new Senate districts. The 32nd district will include most of the City of San Bernardino and the Pomona Valley cities of Pomona, Ontario, Chino, Upland and Montclair.)

The candidates are Assemblyman Jerry Lewis; San Bernardino County Supervisor Ruben Ayala; Rialto City Councilman Ralph Carter; and Big Bear Businessman Robert Allenthorp.

Lewis and Allenthorp are Republicans, and Ayala and Carter are Democrats.

The election is being held to fill the Senate seat vacated Oct. 20 by William Combs, who took a job with the U.S. Treasury Department.

If none of the candidates win a majority (50 per cent) of the vote Dec. 18, a runoff election will be held Jan. 15 between the leading Republican and the leading Democrat.

In terms of voter registration, Democrats have an edge (116,223 to 80,620). However, only 25 to 35 per cent of the eligible voters are expected to turnout, and traditionally a small vote tends to favor Republican candidates.

Whether fallout from Watergate will have a significant effect on the voters is impossible to judge, but it obviously has had an impact on the candidates and their campaigns. Hence the issue of integrity.

Lewis and Ayala, who appear to be the leading candidates in the race, made public a list of their campaign contributors by name and amount last week.

Lewis has also promised full "mail disclosure," saying that he will provide the press with advance copies of his mailers which will be distributed to voters throughout the district.

Interestingly enough, in much of his campaign literature, Lewis does not mention that he is a member of the Republican Party. He has said repeatedly that voters in the 20th District do not vote along party lines, but make their decisions based on the candidate and his stand on the issues.

Some Democrats—including Ayala and Carter—feel Coombs' departure for Washington was hastily arranged when Republican leaders in Sacramento learned that the new reapportionment of the 32nd District would have a large Democratic voter registration (60 per cent).

The GOP hierarchy, the Democrats charge, feel that Lewis' chances in the new district will be better if he goes into the 1974 election as the incumbent.

Both Lewis and Coombs deny there was any such ploy, and Lewis claims that Coombs' unhappiness in the Legislature was so well known that his resignation should have come as no surprise to the Democrats.

With the 20th Senate position now unoccupied, the Democrats have a slim 20-19 edge in Senate seats.

Here is a brief profile on each candidate.

LEWIS

Lewis, 39, is an insurance man by profession. He was first elected to the Assembly in 1968 to represent the 73rd District, which covers a major part of San Bernardino County. He has lived in the county all of his life.

He is a confident man, and sure of his direction.

As a senator, Lewis feels he can be a "more effective" legislator because he does not believe there is as much partisanship in the Senate as in the Assembly.

City holds tight rein on horse-riding activity

I live in Pomona and board horses outside the city.

A few weeks ago I was stopped by a Humane Society officer who informed me that it is now illegal to ride horses within the Pomona city limits.

I feel that this law is a poor one. I have several children who need a healthy, time-consuming interest. Our horses and other animals provide this interest. If my children can not use the horses within Pomona, it is difficult to ride at all.

My parents and grandparents used horses for transportation in this area.

In this time of environmental concern it seems wrong to ban horses from the streets. Please inform me why this law was passed, whom it was passed by and how long it has been in effect. — M. Z., Pomona.

While your children's pastime has been harnessed by the Pomona City Council, it hasn't been eliminated.

About three years ago a city ordinance was passed prohibiting horses on sidewalks, paved portions of streets and landscaped portions of street.

This law was passed after horses had slipped on the pavement, causing injury both to themselves and their riders, says Larry Thomas, city clerk.

It doesn't apply to parades for which special permits are granted.

So all you have to do is to search out unpaved, unlandscaped road areas and sign up for every parade the city authorizes.

Brown running caravan to poor Tijuana families

CHINO — Joe Brown, whose project to aid poor families in the Tijuana area is now in its 11th year, is planning another Christmas trip this week.

Some 100 persons will join in the 50-car caravan to bring food, clothing and Christmas gifts to 300 Mexican families.

The group will depart at 7 a.m. Saturday, Dec. 15, and return at about 5 p.m. the same day. Persons wishing to join the caravan should assemble at Brown's Missionary Center at 508 S. Euclid Ave. by 6:30 a.m.

Persons wishing to donate food, clothing or wrapped gifts and toys are asked to drop them off at the warehouse at 3669 E. Philadelphia St., Pomona, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesday.

Brown is also requesting donations of all types of food discount coupons. These are needed on a year-round basis to help purchase food ittems, said Brown.

OPERATION SCHOOLWATCH BEGINS

Bruce N. Shyer, principal of Pomona's Madison school which was damaged by fire a month ago, asks three of his 11-year-old sixth graders, Patty Avila, left, Carol Gallegos, center, and Alvin Henry, to assist in distributing bumper stickers and literature on Operation Schoolwatch. Roof section of the burned reading and math center is seen in the background. Residents are being asked to watch schools three weeks.

'Operation Schoolwatch' turns eyes to vandals on Pomona campuses

By PHYLLIS CANNON
P-B Staff Writer

POMONA — Would-be vandals, beware!

Operation Schoolwatch begins today and this community's 80,000 residents are turning their eyes towards their schools.

This comprehensive plan to protect school property, triggered by heavy vandal losses—the most recent of which was the $25,000 Madison school fire—will not be relaxed until Jan. 2 when children return after the holidays.

During that three-week period, residents are urged to notify the police department of anything suspicious they see taking place on any school property in Pomona or North Diamond Bar.

Everyone in the community is being urged to take part in the watch.

Thousands of bumper stickers, pieces of literature and posters today are going onto automobiles, into homes and into display windows to bolster interest.

The stickers will go on the cars of all school district and city employes. Children have carried home literature detailing costs of vandalism committed just this year and in years past. Posters plead, "Please Don't Let Anyone Hurt Our Schools!"

Operation Schoolwatch has the endorsement of City Council. Conducted under the supervision of Douglas A. Robertson, the school district's community information officer, the program was approved at the Nov. 13 school board meeting.

A second phase of the watch will take place on Saturday, Dec. 15. Principals, parents, students and adult supporters, will canvas neighborhoods circling their schools soliciting cooperation.

Vandals in the past have inflicted costly destruction upon Pomona's schools.

During September, 62 incidents of vandalism were reported at the district's 31 schools. During October there were 92.

From 1968 to 1971, the district spent $60,000 on window glass. From 1971 to this year, $64,000 has been spent to repair the work of vandals, and this does not include damage caused by fire. Four acts of arson, prior to the Madison school fire, cost the district $92,000. These figures do not include insurance costs, theft and burglaries.

All costs are paid by the taxpayers.

So, anyone who sees something he regards as suspicious, is asked to dial 620-2155 and calmly tell the officer how many persons, of about what age, are where, doing what.

In Robertson's words, "If everyone helps we can stamp out vandalism in Pomona's schools. That is our goal."

Rain helped but . . .

Smog harmed W.E. crops

SAN BERNARDINO — Farmers in San Bernardino County last month were helped by rain but hurt by smog.

Unusual smog conditions from Nov. 8 to 10 inflicted light to moderate damage to leafy vegetable crops in the West End and Bloomington areas, said county agriculture officials.

These crops included leaf lettuce, endive, table beets and Swiss chard. The smog effects, however, were disappearing by the end of the month.

Early winter storms moved through the county, dropping from one to three inches of rain in scattered locations. The moisture aided development of citrus crops and dryland pastures.

The rain also helped growers conserve fuel that would have been necessary to operate pumps for irrigation, they added.

Prospects for the new orange crop remained poor, with estimates for navel oranges at less than 100 field boxes per acre.

Fruit growth, however, has been above normal with color now breaking under the influence of cool weather. Harvest isn't expected to start until mid-December as the crop is slow in reaching maturity standards, officials said.

On a positive note, grape growers experienced a good vintage year as picking is now completed. This was accompanied by good yields and good price returns, they added.

The picking of lemons will slow during December. Both domestic and export shipments increased as fruit became more available. As the new crop becomes more noticeable, it appears that the yield will be 15 boxes per acre over previous estimates of 205 boxes per acre, said officials.

Coordinating council airs juvenile diversion program

POMONA — Juvenile diversion projects will be discussed by three speakers at a meeting of the Pomona Community Coordinating Council Dec. 17, at noon at Orlando's Restaurant.

Speakers will be Clarence Webb, community relations coordinator and acting project director in Pomona; Saif Ullah of the Duarte Self-Help Clinic and acting project director for the Mid-San Gabriel Valley; and Mrs. Toby McManmon who is with the family counseling services in San Gabriel and project director for the West San Gabriel Valley.

They will tell how juvenile diversion projects function, their purposes and their potential benefits to a community.

Pomona recently submitted a proposal for a Pomona Valley Juvenile Diversion Project to the Los Angeles Criminal Justice Planning Board.

This project, which would serve Pomona, Claremont, La Verne, San Dimas and Walnut, has been recommended for funding.

Objectives of the program are to reduce the number of juveniles entering the criminal justice system and to increase the numbers diverted to positive programs of community agencies where behavior patterns of youthful offenders could be modified and energies channeled into constructive endeavors.

Reservations for the luncheon may be made by calling 622-1269 before Dec. 14.

Opinion

Is energy crunch really blessing?

This country is still shaking over the threatened energy crisis. Every segment of our national and personal life is touched and many within the church are trying to guess the impact upon the religious community in North America.

Will church attendance drop as the gasoline shortage intensifies? How will the large, sprawling sanctuaries and church buildings survive the fuel shortage? Will major urban congregations have to curtail program and activities? Perhaps none of this will come to pass. Yet denominational leaders and pastors must face the energy crunch along with their secular counterparts.

Some churchmen believe that the energy squeeze may have a large plus for the Christian community: the return to the neighborhood parish. The automobile has scattered Christians in every direction, many families driving five or six miles to attend a church that is completely removed from the demands and opportunities of their community. For years the neighborhood parish has suffered urban mobility, along with the population shifts. New people may discover not only the pleasure of walking to church, but the larger advantage of a clearly defined community that can face the problems and opportunities close at hand.

Keeping people at home — and that is certainly one of the ultimate effects of any gasoline shortage—may help families to rediscover the joy and fun of another era: togetherness. Right now most recreation seems to have a motor attached, turning wheels and making noise. Another form of exercise and recreation may emerge—walking and reading.

The early Christian Church did quite well in growth and influence through letter writing. The New Testament is mainly a collection of letters, shared and reread by Christians all over the Middle East and Asia Minor. This may be the hour for the recovery of Christian communication, through the written word.

Many within the religious community will secretly salute the energy crisis if it means fewer national meetings for the church. In the past several years, most religious groups have been meeting more and enjoying it less. The weight of bureaucratic proceedings, the staggering cost of hauling people all over the map, the frayed nerves and hasseling over every imaginable social-political issue, has hardly built up the life of the spirit.

A nice long pause in national meetings—or at most, very carefully planned and selected sessions—is not to be scorned. A movement is already afoot for more powerful local and regional control in the affairs of the church. The energy demands and the Arab shutdown may actually assist the Church in a rediscovery of mission and fellowship.

Reading, writing and Watergate

Watergate may have the impact of another Sputnik in the classroom.

Just as the launching of the first space satellite started a revolution in the teaching of science and mathematics, Watergate may precipitate a renewed effort to teach the values and the workings of the American system of government.

It could also become the most controversial subject in the schools since sex education.

In both cases, strong emotions and opinions are involved, and in both cases, many people are convinced that if everyone would just stop talking about the subject, it would quietly go away.

Watergate isn't going to go away, however. "There may have been a coverup in the government, but there can be no coverup in the classroom."

With these words, Rep. Margaret Heckler, R-Mass., kicked off a recent conference of educators in Scarborough, Me., on the subject: "The Educational Implications of Watergate."

"There is a crisis of confidence in government," Rep. Heckler told more than 130 New England teachers. "It is important for educators to face the questions of Watergate, to help renew faith in our country."

But how does a teacher present the facts about Watergate when so many Americans dispute what the "facts" are? How does a teacher teach the lessons of Watergate, whatever those lessons are, without running the risk of indoctrinating his or her students in a certain point of view — or incurring possible reprisal from outraged parents?

The educators could only agree that Watergate is an excellent device to interest students in the study of government, power and history. They disagreed about expressing their own opinions about the scandal.

Catherine Barrett, past president of the National Education Assn., touched on the heart of the problem:

"While we should present all points of view, we cannot be impartial in the end. Failure to choose a course is to choose one. Not to teach about this issue, and the democratic principles behind it, is, quite bluntly, to fail to teach and that is a betrayal of professional trust."

Campaign cash and pollution

WASHINGTON — There has been a lot of talk in Washington about keeping our rivers, lakes and beaches clean. Yet the law-and-order boys have shown a strange reluctance to enforce the laws against pollution. Sometimes, it seems that the flow of campaign cash more than the flow of pollutants determines whether the polluters are prosecuted.

We have just completed a detailed study of cases referred to the Justice Department by the Environmental Protection Agency in 1971-72. The agency used the old 1899 Refuse Act to restrain factories from fouling the waterways.

This hoary statute has not been replaced by a new law, but the pattern of prosecution hasn't improved.

The EPA asks Justice to prosecute only the worst polluters. They are given every chance to clean up their messes voluntarily. Only as a last resort are cases forwarded to the Justice Department.

Few trials

Yet a large percentage of these cases never reach the courts. Top EPA officials have told us, not for attribution, that it sometimes takes dynamite to blast a pollution case out of the pigeonholes of the prosecutors. Our own study shows that, of 168 pollution cases submitted for criminal prosecution, the Justice Department rejected 35 outright and sidetracked 34 more for one reason or another.

Almost invariably the companies with the most political clout seemed to go unpunished or to get off with light fines. We could not establish that campaign contributions resulted in overt intervention. But as one high official confided to us, "you just know who is to be prosecuted and who is not."

In October 1971, for example, the EPA referred a criminal case involving an oil spill on the Yazoo River in Mississippi. The spill had been caused by either Mobil or Pennzoil, said EPA, since both firms have facilities near the Yazoo. The U.S. attorney declined to prosecute because he lacked "evidence as to who caused the spill."

It may be merely a coincidence that Pennzoil's president, William Liedtke, was a fund raiser for the Nixon campaign last year. On one celebrated occasion, he stuffed $700,000 in cash and negotiable securities into a suitcase, sent it to Washington aboard a company plane and had it delivered in the dark of night to Nixon headquarters. No receipt was asked nor given.

Another time, the EPA asked Justice to file a civil suit against California Marine Packing for polluting the Los Angeles harbor with "fish processing wastes" which "resulted in fish kills." The U.S. Attorney declined.

Shadowy Nixon friend

The packing company, it develops, is a division of Westgate-California Corporation, whose board chairman is San Diego millionaire C. Arnholt Smith. The shadowy Smith is a personal friend of President Nixon and contributed $200,000 to the Nixon re-election effort. The donation was returned after the public learned Smith was under investigation by both the Internal Revenue Service and the Securities Exchange Commission.

Well over a year ago, the EPA wanted Justice to prosecute Getty Oil for dumping oil, grease, lead and chemicals into the Delaware River. The case, we have been informed, is tied up in "negotiation." The president of Getty Oil is billionaire J. Paul Getty; the record shows he contributed at least $75,000 to Nixon.

In June 1972, the EPA requested that suits be filed against Star-Kist Foods for discharging foul fish processing wastes into Los Angeles harbor. Prosecution was declined and the company agreed to work out an abatement program.

Star-Kist is a subsidiary of H.J. Heinz, whose officers gave Nixon over $60,000. The president of Star-Kist, Joseph Bogdanovich, contributed $30,000 out of his own pocket to Nixon.

Twice in 1971, Gulf Oil was accused of causing oil spills in the Houston ship channel. Criminal charges were finally filed in one case on January 5, 1973. There has been no legal action at all on the second spill. By another coincidence, Gulf Oil donated $100,000 to Nixon's campaign. The company later admitted the contribution was illegal and it was returned.

Met with EPA

In the course of our investigation, my associate Joseph Spear requested a meeting with Justice and EPA antipollution officials. He found eight officials waiting for him when he arrived for an appointment at EPA headquarters, overlooking the malodorous Potomac River.

One of them, Martin Green, chief of the Justice Department's pollution control section, insisted that politics plays no part in the decision whether to prosecute. "I assure you," he said, "that I here in this office do not know who donates what to whom."

The first aim of the Justice Department, he said, was to abate pollution rather than prosecute the polluters. Every effort is made, he said, to persuade a polluter to stop pouring gunk into the waterways. His willingness to cooperate determines whether he will be prosecuted. The final decision is made, he said, by the local U.S. attorney.

The big corporate bosses in many communities, EPA officials told us, have enormous influence with the local U.S. attorneys. Often, the pollution cases are dropped for the most frivolous reasons.

Failed to file

In at least eight cases, the federal attorneys simply failed to file suit before the deadline passed. Among corporations that got off the hook in this fashion were American Can, American Cyanamid, Georgia Pacific and four paper companies.

In February 1972, the EPA asked Justice to file suit against the Carnation Milk Company for dumping milk processing waste into Williams Creek in Mt. Vernon, Mo. The U.S. attorney declined prosecution because there was "insufficient evidence of discharge into navigable waters."

The Peabody Coal Co., in Columbia, Mo., was accused of dumping "coal mine acid wastes" into Hinksin Creek, a tributary of the Mississippi. The case was also dropped because the prosecutors claimed not to have sufficient proof that Hinksin Creek was navigable.

Now, weary EPA officials sometimes literally paddle their own canoes up creeks to prove the streams are "navigable." For it takes a full investigation to nail a big polluter.

Barbs

Considering all the criticism being aimed at the Administration in some quarters, perhaps they should change the name of the edifice to the "Why? House."

Minds are like parachutes — unless fully open, they do not function properly.

"Finally I feel important!"

Gossip for today

In these troublesome times we are all too often overlooking the fact that in many ways this is still the best of all worlds.

For television pitchmen, the coming year holds the promise of a brand new sales opportunity — A doctor claims to have discovered a new vitamin.

Because of the fuel shortage the wood burning stove business is once again flourishing in the United States.

According to the results of a study recently released by three scientists, those who partake of alcohol may be doing themselves a favor. They should have fewer heart attacks the scientists say.

In the Los Angeles school district it has been found necessary to prohibit the use of school buses for field study trips but happily buses will still be available to transport the team to and from athletic events.

To cut down on the ever increasing cost of recreation, American inventive genius has come up with electronic golf balls that bleep when they are lost.

And right here in Pomona, to keep folks occupied and happy in spite of the gasoline shortage, our Parks and Recreation Department is now sponsoring classes in belly dancing.

So what are we fretting about? After all, what more proof does one need that happy times are here again?

Valley men join races for state, U.S. seats

STATE ASSEMBLY

William McVittie, left, and Clyde Stephens have announced they'll seek election to the state Assembly from the 65th district, which serves a large portion of the Pomona Valley.

CONGRESS

Salesman is first in line for Congress

POMONA — Carl Smith, a sales representative for Indisco, Inc., said he will seek the Democratic nomination in the newly-reapportioned 35th Congressional District.

Smith is the first person in either major party to declare his candidacy in the 35th District.

A resident of the Pomona Valley for the past 12 years, Smith is making his first bid for public office.

In declaring his candidacy, Smith called for more research and development of power sources with government support.

"We need the facilities and manpower now idle to resolve the energy crisis," Smith said in a prepared statement. "There is no greater crime than letting our resources go unused in this time of crisis."

Smith says he is a "middle class, non-politician," and feels he can better serve the people because "I live with your problems."

Smith has worked as deputy registrar of voters in Ontario, and was a member of the West End Democratic Club. He currently resides in Pomona.

The 35th Congressional District consists of the entire Pomona Valley with the exception of Diamond Bar, and the cities of Covina and West Covina.

Two more throw hats in 65th Assembly seat ring

Two more names were added to the 65th Assembly District race when Clyde R. Stephens and William McVittie announced their intentions to run for the office.

Stephens, a member of the Pomona Planning Commission, will seek the Republican nomination, which already has one announced candidate—Pete Vander Poel, a Chino businessman.

McVittie, meanwhile, becomes the first person to go after the Democratic nomination. He is presently serving as Chino's city attorney.

Under the newly adopted reapportionment, the 65th District includes the cities of Pomona, Ontario, Montclair, Chino, Upland and unincorporated areas of southwestern San Bernardino County.

"It is my contention that we've had enough of the high-powered, high-financed, machine-backed politician," said Stephens, who in the past has ran unsuccessfully for mayor and the City Council in Pomona. "In these times of crisis, this district needs a dedicated representative who will listen to his constituents and make their will known in Sacramento."

Stephens said some of the issues he will be discussing in the upcoming campaign are expansion of the Ontario International Airport, prison, welfare, tax reform, and the energy crisis with the proposed solutions.

He has been active in Republican circles in the area, and is employed at General Dynamics.

In announcing his candidacy, McVittie said he intends to run "an energetic campaign." He said "new blood is needed" in the state legislature.

"This requires creative leadership and a strong voice in Sacramento to establish realistic priorities in dealing with the problems of taxation, the rising cost of living, the energy crisis and responsible fiscal management," McVittie said.

A member of the California and Federal Bar Associations, McVittie has practiced law in the Chino area sisce 1965, serving as a tax attorney in the corporate tax staff of Kaiser Aluminum and Chemical Corp. before entering private practice.

Apartment fire cause investigation opened

HACIENDA HEIGHTS — An investigation has been ordered to determine the cause of the fire Saturday which caused an estimated $24,000 damage to an apartment at the Cal-Temple Heights Apartments at 2401 Hacienda Blvd.

Arson was not suspected, firemen said.

The second-floor apartment, occupied by Francis McCall, sustained $20,000 structural damage, and $4,000 loss of contents.

Firemen arrived at 2:02 a.m. to find the apartment hallway burning. They reported heat and smoke damage throughout the second floor.

There were unconfirmed reports of two persons jumping from second-floor apartments during the fire, but there were no reports of anyone being injured, firemen said.

Arson said source of repeated house fire

SAN DIMAS — County fireman said a flamable liquid was used to start four separate firest which burned down the vacant house at 312 Silton Ave.

Loss was estimated at $12,000. The house was owned by Elijah Brown of Pomona.

Firemen received their first call to the house at 9:06 p.m. Friday. They put out three small fires, one in a closet and two in carpeting in two separate rooms. Damage was estimated at $75.

Then a second call came in at the same address at 1:26 a.m. Saturday. Firemen arrived to find the house fully involved in flames.

Capt. Bill Slead supervised men from Station 64 who had the fire out by 2 a.m. and remained on the scene another hour spraying water on debris.

An arson investigation is underway.

Small kitchen fire damages city apartment

POMONA — A small fire in the kitchen of a Pomona apartment caused about $1,800 damage Friday evening, but resulted in no injuries.

According to officials, the fire broke out about 7 p.m. in the ground-floor apartment at 2380 Angela St. The occupants of the apartment were not at home.

Most of the damage was due to heavy smoke. The cause of the fire was not immediately known and is under investigation.

TV producer shows films for MECHA

CLAREMONT — Jesus Trevino, producer of KCET's Accion Chicano program, will speak and show two of his films Tuesday at Oldenborg Center, Pomona College.

The program, which will start at 9 p.m., is open to the general public and is sponsored by the Claremont Colleges chapter of Movimiento Estudiantil Chicano de Aztlan (MECHA).

The two films are "Yo Soy Chicano," about the economic, political and social conditions of Mexican-Americans in the Southwest, and "Somos Uno," a dramatization about Mexican peasants and Chicano workers.

Hawkins Co. adds to staff

POMONA — Maurice Carpenter and Lynne Renchard of Upland have joined the sales staff of Herbert Hawkins Realtors.

Carpenter has been active in Pomona area real estate for the past five years, while Miss Renchard is a former Los Angeles County social worker.

"The Assembly is a considerably different house than the Senate," Lewis said. "In the Assembly, there is a great deal of concentration on partisanship, and frankly I'm not that comfortable with that process.

"In the Senate, I believe I'll be able to address myself to the issues in a different fashion than in a highly partisan House."

Lewis believes the district must have a "continuity of leadership" to face future problems brought on by population and economic growth, and that he can provide it with his experience in the Legislature.

As of Nov. 29, Lewis had received $56,827.50 in campaign contributions. Of that amount, a dozen contributors had made contributions of more than $500.

AYALA

Like Lewis, Ruben Ayala is an insuance man by profession. He is 50 years old and a native of Chino, where he first started in public office as a member of the school board.

Since then, he has served on the City Council, as mayor, and for the past seven years as a member of the County Board of Supervisors.

Ayala believes his lengthy experience in local and regional government make him more aware of the needs of his constituents.

"In order to represent the local people more effectively, I think there should be someone who has served in the local level of government," Ayala said.

"I would venture to say that many, many of these legislators have very little knowledge of how local government works. This is no reflection on their ability to perform, but they should understand how some of these bills or legislation will affect local government.

Ayala predicts the election will be decided in the city of San Bernardino, reasoning that Lewis will control the rural eastern part of the county and he taking the urban western section.

Unlike Lewis, Ayala does not appear to have his chief opponent's strong financial support. He has listed contributions totalling only $5,989.37, of which $2,000 came from Herb Hafif's gubernatorial campaign fund.

CARTER

If there is a darkhorse candidate in the race, Ralph Carter is it. Although he is well known in Democratic Party circles, he does not have the wide-ranging public exposure of either Lewis or Ayala.

He has secured the endorsements of the California Teachers Association, the United Steelworkers, and state Sen. George Moscone, a Democratic gubernatorial candidate.

Carter, 50, entered the Senate race because "we need a breath of fresh air in politics." He said that he has "no skeletons in the closet," and is not tied to any special interest groups.

He teaches at San Gorgonio High School, and has been on the Rialto City Council since 1970.

He is also a member of the San Bernardino County Democratic Committee, and has been a resident of the county for 26 years.

ALLENTHORP

The fourth candidate, Robert Allenthorp, describes himself as "the voice of the little people. I represent the small people in helping them 'tote that barge' and 'lift that bale'."

He has based his campaign on the need for tax relief for the homeowner. The plan, which has been in the making for 10 years, would roll back the market value on houses for tax assessment purposes only, he said.

Recently, questions have been raised about Allenthorp's official residency. He now lists his home as Big Bear, but as late as March 1973, court records show his residence was Riverside County, a newspaper reported.

Allenthorp said Friday that Big Bear is his legal residence, and that he will continue in the race.

Informacion para los consumidores

SACRAMENTO — John T. Kehoe, director del Departamento de "Consumer Affairs" en California, anuncia que el Centro de Informacion para el consumidor, ha puesto a la disposicion del publico un indice de publicaciones escritas en espanol.

El indice, "Informacion para el Consumido," tiene una lista de mas de 60 folletos, que son gratuitos o baratos.

Estos folletos fueron desarrollados por 16 agencias Federales. Previo a esta nueva indice ser disponible en espanol, las publicaciones Federales estaban apuntadas en las ediciones del indice de Informacion para el consumidor, escritas en Ingles.

La mayoria de los folletos explican como comprar, usar y cuidar diferentes productos. Los otros cubren una variedad de topicos como salud, proteccion y seguridad, presupuestos y cuidados del nino.

Algunos de los folletos descritos en el indice le da informacion de como comprar y cuidar la bateria de su carro, informacion acerca de los prestamos de dinero, acerca de los pagos a plazos cuando compra algo y la cantidad de porcentage annual.

El indice lo puede conseguir gratis en el Centro de Informacion ubicado en Sacramento, San Francisco, Los Angeles y San Diego. Para obtener copias individuales del indice, mande un sobre con su direccion y una estampilla a: Spanish Index, Box 310, Sacramento, Calif. 95802.

Cantidades en bulto de 25 copias o mas de "Informacion para el Consumidor" pueden ser obtenidos gratis por profesores y organizaciones privadas que trabajan con consumidores de habla espanola. Pueden pedirlos a: Consumer Information, Pueblo, Colo., 81009.

Accion para proteger nuestras escuelas

POMONA — En reciente anos cuatro actos de incendio premeditado en el Distrito Escolar Unido de Pomona han agotado mas de $90,000 del presupuesto.

Solamente en tres anos — 1968 a 1971 — $60,000 se gastaron para restaurar ventanas quebradas, y otros $64,000 fueron tomados del program educacional solamente en dos anos — 1972 a 1973 — para reponer el dano causado por los vandalos.

"Movimiento Para Proteger Nuestras Escuelas" se llevara a cabo del 9 de Diciembere al 3 de Enero cubriendo el periodo cuando las escuelas estan cerrados por las vacaciones de Navidad.

Miles de rotulos de parachoques, cienes de cartelones y banderas en las calles mostraran a los vandalos que estamos protegiendo nuestras escuelas, y que llamaremos a la policia a cualquier tiempo que veamos a alguien escondiendose cerca de nuestras escuelas.

Al ver una persona sospechosa cerca de la escuela, se le pide que llame al agente de policia al numero 620-2155 y oficiales de seguridad de la escuela o policias investigaran.

Navidad es el tiempo para Posadas

En Mexico las fiestas de Navidad son del 16 de Diciembre al 6 de Enero. Cada familia espera con anticipacion las Posadas que se tienen cada noche por nueve dias antes de la Navidad.

Los miembros de familia tienen las Posadas en memoria de Maria y Jose buscando posada en la primer Noche Buena. Forman una procesion de cuarto a cuarto o de casa en casa, al frente van dos ninos con las figuras de Maria y Jose en sus manos. A la puerta de cada cuarto o casa, los ninos piden posada pero son rehusados.

Cuando llegan al cuarto o casa que contiene el altar, los viajeros son admitidos. Ponen la figura de Maria y Jose en el pesebre. No ponen la figura del Nino Jesus hasta la Noche Buena, la ultima noche de las Posadas.

Cada Posada termina con una fiesta. El hospedero invita a todos a su casa para la fiest y Pinata. La Pinata esta hecha de papel o un jarro casi siempre en figura de animal.

Esta esta llena de jugetes y dulces para los ninos. La cuelgan del techo o de un arbol. Se les vendan los ojos a los ninos y toman su turno para quebrar la pinata con un palo. Cuando se quiebra la pinata, los jugetes y dulces caen al suelo y los ninos corren a recogerlos.

'Operacion Navidad'

"Operacion Navidad" es la celebracion del nacimiento de JesuCristo. Es un concepto tradicional y cultural como las "posadas" y "La Misa de Gallo." "Operacion Navidad" es un esfuerzo total de la comunidad de los barrios, familias y personas interesadas. Esta actividad no se concierne solamente con dar jugetes sino en la creencia actual de la frase biblica que "es mejor dar que recibir."

"Operacion Navidad" da la oportunidad a nuestros chicanitos de participar contribuyendo sus talentos, ayudando a entregar, envolviendo paquetes y ver que sus padres tambien participen. "Operacion Navidad" es lo que la Navidad deberia de ser; lo que era antes.

"Operacion Navidad" da la oportunidad al espectador de television de ver el talento de los barrios, de ver nuestro mundo, el mundo de nuestros ninos. Este programa sera transmitido por television por varias horas.

"Operacion Navidad" tendra lugar el 9 de diciembre de 1973 de las 12:00 p.m. a las 6:00 p.m. en el canal 34. Para mas informacion, communiquese con Mexican-American Community Relations llamando al telefono 629-1633.

Mom leads living Yule tree program

LITTLETON, Colo. (UPI) — One of Mrs. Jackie Lembke's greatest delights is simply to walk around her yard in suburban Littleton pointing out to friends the evergreens she and her family have planted.

"In our yard, there is nothing sweeter than to go around and look at the trees and remember the times when they were planted," the mother of three said. "We have five trees now, for five Christmases. With a little bit of luck, we will have a lot more."

Mrs. Lemke is head of the environmental group called Provide for People which wants homeowners across the nation to celebrate Christmas in a different way. They want people to buy living, growing Christmas trees—not trees that have been cut—and then replant them when they have served their holiday decorative purpose.

"There is no more wonderful way to celebrate Christmas," Mrs. Lembke says. "I have three fine sons and they're all enthusiastic about it. They help decorate the tree and then after Christmas, plant it."

Mrs. Lembke, whose group kicked off a nationwide campaign on Thanksgiving Day, said she has been working for three years now to convince people to buy living trees. She thinks the idea is spreading.

"Good Support"

"We were very effective last year," she said. "The first year there were over 1,000 live trees planted in Colorado alone and last year it jumped to 7,000. And we've heard that there has been a lot of good support across the nation."

Mrs. Lembke said she found it amazing the number of people who have jumped on the bandwagon to support the idea.

"It seems like an idea whose time has come," she said. "All you have to do is mention it to people and they either latch onto it and say this is a great idea or else they poo-hoo the idea and just forget it."

Mrs. Lembke said she can't accept the argument that the task is too difficult and that most of the trees planted in wintertime will die.

"We say if you get a dead tree, you know it's dead," she said. "But at least this way you take a chance. Even if only 50 per cent of the trees that are planted live, that's 50 per cent more live trees than we had to start off with."

How To Do It

Mrs. Lembke provides a few hints for persons buying living trees. They should never be kept in the home for more than 10 days, keep the roots moist and then leave the tree in the garage for a couple of days to get it used to the shock of moving outdoors.

"Keep your dirt in the garage, too, or some other protected area so it won't shock the roots at the time you transplant it," she said.

Mrs. Lembke, who has been sidelined much of the past year as the result of injuries suffered when struck by a car, said she felt her group was instrumental in the decision this year by the White House to have a living national Christmas tree. Her organization set up a cry last year when a tree was cut in Wyoming and then shipped to the White House as the national tree.

Originator unknown

Mrs. Lembke said the originator of the live Christmas tree program was a woman whose name she doesn't even know. She heard the elderly woman speaking to a councilman at a political meeting and telling him how nice it would be to have evergreens up and down the main street in Littleton.

Mrs. Lembke told her organization about it and the members decided to take it on as a project.

"The first year we tried to find her," Mrs. Lembke said. "She never did step forward, so I don't know whether she died or if she just hasn't become aware. But it was really she who was the originator of this."

Erma Bombeck

You know what the most beautiful word in the English language is? Preassembled.

Few things come that way anymore. In fact, the only two I can think of are babies and sweet potatoes.

For the past two weeks I've been holed up in the hall closet (we have no basement) putting together a lawn sweeper for my husband for Christmas.

I should have become suspicious when the truck from the department store pulled up and slid an envelop the size of Good Housekeeping magazine inside my storm door marked, Lawn Sweeper. This Side Up.

Naturally I called the store. "I don't wish to complain" I said, "but I am not a mechanical person. Let me put it another way. I iron in a fetal position because I cannot figure out how the ironing board locks itself into place."

The store manager laughed. "Surely you do not think a store has the space to keep 19 fully assembled lawn sweepers in stock. Actually, there is nothing to it. The directions are simple enough to be assembled by anyone who can read."

He was right. Anyone who could read Japanese fluently could have put the thing together in ten minutes because that's what the instructions were written in.

As I sat under the naked bulb in the closet, I read and reread the directions. Finally, I yelled out the door to my son, "What does TORA! TORA! TORA! mean?"

"I don't think you should try to put it together by yourself," he warned.

"Why?"

"Because you and Dad put a tricycle together for me once and I was the only kid on the block with pedals under the seat."

I snatched him into the closet and shut the door. "I need your help. Now, if you were wing nut E, where would you hide?"

The two of us worked halfway through the night; he, trying to attach the brush to the handle, and me trying to put together a wheel. Finally, it was finished. We cracked the closet door to make sure no one was about for the unveiling. Then we started to wheel it out. It stopped stubbornly at the door frame. No way could that lawn sweeper fit through the door.

"What are you going to do?" asked my son. "Take it apart and start all over again?"

"Are you crazy?" I snapped. "Tomorrow I'm putting in a lawn and planting a maple tree in the hall closet!"

Skylab 3 gets first-day covers

To commemorate the final Skylab mission, the Space City Cover Society is offering a matching set of four commemorative covers.

The set will have one each for (1) Crew launch, (2) Docking with workshop, (3) Undocking and (4) Splashdown.

As in the other sets of Skylab covers issued by the space organization, this set will have cancels made at the Houston (Tex.) Post Office on the proper dates. And not only will the Houston Post Office cancel appear on each cover, but each will also have the NASA Local Post label and commemorative cancel.

In addition to the covers, the SCCS will make available to collectors the souvenir sheets of the NASA Local Post labels. The set will consist of two different sheets, printed in bicolor, perforated, and with marginal inscriptions.

The covers are priced at $2.50 per set of four, and the souvenir sheets are priced at $1.00 per set. Orders should be sent to Space City Cover Society, P.O. Box 53545, Houston, Tex. 77052 and should be accompanied by a 25 cent postage and handling charge. An addressed gummed label would be appreciated.

Carrier pigeons, a postman and various mechanical means of transporting the mails are featured on three commemoratives that Surinam will issue on December 12, to marke the 100th anniversary of her first postage stamps.

The values and designs are: 15 cents — (printed in green and blue) — two carrier pigeons with letters; 25 cents (pink, blue, grey and black) — postman carrying letter; 30 cents (blue, red, green and black) — outline map of Surinam with a plane, truck, ship and train shown in silhouette.

In addition to the country name and value, each stamp has the text: "100 Jaar Surinaamse Postzegls" (100 Years of Surinam Postage Stamps.) Mint sets may be ordered at face from the Netherlands Post Office Philatelic Service, Prinses Beatrixlaan, The Hague, The Netherlands.

Because of present monetary situation, information on the dollar value of the set (which is Dfl.1.26) may be obtained from local post offices.

On December 5 Luxembourg released a set of five semi-postals as their 1973 Caritas stamps, featuring like the 1972 stamps, scenes of the Nativity.

The series comprises the following values: 1 franc, 25 cents — Joachim and St. Anne, parents of the Virgin; 3 F 25 c — Mary meets Elisabeth under gilt porch; 4 F 50 c — One of three Magi near the Holy Virgin with Jesus; 8 F plus 1 F — Shepherds at the manger; 15 F plus 7 F — St. Joseph holding a light to little Jesus.

James A. Mackay, former Keeper of Stamps at the British Museum, author of many articles and books on various aspects of Philately, is the author of "The Dictionary of Stamps in Color" which would make a desirable holiday present for any stamp collector.

It is actually a short history of philately, illustrated with over 3000 stamps from every country that has ever issued stamps in 296 pages with a 5-page index, with all stamps in full color.

Every stamp shown is described with some background information and the book is, therefore, not only educational and informative, but also entertaining. The price is $19.95, but orders placed by December 31 will be filled at the pre-publication price of only $17.50. Order from Macmillan Publishing Co., Inc., 866-D Third Ave., N.Y. City 10022.

Collectors of covers may want to start 1974 right by joining the national American First Day Cover Society, the first international society devoted to first day cover collecting, both U.S. and foreign. Membership includes "First Days," a bi-monthly publication. Dues are $5 per year.

Applications should be sent to Elizabeth Bayless, 112-D S. Symington Ave., Catonsville, Md. 21228.

Another society devoted to the collecting of covers is the Universal Philatelic Cover Society, Donald D. Lawton, P.O. Box 505-D, Ferndale, CA 95536. Write for information.

Stamps Information Associates, Inc., 675 Massachusetts Ave., Cambridge, MA 02139, will hold a Mail Sale on December 17. Offered are world-wide stamps, covers, and philatelic literature.

Energy crisis to have effect on 'blue laws'

ATLANTA (UPI) — One side effect of the energy crisis may be a cease-fire in the war to liberalize "blue laws" in Georgia.

It is not likely, capitol sources said, that any new moves will be started to liberalize the Sunday closing laws, which some consider archaic. It also was doubtful the House and Senate would want to open up more Sunday business, especially now that most gas stations are closed on that day by presidential request.

Lt. Gov. Lester Maddox said he wanted all discount stores and many other businesses closed on Sunday during the energy crisis.

America and the future of man

As human rights expand, society's security rocks

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the 11th of 20 essays by leading men in the world's academic community. The writer of this essay is the Richard Clarke Cabot professor of social ethics at Harvard University. Herein he discusses the impact of change on cultural patterns and values.)

By HERBERT KELMAN

The concept of individual rights is central to a democratic society. Yet a society's definition of individual rights is never static. Moreover, at any given time, the application of the principles that govern individual rights is usually imperfect.

Throughout American history, we can observe organized efforts to close the gap between principle and practice — to broaden the definition of individual rights and to extend such rights to segments of the population, to institutional contexts and to areas of life in which they had not been firmly established in the past.

One of the marked changes in mood that has characterized American society in recent years is that these efforts have become increasingly vigorous and widespread. More and more groups within the population are insisting on rights that they feel have been systematically denied to them.

Groups that have long been struggling for their rights have become more militant. Groups that have in the past accepted curtailments of their right have begun to challenge these restrictions.

Increasing numbers of individuals are now claiming rights that were only dimly recognized in the past.

Across wide segments of the society, there is less willingness to accept second-class status, restrictions on personal freedoms, and violations of personal interests.

We can identify three distinct — though clearly related — ways in which this heightened insistence on individual rights manifests itself in our society.

—1 There are some segments of our population — notably blacks and other nonwhite minorities — that have been systematically excluded for generations from effective participation in the society.

They have been locked into a self-perpetuating pattern of poverty, substandard living conditions, inadequate education, lack of skills and unequal protection of the law, all mutually reinforcing one another.

Their efforts to break out of this vicious cycle have been frustrated by subtle and not-so-subtle biases that have denied them access to educational opportunities, to jobs, to unions, to housing, to loans — in short, to all potential points of entry into the system.

Members of these groups have now gone beyond the earlier civil rights movement in insisting that their right to full participation in the society implies not merely the removal of legal barriers, but active affirmative efforts to open up opportunities to them and to assure that they will be in a position to take advantage of these opportunities.

Moreover, they are insisting on the right to their own identity — the right to be included in the system on their terms, without having to adopt the values, life-styles and other cultural trappings of the white middle-class majority.

—2 Apart from ethnic minorities, various groups in our society have been deprived, as a matter of public policy, of certain rights and opportunities available to the average citizen. These groups are characterized by some variety and degree of dependence, deviance or captivity

Among such groups one might include minors, senior citizens, homosexuals, welfare recipients, mental patients, prison inmates, enlisted men in the armed forces and women.

Although women constitute more than half of the population and enjoy some power within our society, law and tradition define them as "dependents" and restrict their exercise of certain important rights — such as the right to make contracts, to pursue desired careers and to control their own bodies.

The rationale for restricting members of these groups in the exercise of some of their rights has been either that they are incapable of exercising these rights, so that it would be in their own and in society's interest to impose restrictions; or that they have forfeited their rights by their own actions; or that they are living in institutional settings in which the public interest and safety demand the curtailment of certain individual rights.

Widely-shared assumptions which have long supported these restrictions are now being challenged, both by members of these groups themselves and by professional and action groups that identify with their cause.

—3 Individual rights have always been subject to certain limitations for all groups in the society, not just those groups that have been singled out for discriminatory treatment.

Thus, the right to refuse military service, to engage in certain forms of protest, to practice birth control or to establish a household with unmarried partners — to mention just a few examples — has been severely restricted through a combination of law and custom.

With some exceptions, people have in the past accepted the right of society and its duly constituted authorities to impose these limitations on them.

In recent years many of these traditional restrictions are increasingly being challenged, most often by the well-established upper middle class but with growing frequency by other elements of society. More individuals are now insisting on constitutional rights that in the past were only rarely claimed.

For example, the marked increase in the number of conscientious objectors during the Vietnam War and in efforts to broaden the legal definition of conscientious objection (to include selective objection to a particular war) suggests a greater insistence on the individual's right to evaluate for himself the adequacy of the reasons for which authorities order him to kill and die.

Furthermore, there has been a tendency to push the limits of certain rights that have always been recognized but interpreted more narrowly.

For example, individuals are insisting that the right of dissent extends to dramatic forms of protest or that the right of privacy extends to unorthodox life-styles, even though many people may find the exercise of these rights offensive or objectionable.

Finally, citizens are increasingly claiming new rights that have not been explicitly recognized before: Witness the growth of citizen lobbies, of the consumer rights movement, and of the ecology movement. While these are largely middle-class issues, the increasing emphasis of young blue-collar workers on the right to meaningful work suggests that the push toward a broader definition of human rights suffuses our entire society.

These various manifestations of a heightened insistence on individual rights in our society are part of a worldwide process that can be traced to many sources.

The diffusion of a democratic ideology and its associated principle of national self-determination have spurred on the movements for political independence and social reform throughout the old colonial empires; the emergence of Africa and the rest of the Third World, in turn, has strengthened the sense of ethnic identity and the struggle for equal rights among Black Americans.

Industrialization, along with the growth of science and technology, has encouraged efforts to extend individual rights, both by fostering attitudes of rationality and pragmatism capable of challenging traditional patterns, and by broadening the range of possible living conditions to which people could aspire.

Urbanization has not only undermined traditional authority relationships but has also created some of the conditions for political organizing and for mobilizing disaffected groups to take collective action.

The mass media have greatly accelerated the dissemination of information, both about living conditions that prevail elsewhere, thus raising people's levels of aspiration, and about collective actions that have been taken elsewhere, thus inviting imitation.

Whatever their sources, the different manifestations of the movement for individual rights have certain important common features. A basic feature is the unwillingness of people to accept any longer the status to which they have been assigned. Changes in self-attitudes—development of group pride, openness about deviant life-styles or political preferences, refusal to be apologetic or subservient about one's claims—reinforce unwillingness to accept restrictions.

A second and closely related feature of the new movements is their challenge to established authority.

Yet, wide segments of the population—especially but not exclusively among the working class and the lower middle class—feel profoundly threatened by these manifestations of change. They see them as concrete threats to their own economic positions and mobility aspirations, as attacks on important symbols of order and authority, and as disruptions of the traditional relationship between citizen and authorities.

By and large, members of these groups are integrated in the American system but their hold on the system is tenuous; to maintain it, they feel obligated to do what the authorities expect of them. Their sense of security basically rests on the knowledge that they are playing by the rules.

Any change in the rules and expectations is, therefore, particularly threatening to them since it disturbs the basis of their integration in the society.

Essentially, the new insistence on individual rights represents a call for a redefinition of the bases of legitimacy in the society. Various groups are refusing to accept the legitimacy of the leadership until the system adequately represents their interests and includes them in the process of defining national goals and deciding on their means of implementation.

The new movements represent, in my view, constructive and exciting steps in the direction of a society that is more open, more just and more free.

They call for a system that is responsive to the needs of all segments of the population, that offers maximal opportunity for self-fulfillment to all of its members and that gives each individual the right and the responsibility to assess official actions in terms of their consistency with basic societal values.

Without a sensitive understanding of what the heightened insistence on individual rights means to these segments of our society, the efforts at change are unlikely to succeed, nor would they be conducive to the highest degree of justice.

The changes implied in extending individual rights are not designed to do away with authority—without which, in my opinion, no organized social system could survive—but to question long-established authority patterns that are no longer consistent with democratic values as they have historically evolved and to build the habit of questioning authority into the political process.

In the long run, such changes would strengthen the legitimacy and the integrity of the system, by making it more congruent with its underlying values and deepening the public support for it.

Villages share same name but refuse change

FLIXTON, England (UPI) — Villagers in two villages called Flixton must decide which of their towns keeps the name and which will be called something else, the British government has ruled.

But nobody in the hamlets only 20 miles apart wants to budge.

In Flixton near Lowesoft (pop. 54) Council Chairman Patrick Paul said "some faceless bureaucrat has decided it will be complicated to have two Flixtons in the new borough of Waveney."

Over in the other Flixton (pop. 51) postmistress Jutta Peterson said, "the ministry will face great resistance if they try to change us. Although we have had a few wrongly addresses letters and parcels, there is not much confusion over the names.

Nicaraguan dictator wasn't a deadbeat

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Nicaraguan dictator Anastasio Somoza is no deadbeat.

Last Friday, his party of nine, accompanied by two dozen U. S. security agents, paid a surprise visit to the Condor nightclub to watch famed topless-bottomless dancer Carol Doda perform.

The management picked up the tab and nobody left a tip.

Somoza apologized recently and said "the Secret Service people told me 'everything was taken care of'." He promised to send $100 in tips to the club.

Williams-Finley dilemma haunts A.L.

HOUSTON (UPI) — The San Diego Padres were sent East, but Dick Williams was not.

Ron Santo said he wanted to stay in Chicago, but Willie Davis and Claude Osteen said they did not mind moving to Montreal and Houston.

Major league umpires were given a new weapon to combat the spitball and were told to use it, and the ball clubs were told to look into the use of commercial air travel.

Those actions, and in one case inaction, highlighted the week-long winter meetings of baseball's heirarchy which ended Friday night.

Baseball officials came to Houston with two major problems to solve —one in each league.

The National League solved its difficulty by sending the San Diego franchise to Washington, returning the nation's capital to baseball following a two-year absence. Legal entanglements, however, threaten to follow the league's decision for months to come.

The American League bosses left Houston without having come close to ending the controversy over Dick Williams.

"The whole thing could be settled while walking across the courtyard," said American League President Joe Cronin, in about as close to a tone of disgust as he can achieve.

In a two-hour meeting at midweek Cronin could not bring a compromise between blustery Oakland owner Charles Finley and New York Yankees President Gabe Paul in Paul's attempt to hire Williams as his manager for next season. Williams' Oakland contract has two years to run. Finley asked for two specific Yankee players as compensation for Williams' potential move to New York, but Paul balked.

For two more days all parties concerned still were within a few hundred feet of each other, but no further attempt was made to settle the issue.

Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn said he thought Cronin would work things out before Cronin retires Jan. 1, but Cronin did not seem as positive and before leaving town Finley said he did not think Cronin had any right to interfere.

The city of San Diego, however, plans to interfere with the move of its franchise to Washington.

San Diego City Attorney John Witt already has filed a $12 million breach of contract suit against the National League (the Padres had 15 years to run on a 20-year lease on San Diego Stadium) and after the move of the club was announced Thursday he indicated an anti-trust suit would be filed as well.

As President Nixon was sending a congratulatory telegram to Washington owner Joseph Danzansky, Witt was saying:

"I'm as confident as I can be in an anti-trust suit we will file against the National League. I was shocked when I heard of the league's action."

With all of that going on, trading action was overshadowed.

The Dodgers were involved in the two biggest trades. Osteen went to the Houston Astros for centerfielder Jim Wynn and Davis was sent to the Montreal Expos for ace reliever Mike Marshall.

Both Osteen and Davis had enough seniority (it takes 10 years in the majors, including the last five with the same club) to veto the deals if they wanted to, but neither did.

However, Ron Santo, who has been with the Chicago Cubs since 1960, rejected all trades proposed to him during the meetings. A final attempt to talk Santo into a move as late as Friday night fell through, although Santo said he would be willing to move across town to the White Sox.

There were 25 trades made during the week for 57 players, including 30 pitchers. All but six deals involved pitchers. Among the trades which fell through was one which would have sent Cleveland pitcher Gaylord Perry to Boston.

Kuhn, in his final briefing before heading home, said he had urged all teams to consult airlines to determine if they could fly around the country commercially instead of depending on charters.

He indicated that was the most baseball could do to save fuel during the energy pinch.

And the Rules Committee got into the act by changing the by-law concerning the spitball.

Umpires no longer have to find any liquid or goo or anything on a baseball to call it a spitter, and officials of both leagues say they are informing umpires to strictly enforce the new guideline.

ULCA collects 78th straight against SMU

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — UCLA, behind Bill Walton's 25 points and 16 rebounds, made it 78 games in a row by coasting to a 77-60 victory over Southern Methodist Saturday night.

The Bruins, coming off a one-point win over Maryland last weekend, settled the issue in the first half when they out-scored the Mustangs 16-0 over a six-minute stretch to build up a 35-12 lead.

SMU, now even on the year at 2-2, was paced by senior forward Sammy Hervey's 22 points and 16 points from sophomore center Ira Terrell.

Walton got 18 points and 14 rebounds in the first half, hitting eight of his first 11 shots to give UCLA a 40-20 intermission margin.

The Bruins also got 12 points from senior forward Keith Wilkes and 11 from junior forward Pete Trgovich.

The game was the first basketball meeting between the two schools. SMU plays at UC Santa Barbara Monday night.

UCLA, which has won seven straight NCAA titles and nine in the past 10 years, faces second-ranked North Carolina State next Saturday in St. Louis. North Carolina State was 27-0 last season, but was ineligible for post-season play.

Standing room for UCLA-'Pack

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — St. Louis University announced Saturday that 750 standing room tickets will go on sale Wednesday for $5 each for the basketball doubleheader next Saturday featuring seven-time national chtmpion UCLA and North Carolina State at the St. Louis Arena.

The Arena has been sold out of seats for the match between the two top-ranked college squads in the country.

Rams' title formula: 'Don't look ahead'

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Rookie coach Chuck Knox has a formula for winning with the Los Angeles Rams and it is simply, "Don't look too far ahead."

Knox, 41, an obscure assistant coach with the Detroit Lions when he was picked by owner Carroll Rosenbloom to take over the Rams, fears all teams equally.

The Rams meet the New York Giants Monday night in the weekly televised game and are favored by 17 points to improve their 10-2 record with which they've clinched the title in the NFC West. The Giants have a sad 2-9-1 record.

"We're not doing anything different to prepare for the Giants," said Knox. "They are a good football beam. They almost beat the Washington Redskins last Sunday. They have a super athlete in Ron Johnson. He carried the ball 26 out of the 37 times they ran it. He gained 191 yards including pass receptions."

Knox has surrounded himself with assistants whom he gives full credit and he always uses the pronoun "we" in speaking of coaching methods.

"The little things make the difference between winning and losing," he says. "You must cover every phase of the game, for example like how to give up a safety the way Miami did against Pittsburgh Monday night, getting down under punts or rushing on the extra point. Our special teams have been very good."

On the subject of looking ahead, he says, "We never have done that. We never set any goals. In the first day of practice we began preparing for our first preseason opponent, Kansas City. Then we prepared for the next one and the next one and so on.

"We do everything we can to make our players as successful as we can. We work with them and we demonstrate and we repeat. It's most important for the players to try to improve as individuals and then you improve as a team. This is what we've done all year."

Knox and his assistants have fashioned their winning record with an aging quarterback, John Hadl, 33, who had to learn a new system, and a not very highly rated secondary defenders.

Dave Elmendorf is the only holdover in the secondary, Eddie McMillan is a rookie from Florida State. Charlie Stukes and Steve Preece are castoffs from other NFL clubs.

Last season the Rams' secondary saw 20 touchdown passes go by them. This year the new crew has given up only nine scoring passes in 12 games.

"They are coordinated," says Knox by way of explanation. "We drill them on coordination so they don't leave any big holes in the secondary. Of course, the linebackers figure in this too. As a matter of fact, all 11 men have to coordinate."

Knox says the veteran Ram players have demonstrated great leadership qualities. He named offensive tackle Charlie Cowan, guard Joe Scibelli and defensive tackle Merlin Olsen in this category.

"We don't look for a letdown against the Giants," he says. "We prepared for them just the way we've done with other teams on the schedule. When you prepare for one game you concentrate your energies and you don't waste your time thinking about divisional titles or the Super Bowl.

Warriors 'Barry' Lakers, take over NBA West lead

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — Rick Barry scored an NBA season high of 50 points and the Golden State Warriors took first place in the Pacific Division with a 135-111 rout of the Los Angeles Lakers Saturday night.

Barry, who connected on 21 of 37 field goal attempts, reached the 50-point mark for the tenth time in his NBA career. The star forward also led the Warriors with nine assists and grabbed nine rebounds.

The victory gave the Warriors a 15-9 record and a .018 edge over the Lakers (17-11) for the lead in the Pacific Division.

Barry scored 29 of his points in the first half as Golden State vaulted to a 68-57 lead. He added 15 in the third and left the game after scoring his 50th point with 4:38 remaining.

Connie Hawkins paced the ailing Lakers with 23 points. Nate Thurmond was the rebound leader with 18. Laker center Elmore Smith blocked six shots.

Chaffey duo teams up to stop MSAC

By MIKE RAWLINSON

ALTA LOMA — Veterans Pierre Rankin and Bob Kovach combined for 36 points Saturday night to lead Chaffey College to a 67-49 victory over Mt. San Antonio in a tune-up game for next week's 33rd annual Chaffey Invitational Basketball Tournament.

Rankin led the Panthers into a 29-27 halftime lead and then Kovach, an All-State forward last season, applied the coup de grace.

It was Chaffey's fourth victory in six games while the Mounties dipped to 2-7 for the year.

Rankin scored eight of his 18 points in an exciting first half which saw the Mounties close a 19-9 gap on the shooting of freshman forward Gary Melugin.

The 6-foot-6 former Ganesha High standout hit four jump shots in a row from the corner to pep MSAC's rally in the late stages of the first half. In his first start of the season he led the Mounties with 16 points.

The Mounties kept the rally alive in the opening minutes of the second half and tied the score briefly at 33-all before Kovach caught fire, scoring 12 of his 18 points in the final 20 minutes.

In a seven minute span that lasted until only 6:30 remained in the contest, the Panthers outscored the Mounties 16-0 to turn the contest into a rout.

NLV defeats Buffs, 86-81

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI) — Bob Florence tallied 39 points Saturday night to lead the University of Nevada-Las Vegas to an 86-81 victory over the University of Colorado.

Nevada-Las Vegas led most of the game, paced by Florence, Louis Brown who added 13 for the Rebels and Ricky Sobers who had 12. Dave Logan led Colorado with 20 points, followed by Scott Wedman with 16, Lee Haven 15 and Tony Lawrence 13. Nevada-Las Vegas, which upped its record to 2-1, led 37-32 at the half. The Buffaloes dropped to 2-2 on the season.

Broncos snowed under by Arizona, 87-54

ByBILL LANGLEY
P-B Sports Editor

TUCSON, Ariz.—Cal Poly's Don Hogan and Arizona's Fred Snowden could form a mutual admiration society.

They are both black head basketball coaches, breaking into the collegiate ranks and their friendship dating back from a national convention is apparent.

It's also obvious Snowden has the talent. Nationally-ranked Arizona had no trouble in taking an 87-54 victory over Poly here Saturday night before more than 11,000 fans at the beautiful new McKale Memorial Center, which will be the site of the NCAA West Regionals in March.

Despite the one-sided win, Snowden had some kind words for his buddy.

"Poly is a well-coached basketball team," Fred the Fox commented. "Poly is still adapting to Hogan's coaching philosophy. They'll be allright."

Snowden is happy Hogan got the Poly job.

"I'm very pleased the university hired him," the man who has created basketball fever in the desert said. "He's a great developer of young men and I am proud he's a part of our profession."

Of course, Hogan had his own kind words to say.

"Snowden has done a heck-of-a-job here," the rookie mentor said. "The team believes in him and the people in Tucson believe in him.

"I also must add Fred was very generous for not running up the score on us."

It could have been much worse as Arizona jumped out to a 34-9 lead, expanding it to 46-19 at halftime as the Arizona statisticians were busy looking through the record books to see when a team last scored under 20 in one half.

It's still a mystery, but the net result is the same anyway.

Lee Roy Williams was the only Bronco able to accomplish much as he scored 15 points and grabbed nine rebounds despite playing only 26 minutes as he fouled out with 10 minutes left in the contest. Outside of Lee Roy, Poly's indiividual highlight was freshman Frank Prince, a Pomona High product, who scored five points in a relief role for his first collegiate points.

Arizona, rated ninth by Sports Illustrated, is 3-1 now as Snowden, in his second year here, has collected young, talented players with three sophomores and one freshman starting.

Sophomore Coniel Norman, last year's Most Valuable Player in the rugged West Athletic Conference, and freshman guard Herman Harris, an outstanding prepster from Pennsylvania, shared scoring honors with 16 points apiece to lead the attack.

Arizona, a team shooting at a 56.7 per cent clip from the floor in the first three games, was hot again Saturday in making 38 of 73 for 52.1 per cent while Poly was cold in making only 25 of 79 for 31.6 per cent.

Hogan will be an expert on Western powerhouses as Poly still must play Long Beach St. and Nevada Las Vegas in the next two weeks.

"I think we'll fare better against those teams," Hogan said, "because they don't run like Arizona. Arizona is very impressive offensively as it has great floor sense. The key to Arizona's success is its unselfish play."

The Wildcats' one loss was to USC last week in Los Angeles.

"USC outplayed us," Snowden said. "They were the better team that night. As a team we're not at the top of our game yet. We're just playing adequate basketball at this time. Hopefully, we'll reach our peak when WAC play begins in January."

Poly, 1-3, returns to its own class next Saturday when touring Wheaton College (Ill.) visits Kellogg Gym.

Giants peddle Juan Marichal

BOSTON (UPI) — Juan Marichal, the winningest active pitcher in baseball, has been sold to the Boston Red Sox by the San Francisco Giants for an undisclosed amount of cash, the Red Sox announced Saturday.

A club spokesman said "all necessary paper transfers" were completed before the 1 a.m. EST Saturday deadline for an interleague trade.

Marichal, who has spent all 14 years of his major league career with the Giants, agreed to the trade Saturday, the spokesman said. Under a new rule agreed to by club owners last spring, any player with more than 10 years in the league or more than five years with any one team, must agree to move before he can be traded.

Marichal, who won 11 and lost 15 with the Giants last season, has won 238 games overall, one more than Bob Gibson of St. Louis. He has won 20 or more games six different years.

Red Sox Spokesman Bill Crowley said the team "will assign a player within the next day or two to make room for Marichal"

Baseball trades

HOUSTON (UPI) — Twenty-four trades involving 55 players on 21 clubs —all teams except the New York Mets, San Francisco Giants and San Diego-Washington —were completed at the winter baseball meetings. The trades were:

The Philadelphia Phils traded pitcher Barry Lersch and shortstop Craig Robinson to the Atlanta Braves for pitcher Ron Schueler.

The Chicago Cubs traded pitcher Bob Locker to the Oakland A's for pitcher Horacio Pina.

The Detroit Tigers traded pitcher Fred Scherman to the Houston Astros for pitcher Jim Ray and infielder Gary Sutherland.

The Houston Astros traded pitcher Cecil Upshaw to the Cleveland Indians for pitcher Jerry Johnson.

The Pittsburgh Pirates traded pitcher Nelson Briles and infielder Fernando Gonzalez to the Kansas City Royals for catcher outfielder Ed Kirkpatrick, infielder Kurt Bevacqua and first baseman Winston Cole.

The Baltimore Orioles traded outfielder Merv Rettenmund, shortstop Junior Kennedy and catcher Bill Woods to the Cincinnati Reds for pitcher Ross Grimsley and catcher Wallace Williams.

The Chicago White Sox sent pitcher Dan Neumeier to the Houston Astros to complete the trade for shortstop Hector Torres, which was announced in October.

The Montreal Expos traded relief pitcher Mike Marshall to the Los Angeles Dodgers for outfielder Willie Davis.

The Pittsburgh Pirates sold pitcher Luke Walker to the Detroit Tigers.

The Los Angeles Dodgers traded relief pitcher Pete Richert to the St. Louis Cardinals for outfielder Tommy Agee.

The Texas Rangers purchased outfielder-first baseman Terry Crowley from the Baltimore Orioles.

The New York Yankees purchased shortstop Jim Mason from the Texas Rangers.

The Philadelphia Phillies traded second baseman Denny Doyle to the California Angels for pitcher Aurelio Monteagudo and minor league outfielder Chris Coletta to complete the deal of last August in which Philadelphia acquired infielder Billy Grabarkewitz from California.

The Houston Astros traded outfielder Jimmy Wynn to the Los Angeles Dodgers for pitcher Claude Osteen and minor league pitcher David Culpepper.

The Detroit Tigers traded pitcher Mike Strahler to the Milwaukee Brewers for pitcher Ray Newman.

The California Angels traded catcher Jeff Torborg to the St. Louis Cardinals for pitcher John Andrews.

The Minnesota Twins traded catcher George Mitterwald to the Chicago Cubs for catcher Randy Handley.

The Texas Rangers purchased infielder Cesar Tovar from the Philadelphia Phillies.

The Philadelphia Phillies purchased pitcher Eddie Watt from the Baltimore Orioles.

The New York Yankees traded pitcher Lindy McDaniel to the Kansas City Royals for outfielder Lou Piniella and pitcher Ken Wright.

The New York Yankees obtained catcher Bill Sudakis from the Texas Rangers for a player to be named later or cash.

The Boston Red Sox traded pitchers John Curtis, Lynn McGlothen and Mike Garman to the St. Louis Cardinals for pitchers Reggie Cleveland and Diego Segui and minor league infielder Terry Hughes.

The Pittsburgh Pirates traded pitcher Bob Johnson to the Cleveland Indians for outfielder Bill Flowers.

The Montreal Expos sold outfielder Felipe Alou to the Milwaukee Brewers.

USC stars visit Garey

POMONA — Four University of Southern California football stars, including Allen Carter and Anthony Davis, will be the guest speakers at Garey High's football and cross country sports banquet Monday night at 7:30 p.m.

Carter, a former Bonita High running back, and Davis will be joined by teammates Ray Rodriguez and Charles Antrony at the banquet, which will be held in the Garey cafeteria.

Admission price for the banquet is $3.50, and tickets may be purchased at the Garey student store.

The banquet will honor the varsity and sophomore football teams from Garey and the cross country teams.

Sports news in brief

HANS "HANSI" HINTERSEER of Austria won the men's giant slalom Saturday at Val Disere, France and put his country further ahead at the opening of the new World Cup Ski Racing Season. Italians Helmut Schmalzi and Pero Gros placed second and third.

THIRD RANKED INDIANA has been tabbed the overwhelming favorite to repeat as Big Ten Basketball champion. Purdue was runnerup, as voted by 46 writers and broadcasters around the conference and Wisconsin third.

WOODY HAYES said he plans to hold six of his alloted 16 practices in Columbus before bringing his third-ranked Buckeyes to the west coast for the Rose Bowl game. The team will arrive in Los Angeles Dec. 20.

HENRY BIBBY, bidding to replace Dean Meminger as a starting guard for the New York Knicks, scored an NBA high 22 points and Walt Frazier added 25 as the Knicks defeatted Atlanta 117-100.

PERRY THOMPSON of Mammoth Lakes, Calif. won the first professional ski race in the giant slalom competition of the Benson and Hedges Grand Prix Saturday in Vail, Colo.

THE ST. LOUIS CARDINALS announced Saturday that they had traded pitcher Tom Murphy to the Milwaukee Brewers for infielder Bob Heise in a deal completed Friday before the midnight deadline for inter-league trades. Murphy is a former Angel hurler.

OFFICIALS of the waterlogged Shrine National Pro-Am Golf Tournament in Largo, Fla. Saturday slashed the prize money from $125,000 to $92,500 and cut the tourney back to 36 holes.

AMY ALCOTT, 17, Los Angeles, the 1973 USGA junior girls' champion, defeated Debbie Skinner, 19, Chula Vista, 2 and 1, Saturday to win the California Women's Amateur Golf Championship.

COLUMBIA, on the verge of clinching its North American Zone preliminary Davis Cup clash against Mexico, was forced to wait at least another day when rain halted play after the first two sets of Saturday's doubles match.

AL PAUL, Associate Director of Athletics at Columbia University since 1968, Saturday was named the Ivy League school's Athletic Director succeeding Kenneth Germann who is leaving to become Commissioner of the Southern Conference.

DUFFY DAUGHERTY, former Michigan St. football coach, Saturday was named 1973 recipient of the Walter Camp Football Foundation Award. Daugherty stepped down in 1972 after 19 years as head coach.

JOHN CAPPELLETTI, Penn State's Heisman Trophy winner, Saturday was named College Back of the Year and his coach, Joe Paterno, College Coach of the Year by the Washington Touchdown Club in Washington, D. C.

BILLY CASPER had a seven-stroke lead Saturday after 54 holes of the Hassan 11 Pro-Am Golf Tournament at the par-73 Dar Es Salam course in Rabat, Morocco.

MICHIGAN'S FOOTBALL SEASON is over legally and officially. Judge Fred W. Kaess ruled that Gerald Pye, a fan who field a class action law suit against the Big Ten vote which sends Ohio St. to the Rose Bowl, failed to show enough evidence to support his case. Pye withdrew his suit.

HUBERT "SHUCKS" PRUETT, a pitcher who held a rare mastery over Babe Ruth in the slugger's heyday, will receive an award from the St. Louis chapter of the Baseball Writers Association of America next month.

CLINT LONGLEY, a junior quarterback, passed for 341 yards and four touchdowns Saturday to lead Abilene Christian College to a 42-14 victory over previously unbeaten Elon (N.C.) in the 18th annual NAIA Champion Bowl in Shreveport, La.

Chaffey duo too much for MSAC

Chaffey controlled the boards at both ends of the court, taking a 47-25 advantage with Kovach pulling down 19. Center Randy Nickolei grabbed 10.

Besides Melugin, two other Mounties were in double figures as center Gary Nash popped for 13 and forward Carl William hit 10. Nash took only nine rebounds and Melugin and Williams combined for 11 more.

Forward Russ Williams, a freshman from San Gorgonio, was the only other Panther in double figures with 12 points.

Both teams return to action Wednesday in the first round of the Invitational.

The Panthers face L. A. Valley in the 9 p.m. feature and the Mounties play L. A. Harbor in an early game at 5:50 p.m. Cross-valley rival Citrus College opens the tournament with Fullerton at 9:30 a.m.

Mounties fourth

FULLERTON — Mt. San Antonio College finished fourth in the Fullerton State College Wrestling Tournament Saturday afternoon.

El Camino won with 108 points, Fullerton was second with 77.5, Golden West placed third with 62.5 points, MSAC 56.5 points, and Palomar was fifth with 50 points.

Steve Pivac (118 pound class) was the Mounties' top grappler placing second while winning three of four matches. The loss was his first of the year. Mike Castillo (126) Richard Haden (167) and Carl Ciarfalio (heavyweight) all placed third winning four of five matches.

APC, C-M lose, P-P wins

Azusa Pacific came up with its worst game of the season against the tallest team it had faced Saturday night.

The result was a 96-59 thumping at the hands of St. Mary's as the Gaels won the Aggie Invitational basketball tournament at San Luis Obispo.

In other games, Pomona-Pitzer won an 81-64 game from Cal Lutheran at Thousand Oaks, and Claremont-Mudd was edged, 81-80 by Pt. Loma College in San Diego.

At San Luis Obispo, St. Mary's jumped off to a 17-4 lead over APC and then coasted as the Cougars never did get going. The Gaels started a lineup that was 6-9, 6-8, 6-8, 6-6 and 6-0 and for once the Cougars were at a considerable height disadvantage.

"We just didn't play well as a team," coach Cliff Hamlow said. "We didn't shoot well or rebound well." The loss was the worst since Cal Poly walloped the Cougars 101-62 in the 1965-66 season.

APC hit on only 24 of 74 field goals (32 per cent) while the Gaels connected on 42 of 79 (53 per cent). St. Mary's also held a 57-35 edge in rebounding.

Forward Mike Rozenski scored 18 points and grabbed 14 rebounds and earned MVP recognition. Dennis Vanzant scored 19 points for APC and was named to the all-tournament team. Others selected were Maurice Harper of St. Mary's (22 points), John Parker of Cal Poly SLO, and Bill Belander of Sonoma St.

Down in San Diego, Ted Ducey's Stags suffered their second loss of the week in a last-second heartbreaker. Three turnovers in the waning minutes spelled the difference.

C-M, down by as many as 10 points in the first half, came back to knot the score, 40-40 at halftime. In the second half, the Stags led by as many as 12 points until Pt. Loma got hot. That and a couple of turnovers at the end cut the Stag lead to 80-79 with 18 seconds left.

At this juncture, C-M made its most critical turnover. Inbounding the ball, they turned it over. Pt. Loma took the ball and Steve Williams started to shoot and was fouled with two seconds left in the game. He sank both free throws to pull it out.

"I thought we played well overall," a disappointed Ducey remarked. "We rebounded well and did a good job overall, but we made the turnovers at critical times on which our inexperience showed up."

George Glonka led the Stags with 19 points and Norm Richards had 17. Four of the five Stag starters were in double figures. Mark Endresen, a 6-5 forward, led Pt. Loma with 25.

The Stags now are 2-3 for the season.

Pomona-Pitzer also found itself in a 40-40 tie at the half in its game with Cal Lutheran. But the Sagehens came back to outscore the Kingsmen 41-24 in the second period. Freshman center Geoff Northrup led the 'Hens with 23 points and 15 rebounds, his finest effort yet. Norm Carter, moved back to guard, and 22 points. Playmaker Scott Peze scored 14 points and 5-8 guard grabbed nine rebounds.

The Sagehens now are 2-2 for the season and host Southern Calif. College Tuesday.

Aztecs' Freitas is best

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jesse Freitas of San Diego State was the nation's leader in passing and total offense this year, according to statistics released by the NCAA, but he had to share honors with two other senior quarterbacks.

Danny White of Arizona State, the leader in yards per play, smashed seven NCAA records while David Jaynes of Kansas wound up the season as No. 3 on the list for avoiding interceptions.

In passing, Freitas finished on top with an average of 20.6 completions per game, hitting 227 of 347 passes for the season (65.4 per cent) for 2,993 yards and 21 touchdowns. Gary Sheide of Brigham Young was second, David Harper of Davidson third and Jaynes fourth.

Freitas led in total offense with 263.7 yards a game compared to 260.2 for White, who was second, with Sheide third at 234.3.

White, however, set NCAA major college records for season and career for yards per pass (9.85 this season, 9.14 for career—surpassing Jim Plunkett's old record by more than a yard) and yards per play (8.81 this season, 7.94 for career). He also set career marks for touchdowns running and passing, points responsible for, and yards per pass completion.

STATELINE, Nev. (UPI) — Ohio State has been made a one-point favorite over the University of Southern California for their Jan. 1 meeting in the Rose Bowl.

In odds released by Harrah's Tahoe Racebook, National Champion Alabama was listed as a seven-point pick over fourth-ranked Notre dame in the Sugar Bowl, while fifth-ranked Penn State was a five-point choice over Louisiana State in the Orange Bowl.

For the other post-season games, Kansas was picked by two points over North Carolina State in the Liberty Bowl, Texas three over Nebraska in the Cotton, Arizona State 12 over Pittsburgh in the Fiesta, Florida seven over Miami of Ohio in the Tangerine, Georgia one over Maryland in the Peach, Missouri seven over Auburn in the Sun, Houston eight over Tulane in the Astro and Texas Tech two over Tennessee in the Gator.

Giants honor grid players

POMONA — Ganesha Hill football players will be honored at their annual football awards banquet Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Lair, Ganesha's student center.

Roland Ortmayer, head football coach of La Verne College, will be guest speaker for the evening. Ganesha head coach Garry Norvell will be presenting the awards.

Student Council is sponsoring the banquet under the supervision of Jim Lacey, Athletic Commissioner, with Zonta Club, a girls' service organization on campus, preparing and serving desserts.

Sophomore and junior varsity teams are also included in the presentation. Among the awards presented will be the offensive and defensive most valuable players and outstanding offensive and defensive linemen.

UCLA soccer team wins, 3-2

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The UCLA soccer team defeated the University of San Francisco, 3-2, Saturday to win the western regional NCAA intercollegiate championship.

Firooz Fowzi scored the winning goal with 14 minutes left to send UCLA to the national finals in Miami Jan. 24.

ILTF gets nay vote on world events

BOSTON (UPI) — The Committee of Management for the International Lawn Tennis Federation voted Saturday against sanctioning World Team Tennis events in 1974.

The decision, reached by four committee members in Boston to attend the windup of the Commercial Union Masters tournament, makes it illegal for players governed by the ILTF to participate in the infant league which is due to start next May.

Allan Heyman, ILTF president, said the decision will stand until "an extraordinary general meeting of the ILTF" can be held Jan. 26 in London. Heyman said all 99 member countries will be allowed to vote on the final decision.

Heyman told a news conference the ruling was based "on the information provided to date by WTT to the ILTF" and added that the new league still could change plans, making an agreement between the two groups possible.

"If they come tomorrow and say they're moving their season to right after the European season...you can't tie your hands," said Heyman in stressing that the ruling is not final.

ILTF officials contend WWT, a 16-city league, will cut the heart out of the European summer circuit, which includes Wimbledon.

Behind the issue is the running fued between ILTF and the Association of Tennis Professionals. ATP members refused to participate at Wimbledon last summer in support of suspended Yugoslav Nikki Pilic, who was ousted from the tournament after refusing to play on his country's Davis Cup squad.

A tentative settlement between the ATP and ILTF reached before the U.S. Open never was ratified because the pros maintained they wanted equal representation with the official body on any committee set up to guide the future of tennis.

Heyman refused to discuss the vote by the members present saying any conversation on the matter would be unfair at this time.

Heyman said if the general meeting rules against WTT sanction, those players participating in team events would be unable to play in national and international tournaments.

SC rally stuns Illini, 71-60

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (UPI) — Junior guard Gus Williams, playing the entire second half with four fouls, scored 16 points in the final 20 minutes Saturday to rally Southern California from 15 points behind to a 71-60 victory over Illinois.

Pacific Eight power USC trailed 42-27 with 16:44 remaining and 44-30 with 15:04 left on the clock. But the Trojans outscored Illinois 21-6 in a six-minute stretch, including eight points by the speedy Williams, to take a 51-50 lead.

Illinois led again at 58-57 with 4:22 remaining, but USC reeled off 10 straight points, six by Williams, to put the game away.

Illinois guard Jeff Dawson led all scorers with 26 points and junior forward Rick Schmidt scored 20 for the Illini.

Goring, Vachon lead Kings, 3-0

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Butch Goring returned from an injury to score two goals and Rogie Vachon posted his second shutout of the year Saturday night as the Los Angeles Kings blanked the Atlanta Flames 3-0 in an NHL contest.

It took Goring only 2:32 into the game to get back in the flow after being out of the lineup for eight games with a separated shoulder. He added his sixth goal of the year with 1:12 left in the match.

On his first period score, Goring took a pass from Bob Nevin on a two-on-one breakaway to beat netminder Dan Bouchard from six feet out.

Although that was the only goal Vachon needed in registering his 19th career shutout, Mike Corrigan fired in an insurance goal late in the second period.

On Corrigan's fifth goal of the year, Frank St. Marseille picked up an assist for his 16th point in the last 11 contests. The closest Atlanta came to scoring was on a breakaway effort by Leon Rochfort 2:30 minutes in the middle period.

But Vachon smothered that effort along with 19 other Atlanta shot attempts. The Kings' defense contained an Atlanta team that had taken 77 shots in their previous two matches.

The victory marked the first time this season Los Angeles, now fifth in the West, has won three games in a row.

Four no-hitters

HOUSTON (UPI) — Houston pitchers have hurled four no-hitters since the Astros entered the National League in 1962. Don Wilson pitched two masterpieces and one each was turned in by Ken Johnson and Don Nottebart.

Big Eight to consider lifting Sooner TV ban

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The Big Eight Conference concluded a three-day meeting Friday with a promise that the question of lifting the two-year ban on televising Oklahoma University football games will be considered at its next session.

Conference Commissioner Charles Neinas said the faculty representatives and athletic directors will study the Oklahoma matter at its meeting Jan. 6 in conjunction with the NCAA convention in San Francisco.

Oklahoma Governor David Hall made a personal appeal before the conference officials Thursday.

Hall said he did not question the conference's right to discipline OU or to ban it from bowl appearances, but that "no group of individuals has the right to deny the citizens of Oklahoma to see their football team on television."

Hicks wins Outland Award, chosen nation's best tackle

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. (UPI) — John Hicks, Ohio State University's All-America offensive tackle and runner-up in the voting for the Heisman Trophy, has been named winner of the Outland Award.

The trophy is awarded annually by the Football Writers Association to the nation's best guard or tackle.

Hicks, one of two Ohio State players on the writers' All-America football team, finished in front of Oklahoma guard Lucious Selmon in the voting for the Outland Award.

Hicks said it was the "greatest honor" he had ever received.

"It was something I've dreamed about all my life," he said. "It has been my goal to win it, but you never really think something like that can happen to you.

"I tried not to put personal goals ahead of team goals this year, but the Outland was always in the back of my mind. Hicks said.

"I'm delighted to hear he has won the Outland Trophy. I know of no athlete since I've been at Ohio State who deserves it more than John Hicks.

Hayes said Hicks, a 6-foot, 3-inch 258 pound senior from Cleveland, "is the best lineman I've ever coached, including Jim Parker (formerly of the Baltimore Colts and now in professional football's Hall of Fame)."

Parker won the Outland Award in 1956.

Hicks was Ohio State's top offensive lineman in nine of its 10 games this season, based on blocking efficiency. He missed the entire 1971 season because of knee surgery and was granted another year of eligibility.

Hicks will be the only player in Big Ten history to play in three Rose Bowl games when he takes the field against Southern California on New Year's Day.

RIDE 'EM CHIEF! — Nate Allen (48), Kansas City Chiefs defensive back rides Oakland's Fred Biletnikoff into ground after 12-yard gain. Raiders went on to whip Chiefs, 37-7.

Raiders rout Chiefs, 37-7

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — Marv Hubbard and Charlie Smith ran for 200 yards between them, including a touchdown apiece, in leading the Oakland Raiders to a 37-7 rout of the Kansas City Chiefs Saturday and a step closer to the AFC West title.

The victory gave the Raiders an 8-4-1 record and put them a game ahead of the Denver Broncos, who meet the San Diego Chargers Sunday and then play Oakland next week. The Chiefs suffered their fifth loss compared to six victories and two ties and thus were eliminated from any chance for post-season play.

Hubbard, who usually plays his best against the Chiefs, ran for more than 100 yards and scored on a 31-yard dash up the middle in the first half when the Raiders opened a 20-0 lead.

Smith tallied on a 10-yard run in the fourth quarter when the Raiders converted two pass interceptions into 14 points to make it a rout.

The other Oakland scores came on a pair of passes by Ken Stabler—a nine-yarder to Fred Biletnikoff and a three-yarder to Cliff Branch—and George Blanda added field goals of 20, 28 and 27 yards.

The Oakland defense, which had allowed only three touchdowns in five previous games, shut out the Chiefs for 38 minutes and 43 seconds before Mike Livingston ran 17 yards on a broken play for Kansas City's only score.

The Raiders got their first break in the third minute of the game when Ed Podolak fumbled on a punt return and Pete Banaszak fell on the ball at the Kansas City 46.

Hubbard churned out 25 yards in four carries and Biletnikoff grabbed a 12-yard pass before taking a nineyarder from Stabler for a 7-0 lead.

Hubbard then ran for his touchdown and Blanda added two field goals for the 20-0 halftime edge.

The Raiders took the opening kickoff of the second half 70 yards with Blanda adding his 23rd field goal of the season to make it 23-0. Livingston followed with his score and then George Atkinson and Nehemiah Wilson picked off pass before taking a nine-yar- Pete Beathard respectively to set up Smith and Branch's fourth quarter touchdowns and complete the scoring.

Nastase tops Okker during tournament

BOSTON (UPI) — Ilie Nastase of Romania completed a hat trick of victories in the Masters Tennis Tournmanet Saturday when he beat Holland's Tom Okker in four sets in the 1973 renewal of the event.

Nastase won the two-hour match, 6-3, 7-5, 4-6, 6-3, but at no time did the standard of tennis rise above the mediocre because of a series of unforced errors committed by both men.

Nastase is now 3-4 for the year against the Dutchman and trails him 4-8 lifetime.

The Romanian, noted for his bouts of temperament, was a model of court manners Saturday, but the 27-year-old Dutchman became "Tom the Terrible," by questioning nearly every call made against him.

Okker got into the final by default Friday when John Newcombe of Australia, the reigning U.S. and Australian Open champion, had to withdraw when he held match point against the Dutchman. He injured ligaments below the right knee when getting up for an overhead.

The $15,000 prize brought the 27-year-old Nastase's earnings for the year to $228,750. Okker, 29, picked up $10,000 to bring his 1973 aggregate to $173,500.

Okker started very shakily and for the first two sets he struggled to stay in contention because of an errant first service. His second ball was so shallow and weak that it enabled Nastase to dictate the tactics and force the Dutchman to press. But midway throgh the third set Okker's first ball began to find the corners and then the match was really joined.

Nastase raced to a 4-0 lead in the first set but was broken in the eighth game to 30 when he served for the set. But he hit straight back in the ninth game to break Okker at 15 for the set.

Vikings crush Packers

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI) — The playoff-bound Minnesota Vikings, led by two Fran Tarkenton touchdown passes and the running of rookie Chuck Foreman, showed no mercy for numerous Green Bay mistakes Saturday, crushing the Packers 31-7.

The Vikings, rebounding from the first shutout loss in 11 years a week earlier, scored touchdowns following a fumble recovery, an interception, a short punt and a blocked field goal and then added a field goal after another interception.

John Brockington provided the only real cause for joy among the Packers by rushing for 124 yards in 27 carries to climb over the 1,000-yard mark for the third time in as many years as a pro—a feat never before accomplished in the National Football League.

Brockington, who received a standing ovation when it was announced, has 1,002 yards with one game to go.

But the hero of the game as far as the Vikings were concerned was cornerback Bobby Bryant who intercepted three Jerry Tagge passes and returned one of them 46 yards for a touchdown.

Bryant's runback came in the first quarter less than a minute after the Vikes took a 7-0 lead on a 21-yard TD pass from Tarkenton to Stu Voigt. That score came after Brockington fumbled the ball on his first carry of the game and Jeff Siemon recovered on the Packer 46 midway through the first period.

The Vikings made it 21-0 with 4:50 gone in the second period when Foreman bolted 50 yards for a TD on the first play following a 23-yard Green Bay punt. Foreman, a leading candidate for rookie of the year honors, finished the day with 100 yards in 19 carries to give him 785 for the season.

Minnesota increased its margin to 28-0 when Tarkenton connected with John Gilliam on a 20-yard scoring strike with 26 seconds left in the half. The score capped a 59-yard drive after Alan Page blocked a 42-yard field goal attempt by Chester Marcol.

The Vikings finished their scoing midway through the third period when Fred Cox booted a 15-yard field goal, while the Packers finally got on the scoreboard when Jim Del Gaizo, replacing Tagge, passed 17 yards to rookie Barry Smith with less than two minutes left in the game.

Tarkenton, who didn't play the second half, completed 8 of 12 passes for 79 yards.

CS Fullerton soccer team falls in finals, 3-1

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (UPI) — Kevin Missey scored two goals Saturday as the University of Missouri at St. Louis defeated California State at Fullerton, 3-1, to win the NCAA college division soccer championship.

Missey opened the scoring at 4:46 of the first half and scored the final goal of the game with 10:10 remaining. Mark Le Grand scored the other Missouri goal.

Missouri, the only undefeated team in the two-day, four-team tourney, finished the season with an 11-0-3 record. The loss was Fullerton's third against 15 victories.

In a game for third place, Adelphia University defeated the University of Baltimore, 10. The victory was the fourth shutout and set a new tournament record of .2 goals allowed per game.

Bruin 'Bible' on sale

LOS ANGELES — UCLA's award-winning basketball news media guide again is being offered to fans this season.

For past two years it has been voted "Best in the Nation" by the United States Basketball Writers' Assn. and the Bruins' new 1973-74 edition again figures to be one of the finest publications of its kind in the country.

It is the "Bible" of Bruin basketball and contains all the facts, figures and features about the NCAA champions, the teams that have won the National Collegiate titles for seven straight seasons and nine of the last 10 years.

The 1973 Bob Hope Desert Classic distributed a record-breaking $545,000 to 22 desert area charities.

Mrs. Bob Hope, president of Eisenhower Medical Center in Palm Desert, accepted the largest allotment, a check for $380,000. Other large awards went to United Way and United Fund, $61,000; Desert Hospital (gastro-intestinal lab), $25,000; Foundation for Retarded Children of the Desert, $12,500; and Desert Museum, $10,000.

Topping last year's distribution by more than $65,000, the 1973 total brought to more than $3.1 million the amount raised by the Classic since 1960. Over the years the funds, distributed under the auspices of the Palm Desert Foundation, Inc., have been dividied among 34 area charities.

The Bob Hope Desert Classic for the last several years has topped all other charity tournaments on the Professional Golf Association tour. The 15th annual Hope Classic will be played Feb. 6-10 at Bermuda Dunes, Eldorado, Indian Wells and La Quinta Country Clubs. NBC will televise the finals at Indian Wells.

INTERNATIONAL GOODwill matches between American and Japanese collegiate players will take place Dec. 21-22 at Massacre Canyon Country Club in Gillman Hot Springs.
country will compete in the Forty players from each 54-hole matches. The first round on Friday, Dec. 21, will be four-ball (partner best ball) competition and the final two rounds on Saturday will be singles, or individual head-to-head matches.

USC golf coach Stan Wood, president of the Golf Coaches Assn. of America, will be the nonplaying captain of the United States team.

The 40 American players will be chosen from about 20 colleges and universities, including Claremont-Mudd USC, UCLA, Stanford, Cal, UC Riverside, Cal State Long Beach, Cal State Northridge, Cal State L. A., Cal State Fullerton, UC Irvine, Redlands, El Camino College, San Diego State, U. S. International and College of The Desert.

IRENE MCINTOSH of Pomona dropped her first ace recently at Western Hills Country Club in Carbon Canyon. Irene used a seven iron on the 112-yard No. 6 hole to get her hole-in-one.

JOAN EGGINGTON turned in a best low gross score of 223 recently to win the Palm Lake Women's Club President's Cup Tournament. Low net honors went to Emily Miller with a 175.

In the recent turkey shoot, Marie Muchmore turned in a low gross 73, and Mrs. Eggington carded a low net 33.

Phyllis Base had the fewest putts for the month of November with 30.

Dallas, Redskins watch points closely

By United Press International

If you thought the Big Ten had a strange method for picking its Rose Bowl representative, wait'll you see how the National Football League may wind up choosing its NFC Eastern Division champion.

In the good ol' days, when two teams tied for first place, they met on the field in a playoff game to snap the tie.

But that was before the NFL was divided into six diviisions by the merger in 1970. Now there's no room on the schedule for a playoff game if two teams are deadlocked for first place. So, some other methods had to be dreamed up for breaking ties.

And that's why the Sunday's nationally televised Dallas-Washington game could have one of the strangest endings ever if it's close.

To put it as simply as possible, Dallas and Washington will end up in a tie with 10-4 records in the NFC East if Dallas beats Washington and both teams win their final games next week.

Since the clubs would have the same records against each other and the same records in the division and in the conference, it would come down to the number of points the two teams scored against each other.

Since Washington won the first game 14-7, Dallas must try to win this one by eight or more points.

That could lead to such things as Washington trailing by six points and killing the clock. Teams have been accused of settling for ties before but Washington could "settle" for a close loss and win the title.

Tom Landry, the Dallas coach, said, "I'm really not even thinking about the point difference. It could dictate some decision late in the game but if we worry about the point spread, that's the worst thing we could do. We just hope to win and be ahead by seven or more when it's all over."

George Allen, the Washington coach, said, "to me, all that talk about points is he worst thing you can get involved in. If you go into a game that way, you won't play aggressive football."

The oddsmakers are listing Dallas a 4½ point favorite, probably because of the Redskins' shaky quarterback situation. Both Sonny Jurgensen and Billy Kilmer are limping and Kilmer was hospitalized with stomach cramps earlier in the week. Jurgensen came off the bench in the final seven minutes to beat the N.Y. Giants last week after Kilmer limped off but Jurgy's ankle is ailing, too.

Allen has indicated he'll be happy to kick a field goal and lose by six if he trails by nine in the last minute but he adds, "we're going into this game to win. That would solve all our problems."

Things will even be more complicated if Dallas wins by exactly seven points.

If that happens, the crown will be decided by something called "point differential"—the respective places the two teams stand in the di-

Six schools dominate Writers' grid team

CHICAGO (UPI) — Six universities headed by national champion Alabama placed two players each among the 25 collegians named All Americans Saturday by the Football Writers of America.

The No. 1 rated Crimson Tide landed offensive tackle Buddy Brown and linebacker Woodrow Lowe.

Other schools with two players were Michigan, with defensive lineman Dave Gallagher and defensive back Dave Brown; Southern California, with wide receiver Lynn Swann and offensive lineman Booker Brown; No. 4 ranked Notre Dame with tight end Dave Casper and defensive back Mike Townsend; Texas with center Bill Wyman and running back Roosevelt Leaks, and Ohio State with offensive tackle John Hicks and linebacker Randy Gradishar.

The team, announced by Tom McEewen of the Tampa Tribune, president of the FWA. was picked by an eight-man selection committee after preliminary voting by 1,100 members.

Only one sophomore was on the team, Alabama's Lowe. Three juniors were named, Leaks, placekicker Ricky Townsend of Tennessee, and Brown of Michigan.

The offensive team: WR-Lynn Swann, Southern California TE-Dave Casper, Notre Dame OL-Buddy Brown, Alabama OL-Booker Brown, Southern California OL-John Hicks, Ohio state OL-Bill Yoest, North Carolina State C-Bill Wyman, Texas QB-Danny White, Arizona State RB-John Cappelletti, Penn State RB-Kermit Johnson, UCLA RB-Roosevelt Leaks, Texas PK-Ricky Townsend, Tennessee PT-Chuck Ramsey, Wake Forest

The defensive team: D-Tony Cristiani, Miami, Fla. DL-John Dutton, Nebraska DL-Dave Gallagher, Michigan DL-Lucious Selmon, Oklahoma LB-Warren Capone, LSU LB-Woodrow Lowe, Alabama LB-Randy Gradishar, Ohio State LB-Cleveland Vann, Oklahoma State LB-Dave Brown, Michigan DB-John Moseley, Missouri DB-Mike Townsend, Notre Dame Ret-Steve Orom, Utah

Publicist, Wilt can't get along

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Ans Dilley, publicist for the American Basketball Association's San Diego Conquistadors, has resigned effective Dec. 31, general manager Alex Groza said Thursday.

Dilley said he was unable to get along with coach Wilt Chamberlain.

"He's going around the country saying how lousy the San Diego media is," Dilley said. "When I try to make an appointment for someone, Wilt's always too busy. The guy is just impossible to work with, and since I'm not having any success at doing my job, there's no point in taking money under false pretenses.

Dallas must beat 'Skins by 8 points

vision in points scored and points allowed.

What that would mean is that in the final games (Washington hosts Philadelphia and Dallas is at St. Louis) both teams would be trying to run up the score.

Allen has been criticized in the past for calling time out in the final minute to score a rub-it-in touchdown but no one could fault him for doing it in that situation because it could mean the title. Imagine a team leading 28-0 and calling time out to score again.

At the present time, Dallas is first in points scored and Washington is fourth while Washington is first in points allowed and Dallas is second— so Dallas has a slight edge.

Incidentally, if the teams should tie in the points category in both the division and all the league games, then it would finally come down to a coin flip.

Also, there's the wild card possibility, too. Atlanta is 8-4 now and could wind up tied with the second place team in the NFC East. Then that "point differential" system in the conference would decide things —and Atlanta has a slight edge.

Confused? If you're not, you're probably weren't paying close enough attention.

And we haven't even bothered to mention the infamous AFC Central division where three teams—Pittsburgh, Cleveland and Cincinnati—are tied for first place with two weeks left.

The Cleveland at Cincinnati contest will help clear up the muddled situation in that division. Cleveland can eliminate the Bengals with a victory since they beat Cincinnati in the first game. The Browns, though, will be still alive if they lose—but just barely.

Five of the eight playoff berths are still up for grabs. Only Minnesota, Miami and Los Angeles have already clinched. While Washington, Dallas and Atlanta are the three teams in contention for the last two NFC berths, seven AFC teams are still alive in the battle for the final three AFC berths.

In Sunday's other games involving teams with a shot at the playoffs, St. Louis is at Atlanta, Houston is at Pittsburgh, New England is at Buffalo and Denver is at San Diego. Miami will attempt to set a two-year record with its 26th victory in that span when it goes to Baltimore.

In the meaningless games involving teams already eliminated, the New York Jets are at Philadelphia, San Francisco is at New Orleans and Chicago is at Detroit.

Denver can break jinx in San Diego

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — The Denver Broncos face their first "must" game in history Sunday when they meet the San Diego Chargers with two things going against them.

A Bronco loss would eliminate the team from the American Football Conference Western Division race no matter who wins Saturday's Oakland-Kansas City game.

Quarterback Charley Johnson, who leads the conference in touchdown passes and passing yardage, suffered a bruised thigh against Dallas last week and was listed as questionable for the Chargers game. Steve Ramsey, who has completed four of nine passes on the season, is in reserve.

The second problem facing the Broncos is they have not won in San Diego since 1962, the only year they had a .500 season, until this year.

The Chargers, with a 2-9-1 record, have appeared to be just playing out the season, but coach Ron Waller wants a victory to improve his chances for employment next season.

John Unitas, beset by arm and knee problems, could start at quarterback if he feels ready. Otherwise, Waller said he was considering starting rookie Dan Fouts. Wayne Clark has been directing the razzle-dazzle, but punchless offense since Waller took over for Harland Svare.

MARC TARDIFF
. . . Sharks' star

Marc Tardif has it tough in California

LOS ANGELES — His name is on tthe Stanley Cup, not once but twice. He speaks French better than English but now finds himself in a place where the natives hardly speak either, and the closest thing to a popular French restaurant is Jacques en le Box on the corner.

He plays hockey for a living but he don't need mukluks to get to the arena, only a freeway map.

"This is very tough," says Marc Tardif, the Los Angeles Shark's left-winger. "We don't know many people here. I've got troubles with my English too, but I think in a couple of months I'll be all right."

For Tardif, the move from Montreal to Los Angeles might cause linguistic, but certainly not financial problems. The Sharks signed Tardif to a three-year contract that is estimated to call for $100,000 per year.

"You have to go where the money is," he says. "I was underpaid in Montreal. If they offer you so much money and you don't take it, you can just leave it."

Lacking a big name, the Sharks have billed Tardif as a superstar who would score 50 goals in his first WHA season.

In three full seasons and part of a fourth with the Candiens, Marc scored 3, 19, 31 and 25 goals. The Canadiens won the Stanley Cup last season and two years before that, so his name is engraved forever on that glorious silver birdbath.

While Los Angeles fans waited expectantly for the smooth-skating Frenchman to ring the red-light, Tardif had to settle for a handful of assists and no goals. It wasn't until his tenth contest that Tardif tallied his first goal for the Sharks. In the meantime, the Los Angeles entry was 3-7 and going nowhere fast.

Slowly Tardif, who didn't report to camp until Oct. 1 when his Montreal contract ended, started ringing the bell. After 26 games he had 11 goals including two in Chicago and another pair against Winnipeg at the Sports Arena.

Sears Highway Passenger Tire Guarantee

If you do not receive the number of miles specified because of your tire becoming unserviceable due to (1) defects. (2) normal road hazards. or (3) tread wear-out.

We will: At our option, exchange it for a new tire or give you a refund charging in either case only the proportion of the then current selling price plus Federal Excise tax that represents mileage used. If the tire is unserviceable due to any of the above causes before 10% of the guaranteed mileage is received, the replacement or refund will be made with no charge for mileage received.

Nail punctures will be repaired at no charge. Guarantee applies to tires on vehicles used for private family purposes.

Two steel belts combined with two plies of polyester cord puts the tread flat against the road to help reduce tire squirm and wiggle . . . resulting in good traction and long mileage. And polyester means a smooth, comfortable ride, too.

Ralston says U.S. netters will be back

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Dennis Ralston has already forgotten the massacre of Cleveland.

The U.S. Davis Cup team, he says confidently, will be back in 1974.

"I'm very enthused about our chances," said the captain and coach of America's Davis Cup contingent. "I think we have a darn good chance to win it all next year."

Strong words after what happened to Stan Smith and company against the rackets of Rod Laver and John Newcombe at Cleveland last weekend. Australia shut out the United States 5-0.

"I don't think the defeat was really as bad as it looked," insisted Ralston. "If we could have won those close matches on the first day, I definitely think the final results would have been different.

"But we got way down after losing on the opening day and you just can't do that against a tremendous team like the Australians we faced."

Ralston, 31, named a nine-man squad during the past week for 1974 and it included Jimmy Conners, who did not play on the team this year.

In the past, Ralston and Connors haven't been exactly the best of friends

"I hope we'll have Jimmy next year," the U.S. captain declared, "and I understand he wants to play for us. I don't have any animosity toward him and I don't think he has any toward me He would be a very sttrong addition."

Against the veteran team of Laver and Newcombe, Ralston needs all the help he can get.

"I know people think time is on our side because of the Australians' age," the American coach said, "but this is a great Australian team and one more year isn't going to make much ifference. They won't be that much older. They'll be just as tough"

Ralston took over the U.S. team in 1968 and guided it to five consecutive Davis Cup triumphs—before Cleveland.

Of course, old pros Laver and Newcombe weren't available to the Austtrailians until tthis year.

"You don't like to lose," admitted the former University of Southern California tennis star, "but I think the Davis Cup is more meaningful now that Australia can use its best players.

"The Australians don't want to lose the Cup either They want to keep it to revitalize tennis in their counttry."

Ralston was asked who he considered the best tennis player in the world.

"That's a hard question," he replied, "because there's really no one dominant player any more But I think if I had to answer the question going on this year, I'd say either Stan Smith, John Newcombe or Ilie Nastase.

"If I had to pick one player to win one match, though, I'd pick Stan Smith."

Ralston has sold his home in Bakersfield, Calif., and moved his family to Palm Springs, Calif., where he is director of tennis for the new Sunrise Country Club, a $40 million, 768-unit condominium community now under construction.

Sunrise Country Club will be the site of Davis Cup competition Jan 11-13 between America and either Mexico or Colombia, which will meet next weekend.

Gambling a sure thing in nationwide interest

By DAVID SMOTHERS
UPI Senior Editor

More Americans are betting more money on more gambles today than ever before.

The total amount being wagered is an elusive one but authoritative estimates range from a low of $30-$40 billion to the area of $100 billion annually. In one five-month period in 1972 investigated by the Justice Department it projected $30 billion to $60 billion bet illegally during these months alone.

Legal betting also has soared, with millions of people taking legal flyers in seven state lotteries, at the race tracks, at 112 Off Track Betting parlors in New York, at gambling enclaves such as Las Vegas, and right down to church bingo suppers. Some $3 million a day is bet in this fashion in New York alone. In New York City the illegal "numbers" game runs to $1 billion a year or more on top of that, and no one knows how much New Yorkers bet under the counter with bookies.

To people who bet it probably will come as no surprise that football is where the heaviest illegal action is—pro football, college football, high school football. The action is hot. Some fear gambling could ruin the sport.

These are the general conclusions of a United Press International survey of government agencies, policemen, prosecutors, state and federal agents, gamblers and bookies in major cities across the nation.

These sources reported:

—Legalization has dangled the betting lure before untold numbers of people who would not have known how to get a bet down a few years ago.

Gambling is becoming a way of life in some parts of the country.

Take New York. Gamblers Anonymous there reports a Brooklyn postal worker had never laid a bet in his life until an Off Track Betting (OTB) shop opened in his neighborhood. He got $5,000 into debt, but still rushed past an empty refrigerator and two hungry kids to bet the last $16 in his pocket at the OTB.

There are "Las Vegas nights," with blackjack, poker and dice, at Roman Catholic churches and at synagogues in New York City. Housewives worked as bookies for a $3-million-a-year gambling ring there. A $5 million-a-year gambling and loan shark operation catered primarily to Wall Street brokers and executives.

High rollers

A man who should know, Shannon L. Bybee of the Nevada Gaming Control Board, said, "People are certainly betting more money than they ever have before. I think there are more middle income people who are betting now. The (Las Vegas) Strip used to operate mostly for the high rollers. That is shifting now. More people generally are willing to gamble than they used to be."

GARDENA POKER PARLOR — A loophole in California law allows communities to license poker parlors. In such towns as Gardena, men and women play draw poker (no stud allowed by law).

—Legalized gambling is also a constant bait to cities and states in search of fast cash and yearning to get a piece of presently illegal action.

It has not, with exceptions, altogether proved the bonanza many had hoped. Nevertheless, even Washington, D.C., is considering legalizing the numbers game, which ranks behind football and ahead of horses as the second most lucrative gambling activity.

In New Jersey, there is a push on to install gambling casinos in Atlantic City.

The temptation to make some or all forms of gambling legal has gone national. A federal gambling commission is currently assessing the pros and cons of lawful betting.

A familiar argument for legalization is that if a state or city gets in on gambling, its take will go to a good cause and the crime syndicate emperors of illegal betting will suffer.

Yet, in New York, which must rank as one of the most gambling cities in the nation, Police Sgt. Edward Dee said OTB merely "takes the nuisance bettor away from the bookmaker. Maybe 10 or 20 per cent of his action."

"No tax" lure

Lt. Ray Sommerhoff, vice squad chief of the Dade County (Miami) Public Safety Department, concurred: "People will always bet with the illegal guys —they give better odds and there are no taxes."

Besides your friendly neighborhood bookie will let you have credit.

—The federal government and local agencies, through wide use of wiretaps authorized by the Uniform Crime Act of 1970, is managing to shut down most of the old fashioned betting parlors and interstate layoff headquarters.

In many big cities, bookies are so afraid of the telephone they tell their customers, "Don't call us, we'll call you." Federal prosecutors feel confident they are making life increasingly tough for the old line mobsters who get the top skim off practically all the nation's illegal gambling.

Perhaps. But they haven't stopped it.

A spokesman for the Massachusetts attorney general's office said "Most of our raids are the result of months of wiretapping. We knock them off, but the penalties aren't that big and they're back in business."

Rich bookies

Detective George Andrew of the Baltimore, M.D., vice squad said, "A good bookie can make, and probably does, upward of $20,000 a year easy.

"The guys we arrest are mostly top level men and about 98 per cent are convicted. "But, too often, they're slapped with only a $1,000 fine which to them is nothing. They make at least that in a day. The best we can do is keep 'em scared, keep 'em moving, and arrest as many as possible."

—The popular notion that the high rollers go for the horses is false. Football's season may be a relatively short one, but it is the game people bet big on, whether it is played by professionals in their 30s, collegians, or teen-age boys.

Sgt. David Green of the Dade County sheriff's police, said, "Football betting—the country has gone crazy with it. It gets the most money. About one third goes to horses."

A St. Louis bookie confided, "The top sport is football. There's some baseball, but not much. More people know about football and it's only once a week."

Lt. Wayne Posey of the Dallas police estimated $350 million of the $390 million bet in the Dallas-Fort Worth area during the last football season went to football.

$100,000 plungers

"A large number bet a couple of hundred a week," he said. "Some in excess of $100,000 a week. There must be thousands of bettors—everybody from executives to office workers who might go into a bar and put down a few dollars. Better bookies set a minimum of $200 on bets.

"Every bookmaker has to have a line source and there is no line source (for betting odds) in Texas. But at least five line sources come into Dallas — Las Vegas, Minneapolis, Chicago, New Orleans, sometimes Miami and Louisville.

"People who make up the lines have an intelligence network among college and pro football teams. They know when Roger Staubach gets a hangnail and when Calvin Hill and his wife have a fuss.

"One thing we saw during last year's high school playoffs was lines coming out on

Firms must gamble for gambling

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UPI) — Earl Rowen and his three buddies spent six weeks in Europe this fall visiting 11 countries, expenses paid.

It seems like a dream. But Rowen and his friends aren't members of the jet set. They are investigators-auditors for the state Gaming Control Board now conducting the largest background inquiry ever involving Nevada gambling.

Agents are poring over the financial records and business dealings of Bally Distributing Co., of Chicago, Ill. Bally, which wants a Nevada gambling license, is going to pay more than $80,000 to have itself investigated for clearances that there are no ties with the underworld.

Under the somewhat unusual Nevada law, Bally must foot the full bill. Right now it includes paying for the hotel, meals and transportation of the four agents. In addition, the company is paying $400 a day to reimburse the state for the services of the agents.

There are several reasons the Bally investigation is so large. It is the 17th largest company in over-the-counter stock trading; it has a worldwide network of slot machine operations, and there have been allegations some of its officers have unsavory backgrounds.

The background and financial checking will take six months to complete and then, Bally isn't assured it will get a state license.

"You put your money down and take your chances," is the way one state official describes the process. In the past many individuals and companies who have paid thousands of dollars to finance the investigation have come up empty-handed. They didn't get their license because of little secrets the investigators turned up.

The Bally inquiry points up two things—it's costly to get a Nevada gaming license and the checking is thorough.

"I don't think there is a more thorough investigation any place on the background integrity, finances and business associates," says Shannon Bybee, one of the three members of the Gaming Control Board.

"But we don't go around asking neighbors if the person goes to rock concerts or bathes nude in the back yard," says Bybee. "It isn't that kind of an investigation."

Information is sought from police agencies both in this country and in foreign lands. Checks are made with financial institutions, friends, associates, journalists and informers or "tipsters."

Individuals applying for licenses sometimes "don't remember" to list on the application their arrests, financial ventures, questionable friends or hidden bank accounts.

There have been cases where the prospective Nevada gamblers forgot to include their children, marriages, divorces or name changes. One applicant couldn't find his naturalized citizenship papers and state agents turned them up in the investigation. Another complained state investigators found information that had been missed in four audits by the Internal Revenue Service.

When the final report is ready, The Control Board votes. They are full-time state employes who manage the day-today activities of the agency.

The board's recommendation then goes to the five-member Nevada Gaming Commission, a lay board, which makes the final decision whether a license is issued.

Comedian sues, charges pirating

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Bud Abbott, of the popular comedy team of Abbott and Costello, accused an author and publisher Wednesday of pirating the team's best known routine, "Who's On First."

Abbott and three heirs of Lou Costello, who died in 1959, filed suit in Superior Court against Richard Anobile, Darien House publishers and W.W. Norton and Co. to stop the sale of Anobile's book of photos and dialogue titled "Who's On First."

The classic comedy routine was used without his permission, Abbott maintained. It revolves around the confusion engendered by baseball players with names such as Who and What.

Lydia Bach has fast, pleasant way to use brain, firm up body

By JOHN M. LEIGHTY

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Pretty Lydia Bach uses music, yoga and orthopedic principles for revitalizing the body.

She makes firming the flab fun, fast and functional for the elite in New York, where she has "taken over the exercise scene" with a studio opened only two years ago.

"Most people use their brains and not their bodies. They don't really know what's going on with their bodies," says the slim Miss Bach, who looks much younger than her 33 years.

Rather than moaning and groaning with "antiquated exercise" methods, the women in Miss Bach's studio do positional stretches that give immediate benefits.

Music, anything from a chant to rock and roll, is played to help the mind relax while the muscles get a needed workout.

The movements and stretches are also good for men and can improve a person's sex life, says Miss Bach, who has vividly illustrated the exercises in a book, "Awake! Aware! Alive!" (Random House).

"When you care about your body, when it's in shape and you like it, you're much less inhibited," she said of the section on sex exercises. "You know someone else is caring about it."

Some women, Miss Bach says, come to her classes without even knowing how to move the pelvis after 15 years of marriage.

"They don't know it's independent of the body."

She says that in just one exercise, such women can learn what muscles are used to move the pelvis and then all that is needed is a few minutes practice a day.

The exercises also energize and cleanse the body, thus having the effect of making a person want to eat better and avoid junk foods.

A lot of women, especially working ones, Miss Bach says, become tired, flabby, drink a lot of coffee or smoke too many cigarettes and so separate themselves from their body that "the last thing she's going to think about is sex."

"If the body doesn't look good, a woman doesn't want to be seen. It's turn the lights out and get it over with."

Miss Bach says she has a lot of honest talks with the women who frequent her studio, many of whom hold prestige positions in the business world.

"I know for a fact that all of their sex lives have changed."

One husband, said Miss Bach, arrived at her studio to say that his wife's attitude had changed, along with her body, and that it saved their 17-year marriage.

"Their whole thing was energy because she was a tired, tired woman before coming to the studio," said Miss Bach. "The body does become a drain on the brain. They've got to work together."

Miss Bach says her Lotte Berk Studio, named after her teacher, has grown from one to three floors and that men are "begging to get in" but there is no space. She has 12 teachers that give the $10-an-hour sessions to students ranging from age 6 to 63.

The book, says Miss Bach, introduces the method to

RESTORING VITALITY

Three pleasurable exercises to restore vitality are illustrated by Lydia Bach, who uses music, yoga and orthopedic principles for revitalizing the body. "Most people use their brains and not their bodies. They don't really know what's going on with their bodies," says the slim, 33-year-old Miss Bach.

Lydia Bach . . .

Americans across the country who want to get in shape and feel better by only exercising a few minutes a day.

The secret of the fast results, she says, is that each position puts the muscles immediately to work. After learning a position "you just get stronger and stronger with it."

"If you do 30 sit-ups, it takes about 20 to get a feeling of tightness," she explained. "Try the first stomach section in the book and you'll feel the tightness in about 15 seconds.

"The positioning is so good that the stomach muscles have to work immediately. You don't do something to work up to it. You get in the position and the muscles start working right away."

Some of the exercises she says, are "incredible" for conditioning skiers and remove the drudgery of getting in shape.

"What I'm after is to get people in tune with their bodies," Miss Bach says.

Waste worst food problem for India

By M. G. SRINATH

NEW DELHI (UPI) — In food-short India—whose government has had to go shopping in the United States and the Soviet Union to help out—millions of tons of food a year literally go down the rathole.

Experts figure more than 10 million tons a year are lost to pests, poor storage and bad transportation — enough to feed 50 million people for one year.

India so far this year has bought nearly three million tons of food from the United States and accepted a $2 million "food loan" from Russia.

Industrial development Minister Chidambaram Subramaniam said recently, "India is losing a minimum of 10 per cent of foodgrains during storage, and by depredation of insects, rodents, fungi and fire each year. This works out to a minimum of about 10 million tons—a little more than the amount by which we fall short of our needs."

"In other words," Subramaniam said, "some people go hungry, or precious foreign exchange is used to import foodgrains, not because we have not produced enough, but because we have not taken adequate care of the output."

Vast money loss

An official of the Food Corporation of India, which looks after the procurement and distribution of food in the country, said "this 10 per cent loss is not very high in comparison to world standards. But, for a country like India, this food wasted can easily feed 50 million people annually. In terms of hard cash it means a loss of 1,063 million U.S. dollars a year."

India's annual food production has varied from 94 million to 108.4 million tons in the past five years. An estimated 96 million tons is expected this year. This works out to about 1.1 pound per person per day for India's 560 million people.

Nearly 70 per cent of the grain produced in India is kept by the farmers for personal consumption and for next year's sowing. The rest enters organized trade channels for marketing, either private or governmental.

Though India has made important strides in food production, it still is using antiquated post-harvest techniques. It is a common sight to see farmers cutting their crop with sickle and drying them on the roads.

Poor storage

An agricultural scientist said that the storage techniques in rural areas are so old-fashioned nearly 25 per cent of certain grains are lost because of high humidity and temperature which are conducive to rapid multiplication of insects and rodents.

He said the actual loss is greater since insects consume the most nutritious portion of the grains and contaminate them with body fragments and excreta such as uric acid. Moulds which grow on badly stored foodgrains also become active under high moisture and temperature conditions and produce poisonous toxins, he said.

Women executives

NEW YORK (UPI) — Women at last are breaking into the open in competition for top executive posts in American business, Handy Associates, Inc., reports. Handy publishes a statistical barometer called the National Executive Mibility Index. Until now female executives have been too few to measure statistically in the index. But in the latest edition, women comprised 4 per cent of the top executive candidates.

Gambling craze spreads across the nation . . .

GAMBLING IN EAST — Hundreds of Jerseyites turn out to play in the state's first legalized bingo game April 4, 1954. A temptation to make some or all forms of gambling legal has gone national.

high schools. This is terrible."

At least one major college football coach said this season he has had it with the line makers.

Football threatened

Coach Earle Bruce of Iowa State said he got calls at his motel up until a few hours before kickoff trying to find out if he had suspended his starting quarterback for a game with Brigham Young.

"If one thing is going to kill college football, it's the gamblers and I'm not going to help them one bit," Bruce said.

"It has to be dangerous when so much money changes hands on these games. The gamblers are going to ruin college football and they're going to ruin pro football, too, if they're not careful. Maybe they won't ruin the college game, because it's bigger than they are, but they sure aren't helping it."

In 1969, a Senate subcommittee estimated from $20 to $50 billion was being bet illegally each year on horse races, lotteries and sports events. This compared to $5 billion bet legally at the horse tracks.

But more recently the Justice Department provided substantially higher figures. Its organized crime and racketeering section is still analyzing alleged stakes involved in all illegal gambling cases it investigated in a selected five-month period in 1972. William S. Lynch, head of the section, said prosecuted cases dealt with $1.2 billion. He estimated this at between 2 and 4 per cent of the actual total, which projects to $30 to $60 billion for that short period alone. Lynch said of the $1.2 billion that it was "a hard figure... I think it is the best figure ever."

Up, up, up

And each year the gambling total seems to go up. Affluent, uneasy America appears to have an itch to bet, and bet some more.

Gambling U.S. - style takes a multitude of forms.

There is numbers, the ghetto game, bloated by nickels, dimes and dreams. It is estimated some 2 million New Yorkers bet between $1 and $4 million on the numbers. Lottery every day. In Chicago, where numbers is called policy and the game is played somewhat differently, the official police guess is that $100 million changes hands a year.

A loophole in California law allows communities to license poker parlors. So, in such towns as Gardena, elderly men and women ring the tables, playing cautious draw poker (no stud allowed by law) and the take for the six sanctioned clubs in Gardena is $15 million a year. Business is best when the Social Security checks come in.

Even bingo, the sport of nice little old ladies and kindly pastors, is rich action and, authorities say, sometimes syndicate-controlled.

In Florida, the secretary of state's office figures there are 10 million people playing bingo each year in the state, betting an average of $9 a night for an annual total of $90 to $110 million.

Bingo

A bingo industry source said, "My happy guess is that there are 10,000 bingo games operating in Florida." Dade County's Lt. Sommerhoff said, "We have five big bingo halls in this area locally owned, operated and run by elements of organized crime. Each of the five are skimming up to $2,000 a night. And we have a lot of legitimate bingo operations, too. We have a total of 150 bingo halls working."

That gambling is big business is demonstrably an understated cliche. It is a business hundreds of thousands depend on.

In New York City, more than 100,000 men and women are believed to earn part or all of their incomes in the numbers game alone. The parimutuels in Florida provide at least 30,338 jobs. And such figures don't begin to take in the police.

President Nixon has said, "For most large - scale illegal gambling enterprises to continue operations over any extended period of time, the cooperation of corrupt police or local officials is necessary."

To illustrate, the New York State Gambling Commission estimated that, while the net profit on illegal gambling there is $50 million a year, the overhead includes $30 million paid out annually in bribes, payoffs and political contributions.

The Senate subcommittee report said federal prosecutors "uncovered evidence that local numbers operators had almost every member of the vice squad of a major midwestern city on their payroll."

Legal lotteries

Still, the urge continues to make gambling "clean" and presumably in the public interest through legalization. There are some sardonic views of such a prospect.

In Maryland, where they are both legal and illegal lotteries, Assistant Attorney General Nirman Polovy said:

"If anything, the illegal lottery has actually grown because of the legal lottery. It's whetted the appetite of new gamblers who have turned to the illegal game because it's played every day and is generally more fun."

Peter Vaira, head of the Justice Department strike force in Chicago, was bemused by the proposals to install casino gambling in New Jersey.

"If you do that, who do you get to run it" he said. "How do you keep people from stealing? If they brought in you or me to run it, they'd steal us blind. They need pros and where do you get pros?

"You know, if they catch you stealing in Las Vegas they break both your arms."

The Greek

The world of Jimmy "The Greek" Snyder, the Las Vegas-based odds-maker, is close to gospel to many gamblers throughout the country. Take it from Jimmy the Greek, America isn't ready for widespread legalized gambling.

"I'm against legalizing gambling anywhere else (but Nevada), although I'm sure there'll be a state somewhere that's going to want to try it," he said. "It'll be a mistake. A heavily populated community would go crazy."

'We really need a man around here'

PALO ALTO, Calif. (UPI) — Did you know that the president of a fast growing chain of language schools is a woman?

That's not such a big deal these days.

But all the district representatives and the 37 directors of the individual schools are also women. And that, surely, must make the Sullivan Language Schools unique.

"It really just happened by accident," says Karen Mitler, 31, the chain's president.

When the schools first opened in 1970 the president was a man and "we had many men apply for jobs," she said.

"But most of the men wanted to sit behind desks and this is a very people-oriented job," she added.

The men, she said, "didn't work out" because they weren't used to competition from women or didn't want to work for them.

"We also found women were more aggressive because they had to prove themselves," she said while sitting behind a big desk in the firm's headquarters in this university town south of San Francisco.

Mrs. Mitler, married to a psychologist at nearby Stanford University, has a masters degree in language from Michigan State.

"A larger proportion of women get language degrees, and applications for jobs are now running about 3-1 in favor of women," she said.

Mrs. Mitler insists she wouldn't discriminate against a man and "would love to have a man around here" but contends women are better suited for the job.

"Working with our students is really more of a female job. People need to be treated nicely."

The students come from all walks of life and some study language for travel abroad and others in conjunction with their work.

Bing Crosby's wife, Kathryn, a newswoman as well as an actress, studied German so she could cover the Olympic Games. Actor Richard Crenna was taught French in a matter of weeks for his part in the movie, "The Cop," filmed in France with Catherine DeNeuve.

The schools use a system based on the one devised by linguist Marurice Sullivan—at last, a man—when he was charged with training American officers in German for the Nuremberg trials.

The technique breaks each language down to its simplest components and then systematically introduces and reinforces its sounds and structures.

There is no homework and no rote memorization of vocabulary.

The schools' parent company is Behavioral Research Laboratories, Inc.

"Three of the presidents of the five divisions in the corporation are women," .rs. M

"Three of the presidents of the five divisions in the corporation are women," Mrs. Mitler said and repeated: "We really would like to have a man around here."

Bartender convicted of extortion

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A bartender with alleged Mafia connections was convicted of extortion Wednesday for trying to force a rock music group to perform in a Hollywood nightclub.

Mario S. Giamio, 32, was ordered held in county jail pending his sentencing Dec. 26. A companion, Richard Karpel, 32, was acquitted of a similar charge.

The prosecutor said Giamio threatened the rock music group "Lava" with bodily harm if they refused to perform for a week at PJ's, a nightclub on Santa Monica Boulevard.

The leader of the band, Edward Guitierrez, testified Giamio grew quite irritated that the group refused the booking.

"Man, if you don't play," Guitierrez said he was warned, "You are going to be messing with some really heavy people, like from New York or Connecticut."

World of animals

Christmas gift list for favorite pets

By DR. FRANK MILLER

Picking presents for pets presents problems, particularly if the animal "already has everything." Here are some suggestions concerning gifts animals are most likely to apprecite:

Fish: Fin-flexing freedom via a new, larger tank.

Reptilians (as a group): A sun lamp, judiciously used, of course.

Anole chameleon: A broad-leafed plant.

Certain snakes (or other larger reptilians): A large tree branch to clamber on or den-retreat facilities.

Turtles: Dining room facilities — a separate feeding station.

Rodents: AMAZEing additions to their apartments where they can run, roam, snoop, hide and nest. A rat, for example, is likely to become quickly bored with a one room apartment.

Birds: The priority here for most is — space. Cage birds generally are healthiest and happiest with a large flight cage which provides adequate room to exercise. A muchly valued smaller gift for the birds is a natural perch, like a plain, barkless branch of proper diameter.

Parrots and parrot-like birds are especially appreciateive of this — but be prepared to provide such perches on a continuing basis as they will be standing on and chewing on them simultaneously. (The wood here should be the sapless varieties.)

Cats: Tunnel-type toys or even a long, narrow sack are appreciated as, of course, are cat trees, lightweight balls for batting and other toys, including some varieties with catnip.

Dogs: Being oral-oriented animals, they do appreciate a variety of chew toys. For some, the world is a ball and they might even be willing to give up their old favorite for a new offering. Some who don't insist on sleeping on people beds might appreciate a new bed of their own or leather goods, or, lastly, apparel can be considered. Aside from a few poodles who have large wardrobes already, function is more important than fashion.

For all animals who need them: Water and food containers are a practical gift. Keeping your pet fed and watered is a daily essential as is love and attention in whatever degree is appropraite for that particular animal.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Regarding that column the end of last month when you mentioned paprika for brightening up the colors of tropical fish. Perhaps it would be well to specify "SWEET" and "PAPRIKA" . . . Some dummies might inadvertantly use "HOT" paprika! —M.N.

COMMENT: Thank you for your consideration for those fish. My sources indicate paprika is the MILD product of sweet red peppers — the COOL kind. The cayenne, hot type could, indeed, prove too hot for our finny friends to handle.

Take auto home for visit

By MURRAY J. BROWN
UPI Travel Editor

Why not include Detroit in your itinerary if you're planning to tour the United States. Scores of thousands of visitors from abroad to.

Most of Detroit's estimated half million foreign visitors annually are Germans and Japanese, according to Ron Steffan of the Detroit Convention and Visitors Bureau.

"Industrialization apparently turns these people on the same way the Grand Canyon turns on most Americans," he said in a recent interview.

Tops on their agendas are tours of the Big Three automobile plants in the Detroit area where they can watch cars being assembled on the production lines which revolutionized the industry.

Particularly popular with both foreign and American visitors is the GM Tech center which provides an inside look at how the company designs, develops and tests new models.

General Motors, Ford and Chrysler welcome visitors and offer free guided tours of their plants on week days. But, Steffan cautioned, check first since tours are subject to change and sometimes suspended during certain periods.

Open all year, except for New Year's Day, Thanksgiving and Christmas is the Greenfield Village and Henry Ford Museum in nearby Dearborn. One of the major tourist attractions in the United States, it offers an unusual collection of Americana, including about 100 restored centuries-old historic homes, workshops and other buildings from throughout the country. There's [illegible] charge.

"Detroit has [illegible] attractions," Steffan said. "[illegible] we are developing more."

From the cultural standpoint, he said, the world-famous Detroit Institute of Arts "usually has some major event or exhibition on tap."

"For example, the Institute in co-sponsorship with the city of Florence, Italy, this spring will have a Medici art exhibit which will include many works never before seen in this country.

"The exhibition, 'Twilight of the Medici 1670-1743', will includ 450 works from the final years of the Florentine family's reign—paintings, sculpture, drawings, tapestries, furniture and jewelry."

There are museums, including the Fort Wayne Military Museum which is considered the best-preserved pre-Civil War fort in the Midwest; one of the world's outstanding zoos; theater; concerts; recreational areas; horse racing and professional baseball, football, basketball and hockey in season, Steffan said.

For the children, there's the Detroit Science Center, a "storefront" museum that includes 35 exhibits that can be manually operated by visitors; the Children's Zoo on Belle Island where they can feed baby animals in a Mother Goose setting; and boat excursions to an amusement park on Bob-Lo island among other small-fry activities, he said.

"Detroit will have even more to offer via a new Renaissance Center expected to be completed within the next eight-to-ten years," Steffan said. "When finished the center will be one-third larger than Rockefeller Center in New York and four times the size of Peachtree Center in Atlanta."

The center, being built on a 33-acre site along the Detroit River and adjoining the Ford Auditorium and the Cobo Hall Convention Center, will include a 70-story hotel. It will be the tallest building in the state of Michigan when completed in 1976 and will add 1,500 guest rooms to the 4,500 hotel rooms downtown and the 23,000 hotel rooms in the Detroit metropolitan area, Steffan said.

Construction of the hotel and four office towers—the project also includes apartment and other buildings—is already underway.

"A striking feature of the towers will be a massive lanscaped podium that will form a pedestrian island over the streets that cross the 14-acre site," Steffan said. "The podium will be two stores high and contain shops, restaurants and entertainment facilities."

Detroit is easily reachable via major highways, including Interstate I-75, I-94 and I-96. More than a dozen U. S. and foreign airlines provide regular air services.

Spassky alive, playing brightly

By SHELBY LYMAN

After lulling his followers into despair and sleep by his hymdrum play since his Reykjavik fiasco, Boris Spassky is suddenly playing like his old self, if not better.

He has just won one of the strongest tournaments in the history of chess, the 1973 U.S.S.R. Championship. Three ex-world champions — Smyslov, Tal, and Petrosian — participated, plus Korchnoi, Polugaevsky, and Karpov, who are official candidates for the role of challenger to the world title as well as Petrosian and Spassky. Apparently Bobby Fischer himself is jubilant at Spassky's performance and has expressed his desire for a rematch.

Not since the heyday of Michael Tal has the chess world seen a player with the white pieces so crushingly deal with the Sicilian Defense (1. P-Kr, P-QB4) as has Spassky in this Russian championship.

The clearest example of his powerful play is his game with Averkin early in the tournament.

(Diagram 1)

Spassky initiates favorable exchanges.

Our first diagram shows the crucial position after black's 18th move. Spassky now initiated a series of exchanges with his 19th move, P-K5. After 25) R-N3, the position in our second diagram was reached.

(Diagram 2)

BLACK

WHITE

All rook moves lose material for black.

Black, who is vulnerable on the king side, will lose material wherever he moves his attacked rook, which is on the queen-side.

Averkin elected to play 25 . . . . R-N3 and Spassky artfully refuted that move with 26. B-B7, as in our third diagram.

(Diagram 3)

BLACK Averkin

Spassky
WHITE

Black must lose the exchange.

Whatever black does, he must lose a rook for his opponent's bishop. The point is, of course, that 26 . . . . RxB is refuted by 27. Q-K5, which threatens the loose rook and checkmate.

Other rook moves are equally futile.

I.e., I. 25 . . . . R-R1, and 26. Q-K5 will win the knight; or II. 25 . . . R-N2, and 26. Q-K5 followed by P-QR4 will win the pinned bishop.

Once white has won the "exchange", the rest of the game is mop-up action.

This game is a lesson in combining mating threats with threats on undefended pieces.

Bravo, Boris Spassky!

Man has town up for sale

CANTWELL, Alaska (UPI) — For the person who has everything, how about an Alaskan town situated on 242 acres?

The entire town of Cantwell, with the exception of the railroad station and post office plus a few homes, is for sale. Situated in the shadow of Mt. McKinley, the highest peak in North America, Cantwell comes complete with a restaurant, motel, two gas stations and a ready made population of 200.

Herman Cotter Jr. put the town on the market because he wants to move 205 miles south to Anchorage. He's asking $750,000.

Lower auto insurance fees sought

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (UPI) — Auto insurance rates should be lowered because of safer speed limits and the reduction in weekend traffic brought on by the energy crisis, two Connecticut consumer groups said Sunday.

The Connecticut Citizen Research Group (CCRG) and its parent organization, the Connecticut Citizen Action Group, said the gasoline shortage should reduce both the frequency and severity of highway accidents. They estimated the savings to consumers at several billions of dollars.

"It is vital that insurance commissioners act so that the impact of the energy crisis on auto accidents becomes an important break for the consumer rather than a boondoggle for the insurance industry," said Marc Caplan, CCRG director.

Men's wear

Options open up on fashion front

By WALTER LOGAN

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mort Gordon is a big strapping man who might wear an Ivy League suit one day, an elegant Italian suit the next, something far out the next and blue jeans on weekends. He's exercising his options and thinks more men should do the same.

Gordon is vice president and publisher of Men's Wear, a magazine oriented chiefly to the clothing trade, and more recently of Men's Wear (MR), a quarterly oriented chiefly to the people who buy the clothes. MR will come out only twice in 1974 but after that is four times a year.

He moves in exalted clothing circles, back slapping manufacturers and vice versa, hobnobbing with leading designers and galloping around the country from one clothing convention to another. And so naturally he knows quite a lot about clothes.

MR is his brainchild and the first issue hit the stands recently. The purpose, he explains, is not to tell men what to wear but to show them their options. A man doesn't have to be anything definite any more—Brooks Brothers, Seventh Avenue or even Avant Garde. He can be one or all or mix things up to suit his fancy.

"As far as suits are concerned, there are not major silhouette changes this year," he said. "It is the wide lapel, two button, notched lapel, single vent. The interest is in fabrication, and while you have the classic feeling of flannels, tweeds, pinstripes, you have in addition fabrications that are influenced by sports and leisure wear.

"It depends on the age and life style. There are denims, corduroys, knits to a certain extent, gabardine, converts, unusual colors such as salmon, with some green coming in, the rust shades. Not too traditional. Even the gray flannel is different it is lighter in shade.

"There are details as in sports clothing—stitches on the lapel, for example, for snap and sparkle. The emphasis is on color, pattern, detail. Certainly men have a growing tendency to wear more sports jackets to the office and this is showing in the suits themselves, the sports details.

"As a matter of fact sports jackets in America outsold suits in 1973 for the first time in history, something like 18.2 million sport jackets and 18.1 million suits. Some people even think the suit is in jeopardy, but I don't think so. There is no substitute for a suit.

"If we ever go on a four day week a man is going to carry that leisure influence to the office. Which is why there is a strong tendency toward a semi-constructed suit these days—a suit with has padding and the like so a man will be as comfortable at the office as he was on the weekend."

Gordon made a few other points on fall and winter trends:

Dress shirts are neater, with more white grounds and less gaudy jump out and sock 'em patterns. There is a feeling for the button down, oxford shirt, and for shirt with a barrel cuff rather than French cuffs since a lot of guys go home at night and slip into a sweater and don't want to struggle with complicated cuffs.

The design of neckties is dictated by the clothing and shirts, and as the others get neater, a man uses his tie to make a bold fashion statement. Prints are getting to be the most popular thing in ties.

As for pants, there is a definite tendency toward a slimmer slilhouette, with a narrower knee and smaller bottoms. Even the youth market is getting back to the narrow leg. Flare isn't dead but pants are narrower and less gaudy. There is more emphasis on detail—watch pockets, D-rings, elastic waistbands. Something to call attention to the waist.

As for shoes, the excessive high heel has had it and there is a return to classics, no more of the huge clunky thing. Hosiery is showing bolder patterns with plainer suits. Underwear? The colorful European brief is doing very, very well. The underwear explosion is very real and men are finally concerned with what they look like underneath.

Sweaters are definitely making a strong comeback and the reason is that shirts are less bold and men don't mind covering them up. Outerwear is going through the roof—baseball jackets, leather, wool meltons. But mostly they are short so people can see the pants.

Silver lining in dark clouds is worth more now

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — There may be a silver lining worth as much as half a billion dollars behind the current economic dark clouds, according to a coin dealer.

James A. Mulgrew, president of the American Coin Exchange, admits to being "a little startled at the growth" of trading in silver coins of the United States, coins containing real silver.

These were the coins minted before 1964, now available in bagsful with a face value of $1,000 and purchased by investors as a hedge against devaluation or monetary collapse.

Mulgrew estimates a quarter-billion dollars worth of coins were traded last year. This year, he said at his Beverly Hills office, the total easily could reach half a billion dollars.

"And if the trend continues— and we don't see it slowing— we'll be looking at about two-thirds of a billion dollars in coin sales next year."

The idea of investing in bags of silver coins began in California but since has spread nationwide and become a trickle in international trading as well, according to Mulgrew.

Mulgrew's exchange was one of the first and now has offices in Atlanta, Miami and Cleveland in addition to the trading floor at his headquarters.

Though the face value of the coins in a bag is a thousand dollars—and the bag therefore will never be worth less than this—the silver content makes it considerably more valuable. A bag of coins contains about 55 pounds of real silver.

"Silver has tracked gold in rising value in recent years and today the bags trade for around $2,000 each depending upon market conditions," Mulgrew said. His exchange makes a price "fixing" for a bag twice daily.

Many customers buy on margin, putting up only part of the purchase price and leaving their bags on storage at the exchange.

The exchange recently announced it also would offer silver bullion but Mulgrew feels this is not as good an investment as the coins because you can always use the coins as a buying measure.

In addition to the silver coins, the exchange also sells gold coins to collectors including the Double Eagle U.S. $20 gold piece and coins of Mexico, Russia, Peru and the United Kingdom.

Reagan: energy crisis blessing in disguise?

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The energy shortage is a great opportunity and may be good for the United States, Gov. Ronald Reagan said recently.

Reagan spoke to newsmen on his return from a tour of Asian nations as President Nixon's special trade representative.

"I think this energy crisis can be one of the greatest opportunities we've ever had," he said. "I'm an eternal optimist on this.

"I think this can force us into new technology that so far we have neglected. We knew it was there, but we neglected it because there was no pressure for it," Reagan said.

The result, he said, could be "more self sufficiency for the United States.

Reagan's Asian tour, in a presidential jet, was criticized by his political opponents as a waste of fuel at this time. Reagan has defended it as a necessary step to more profitable trade with Asia, much of which flows through California.

TRADING TALENTS — Retired furniture mover Kenneth Barfield does gardening work as part of an exchange program in San Diego where senior citizens trade their talents, both to keep active and to hold down the cost of living.

Senior citizens share time, talent

By RAY MEANS

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI) — Senior citizens in San Diego are trading their talents, both to keep active and to hold down the cost of living.

The system, coordinated by the city's human resources department, is called the "Help Bank." A senior citizen in need of someone with a special skill contacts the department, and in place of paying, offers his own skill to help someone else.

"With its heavy retirement population, San Diego is in great need of a service like this," said Alan Kaplan, a social services graduate of San Diego State University who started the program last year.

"Many elderly people on fixed income just need a little help to get them over an illness and can't afford the $30 a day for professional help. I, a retired nurse, may need help with some quilting."

About 40 different skills are now offered through the Help Bank.

Another example is retired furniture mover Kenneth Barfield, 71. Until a year ago he was still active in his trade, but he decided to retire and was in good condition financially.

Nevertheless, when Mrs. Pat Moffitt called for gardening help he responded. She, in turn, will help someone else, and that's fine with Barfield and his wife.

"We don't need any help ourselves," Mrs. Barfield said. "But we like to do for others who need it."

Usually a person will exchange his services for those of another, such as household repairs for typing, or bridge lessons for bookkeeping.

Mrs. Elizabeth D'Aura, despite her 71 years, is another volunteer expecting nothing in return.

"It seems like a good way to help and to meet congenial people," she said, "so I signed up to give help with transportation and to read to people."

Because of legal problems, coordination of the program has been tightened, taking away some of the personalization. Mrs. Evelyn Herrmann, chief of senior citizens assistance section of the Human Resources Department, said they now have to recommend three or four qualified persons for exchanges instead of just one as in the past.

"This limits the city's liability," she said.

After a year and a half the program's success is still debatable. For the most part, when a person gets the job done, that's it. New people and new problems are needed constantly for an ongoing effort.

Kaplan started at San Diego State and involved the students as well as senior citizens and sees no reason it should stop there.

"We could go through the whole community with a huge let's help each other program," he said.

"Lots of students need some typing done, and many retired secretaries need their screen door fixed. There are many senior citizens who are natives of foreign countries and can really help a student in a foreign language in return for a few shopping trips."

Friendship, usefulness and a job done with no money involved are the ingredients. The idea is almost as old as time, but in a modern world it still has its place.

Fines help schools

Money collected as fines for violations of fish and game laws in Nebraska goes to county school funds of the county in which the violations occur.

Kissinger still using limousine

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a minor revolution resulting from the energy crisis only one of 11 cabinet officers—Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger—is still using a Cadillac limousine.

Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger stopped using his limousine Friday and now rides to work in smaller chauffeur driven cars from the Pentagon motor pool.

When UPI tried to quiz Labor Secretary Peter J. Brennan's secretary about her boss' limousine, Brennan came on the telephone himself and said he now drives to work in his own car and sometimes makes the trip by carpool. "Do you want to buy a limousine?" he asked.

Hawaii gets workers from welfare rolls

HONOLULU (UPI) — Welfare recipients in Hawaii are disproving the idea that all persons on welfare are lazy freeloaders.

Hundreds of volunteers from the state welfare rolls have answered a plea for help from the Hawaiian Department of Social Services and Housing (DSSH) through its public welfare division.

Though welfare costs have risen more than seven times in the past 10 years, from $12.2 million a year to $102.6 million, the DSSH has come up with a program to expand services, save money and help clients escape from welfare dependency.

And it is assistance from persons on welfare that's making it possible. They are people who responded to a flyer from Elaine Tamshiro, volunteer services program administrator for the DSSH's Welfare Division, enclosed with mailed food stamp certification cards.

"The flyer told welfare clients that if they found time hanging heavy and would like to get involved in something, the DSSH needed them," Mrs. Tamashior said.

"We always had some clients helping the department on a voluntary basis," she said, "but the program didn't really snowball until those flyers went out in March."

The response to Mrs. Tamashiro's appeal was overwhelming.

"I didn't know what to expect when I sent them out," she said, "but then the phones started ringing and haven't stopped since. I got 50 calls a day and immediately put some volunteers to work fielding and directing the calls."

No Pay

The volunteers, who receive reimbursement only for transportation costs, are used as clerical aides, receptionists, child care aides, translators, interpreters and groundkeepers. They visit senior citizens and act as big brothers or sisters to children who need them.

"Soon we had more volunteers than we had positions," Mrs. Tamashiro said. "In the past five months, they have given more than 13,000 hours to public welfare service.

"If we had to pay for this, it would cost the state more than $32,000 in salaries alone."

Mrs. Tamashiro emphasizes that while the volunteers have in fact saved the state money, the worth of their own efforts for themselves cannot be measured in dollar signs. She has found that the volunteer experience gives the much criticized welfare recipient a "sense of self worth."

"Many of them have a failure syndrome," she said. "They have never succeeded in anything and are often the victims of community hostility. Then they have this opportunity to help someone else. They see that they can do something of value. Their success here spurs them on to the next step, which may be further training or an actual job."

The paid staff employes of the DSSH have been delighted with the help to relieve their work load, and have made extra efforts to help train the volunteers.

"The volunteer does not replace the staff member," Mrs. Tamashiro said, "but supplements and complements the services of the paid staff."

Although the program has attracted men and women of all ages, the bulk of volunteers are women in their 30s and 40s who want to get a job while their growing children are in school.

"With their confidence restored and with some training behind them, many welfare clients are ready to go out into the community for jobs and are eager to do so," Mrs. Tamashiro said.

DSSH director Myron Thompson refers to the volunteers as "history makers." The "growth of public welfare to massive numbers has often produced a vacuum between the deliverer and the needy," Thompson said. "Volunteer help has emerged as that special bridge between the troubled and the restored."

Butz gives farmers assurance

CHICAGO (UPI) — Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz has assured farmers the Nixon administration is doing everything possible to make sure that no farmer runs out of fuel for his tractor and other agriculture implements.

"We're doing our best to see that farmers have enough fuel to plant and harvest without interruption," Butz told a news conference recently before addressing a luncheon audience at the Nation 4-H Congress.

Butz said the nation's farmers have been assigned a top priority, coming immediately after the first two priorities of "fuel needed to manufacture fuel" and fuel for public transportation.

He said that during last summer's gasoline shortage, his department heard of only one man who was unable to get fuel for his farm equipment.

"That was a man in Iowa, and when we sent a man down there to talk to his supplier, we found out it was because he didn't pay his bill for last year's gas," Butz said.

Butz praised most farmers as being "basically conservative," and said the "erosion of confidence" in the President was not as great among farmers as among urban voters.

"Farmers are basically conservative," Butz said. "Seventy-one per cent voted for Nixon and I think they believe his strength is still here."

Bar's reviving hitchin' post and free oats

MOAB, Utah (UPI) — The Silver Dollar Bar, because of the energy crisis, is reviving the old hitchin' post with free oats for horses.

Bar owner Frank A. Woodruff, noting it's "been a whole long time" since a western saloon had provisions for horses, said he expected customers would take to the saddle weekends when gasoline stations shut down.

"You'd be surprised how many people around here feed them old hay burners," he said.

'New city' beckons local musician

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — When Lawrence Smith came back to his home town of Portland as conductor of the Oregon Symphony Orchestra it could have been a classic tale of the struggling young artist discouraged at home, making it big and returning in triumph.

There are a couple of things in the classic story that don't quite fit Larry Smith, however,

For one, when Smith, now 37, left Portland 14 years ago he had won nearly every major music prize in the area and was being encouraged toward a music career by most knowledgeable local musicians. For another, he planned a career in mathematics.

Smith did come home to triumph this September.

Through last season, the Oregon Symphony was in some disarray. Controversial conductor Jacques Singer had been fired the previous season and the orchestra struggled through 1972-73 with guest conductors— including Smith twice—and uncertain finances.

This year the off-stage discord has turned to harmony both off stage and on and every seat for every concert of the regular season had been sold by early fall.

Smith's road home was a circuitous one.

As a young piano student in Portland he played with the Portland Junior Symphony, winning prizes and praise.

He didn't consider music as a career, however, and was graduated from Portland State University with a degree in mathematics. He then went to New York to do graduate work in mathematics at New York University.

He continued to study piano and his teacher began referring him to musical jobs—"accompanying violinists and playing for Bar Mitzvahs and I began to realize that it was possible to make a living in New York as a musician," Smith said.

About that time, at a concert at Carnegie Hall, Smith met Joy Pottle, a child prodigy and concert pianist from Los Angeles. They were soon married.

Smith got his mathematics degree, then joined his wife at Mannes College of Music. While both earned music degrees there, he continued work as a freelance pianist.

In 1963 he went to Boston University to teach and it was there he first thought of conducting. Accompanying a violinist for a Boston Symphony audition, Smith was invited to become assistant to conductor Erich Leinsdorf. "Being around a major symphony orchestra stimulated my desire to conduct," Smith said.

He later spent three years as assistant conductor of the Metropolitan Opera and was con ductor of the Austin, Tex., Symphony before moving here.

Meanwhile, Smith continued his concert career as did his wife. They often appear and record together.

Smith said he is happy to be back in Portland but, "It's not like coming home." He said the city had changed so much "it's like moving to a new city."

Smith described work with the Portland musicians—who are only part time symphony musicians and mostly full time music teachers—as rewarding.

The symphony has 102 practices and concerts in its 32-week season. "It's tough on them," Smith said. "If they had the time to practice they would be of the same quality as any of the major symphonies. They're not playing for the money but for the love of music and they play fantastically well."

He hopes to see the Portland orchestra through to major symphony status—meaning a budget of more than $1 million a year—which he expects to come within the next five years. "If we can have a major league basketball team (Portland is a National Basketball Association member), we can have a major league symphony," he said.

Smith also hopes to continue his career as a concert pianist. "I feel it is necessary to keep playing the piano," he said. "When you're playing you're producing the music yourself.

NO HOMECOMING—Oregon Symphony Orchestra conductor Lawrence Smith and his wife, Joh, who often appear and record together, practice a piano duet at their home in Portland. Smith, who as a young piano student won prizes and praise with the Portland Junior Symphony before leaving the city 14 years ago, is happy to be back in Portland but doesn't view his return as a homecoming. He said the city has changed so much "it's like moving to a new city."

For Sunday, Dec. 9

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Someone you'll be in contact with today has it in for you. It will take a cool head and sound judgment to handle this guy effectively.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You could have some problems today about money matters — or who owes what to whom. If you have an old obligation, try to work it out amicably.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) What you have planned for today and what your mate would like to do will have you pulling in opposite directions. Try to reach an agreement.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you permit it, someone is going to try to pawn off some responsibilities on you today. Be firm in your refusal to be used.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You may find yourself involved socially today with acquaintances who'll give you a pain the neck. Screen commitments before accepting.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Someone you have an obligation to is wondering why you haven't met it. If you want to keep this relationship intact, talk things over face-to-face.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Though you enjoy a good discussion now and then, be careful whom you debate today. It could easily get out of hand.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) This is not a good day for you and your mate to work on your budget. Each will feel money is being spent foolishly by the other.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't try to make important decisions today. You'll be too easily influenced by factors that don't reveal the true picture.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) It will not be a wise move today to try to do something around the house a skillled professional should be doing.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You have a tendency today to overindulge yourself, particularly if you're having a good time. Be temperate — think of tomorrow.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) For the next few days it would be wise not to overspend on household or family needs. Your budget can't handle the strain.

Your Birthday
Dec. 9

A lot of changes are in store for you this year — one will prove fortunate. Be careful you don't neglect old, reliable friends for questionable new ones.

For Monday, Dec. 10

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Something will happen today. It will alter your point of view on an important matter. It will be difficult to stick by your new decision.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Before you have someone perform some work or service for you, check several sources. Act impulsively and you'll pay more than you should.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You get along with people better earlier in the day. Toward later afternoon patience. Don't schedule anything for then.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Don't discuss confidential family matters too freely. A prying friend will tell of the skeletons in your closet.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Evaluate new projects considered today from the standpoint of added obligations. Know what you're getting into.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Don't be overly generous in lending money or possessions to one you don't know too well at this time.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Try not to be indecisive regarding important issues. If you are, one of stronger will is going to do your thinking for you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) More responsibility will fall on your shoulders today than the other guy's, in an area where you share a joint interest.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) A friend that you have quite a bit of faith in is likely to be a source of disappointment for you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your problems at work will get more frustrating as the day wears on. Expect some setbacks; then you won't be caught off-guard.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) It's not a day to treat responsibilities lightly. If you think you can, you'll later learn you used very poor judgment.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be a little more security-minded about your possessions than usual. Don't deal with these you can't trust completely.

Your Birthday
Dec. 10

This year you will become involved in a new interest that will prove exciting and worthwhile. It will take time to develop fully. Be patient.

What a way to be taken

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — When Howard Glassman, a dental student, woke up at 3 a.m. Thursday he saw a beautiful young Oriental woman standing near his bed.

"Shh," she whispered, putting her finger to her lips. "I've just been with your roommate. Where's the front door?"

Glassman smiled and gestured towards the front door.

The girl, dressed in leotards and a gray coat, tiptoed to his bedside, gave him a friendly kiss and left.

Later, Glassman checked with his roommate, Fred Lamb 23, and found that Lamb knew nothing about the beautiful visitor. He also found that a checkbook and $15 in cash were missing.

More like history class than court

BECKLEY, W. Va. (UPI) — When a Beckley man stood to plead guilty to a forgery charge here this week it sounded more like a history class than a session of court.

The suspect was Jesse James John Henry Poindexter.

There was no indication whether Poindexter was related to either the Missouri outlaw or the famed steel-driver.

Nader unit warns of lead poisoning from candles

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Americans planning to burn candles at Christmas or in place of electricity during the energy pinch may run the risk of lead poisoning, according to a Ralph Nader research team.

Nader's Health Research Group asked the government's Consumer Product Safety Commission to ban from production and remove from store shelves millions of candles which it said spew lead fumes and particles when burned.

Dr. Sidney Wolfe, director of the research group, said the lead comes from a wire around which the wick is wound. The soft lead burns along with the wick, he said, presenting a particular danger to children who are especially susceptible to lead poisoning.

The commission said it would assign investigators to check out the candles and begin an immediate testing program.

Wolfe said many brands are involved, but his test centered on five candles, all of which contain "dangerous concentrations of lead." He identified the five as a small yellow candle and a large round white candle in a decorated container, both made by the Hallmark Card Co.; a flat shaped candle for food warming made by Corning Ware; a red decorative candle in glass sold under the name "Scent a Lite Pine" and made by Emkay; and a small blue candle for food warming made by Lenox.

Wolfe said there is danger both from lead fumes in the air-particularly in small rooms or apartments— and from lead particles "which form into tiny flecks which are easily transferable from hand to mouth by adults or children."

Wolfe urged consumers to check candles for the lead wire, which is easily visible at the top of the wick, and to discard any which fit the description.

Bibles ideal Christmas gifts

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

It's hard to think of a more appropriate Christmas gift—for a relative, a friend, or yourself — than a new Bible in a modern English translation.

To be sure, nearly everyone "already has a Bible" of some sort, even if it's just an old King James or Douai-Rheims version that's been old King James or Douai-Rheims version that's been gathering dust for years.

To read the Scriptures in any of these translations—which speak in our kind of English rather than that spoken in the 16th Century—is an exciting experience. For the first time, you may feel that Moses or Isaiah or Paul or Jesus is speaking directly to you, about your problems, in clear, straightforward terms that are relevant to life here and now.

Readability counts

In some of the new versions, this clarity of meaning is achieved with some sacrifice of literary beauty. No one would contend that "Good News for Modern Man," the Today's English Version of the New Testament produced by the American Bible Society, is any match, purely as literature, for the majestic cadences of the old King James Version.

But "Good News" is immensely readable—as attested by the fact that it has become the best-selling book of all time, with 35 million copies purchased since it appeared in 1966.

Another easy-to-read translation, which is long on clarity though short on literary style, is "The Living Bible," which also has sold millions of copies since first published in 1971. Prepared by a layman, Kenneth N. Taylor, who found his children could not understand family devotions conducted with the King James Bible, The Living Bible really is a paraphrase rather than an exact translation of the original Hebrew and Greek of the scriptures. Although Taylor's paraphrasing often succeeds in rendering an obscure Biblical text clear and meaningful to contemporary readers, there are times when it also reflects his own theological views, which he has defined as those of a "rigidly evangelical" Protestant.

The New American Bible, published in 1970 under the auspices of the Catholic Biblical Association, also is easy to read and understand, and based on impeccable scholarship. Unfortunately, its English is plodding.

Latest updating

The New International Version, just out, is the work of about 100 Protestant translators of conservative bent and no great literary skill. It might be described as an updating of the King James for persons who fear that other modern translations may subvert fundamentalist theology.

The best-known and most widely-accepted modern English translation is the Revised Standard Version, produced by American Protestant scholars and in use for more than 20 years. It tries to maintain the sentence structure—and therefore the beauty—of the King James, while substituting contemporary for archaic English words. Its principal disadvantage, as a Christmas gift, is that it is the one new Bible that a person is most likely to have already.

My personal nominations as the best choices for Christmas giving—or for reading—are the Jerusalem Bible and the New English Bible.

The Jerusalem Bible is an English re-translation of a text produced in the 1960s by French Catholic scholars. It is held in high esteem by Biblical experts of all faiths, and its literary style, while somewhat uneven, is for the most part very good. This is due in part to the fact that the late J.R.R. Tolkien, the great English author of the "Lord of the Ring" series, was one of the stylists who polished the language of the Jerusalem Bible.

Grace and accuracy

Still better—in my opinion the best of all modern translations —is the New English Bible, published in 1970 by scholars of Oxford and Cambridge Universities. Not only is it impeccably accurate in its rendition of the original texts, it also has a grace of language which befits the transmission of sublime thoughts and eternal truths. Not since the King James has there been an English Bible of such superb literary quality. Again, its elegance of style is due to polishing by a committee of poets, including the late W.H. Auden, after the translators had done their work.

One shopping tip: whatever translation you choose, buy in the standard hardcover edition, not in a jazzed up, morocco-bound edition with illustrations and "reference aids." The latter will cost you several times as much as the former, but contain exactly the same words of Holy Writ.

The Bible is meant to be read, not placed on a coffee table. It is a great shame that — in this of all fields — publishers make a hard pitch, especially at Christmas for the sucker trade—people who judge a Bible by its price rather than the quality of the translation.

Quick thinking wasn't enough

GLASGOW, Scotland (UPI) — Thomas Barnett backed into another car and then tried to bluff his way out of trouble.

He ran home, shaved off his mustache, returned to the scene and told police his car had been stolen. But the other motorist recognized him even without his mustache, and the policeman spotted flecks of shaving soap under his nose, according to court testimony Monday.

Children may bring on abuse

NEW YORK (UPI) —Child abuse may as likely be brought about by the child, even a newborn infant, as his parents, a University of Rochester psychologist reported at a meeting at the University of Michigan.

"There is increasing evidence that aggravating behavior or abnormalities in the child, such as overactiveness, colic or a particularly grating cry, can provoke an already anxious aggressive parent to assault him," Dr. Arnold Sameroff said.

Fuel crisis spurs study

Non-gas autos come back

By EDWARD S. LECHTZIN
UPI Auto Writer

DETROIT (UPI) — Could it be back to "the good old days" for automobiles in this gasoline shore era?

At the start of the 20th Century, the gasoline-powered car started out a poor third to its steam and electric counterparts. That didn't last long and soon the steam and electric autos were left far behind and nearly forgotten.

Now there's renewed interest in these power sources, the gasoline and oil situation being what it is.

In 1900, when 4,195 vehicles were manufactured in this country, 1,681 of them were powered by steam, 1,575 by electricity and only 939 by gasoline engines. The steamers lasted until the 1930's and they attracted a loyal and vocal following.

"There was an instantaneous leap in response to the throttle, unmatchable by any gasoline car," remembers an aging owner of a steam car.

Oldtimers

At one time in the first 20 years of the century, more than 125 different makes of steam cars were on U.S. roads, bearing such names as the White, Mobile, Locomobile, Lane, Clark, Grout, Gearless, Delling and Doble.

By 1920, just a few remained and in 1925, the Stanley Steamer—the greatest of them all—had disappeared.

The Stanley brothers—twins Francis E. and Freeland O.—built their first steamer in 1897 although, they admitted later, "We knew but little about steam engines and less of oilers." Before the final Stanley Steamer was built in 1925, the company produced 18,000 cars.

"It is graceful and rakish in outline and unlike any gasoline car that can attain an equal speed, it has no odor, noise or vibration," an advertisement for a 1916 Stanley Steamer Roadster said. "It can be run through city streets without attracting the least attention except for its neat appearance."

But the Stanley brothers adhered to an old tradition of craftsmanship and refused to mass produce their cars, relying instead on hand-built bodies to bear their name. They always were behind in their orders and couldn't hope to compete with the innovative methods of Henry Ford.

Fuel economy problem

There has been renewed interest in the steam or Rankine cycle engine, but fuel economy remains a problem. In a recent California bus experiment, steam power plants consumed about three times the fuel of a diesel-powered bus.

Other problems include large weight and size, cost, water consumption, water freezing and lubrication.

Another engine being studied, especially by the Ford Motor Co., in this country, is the Stirling engine. An external burner heats a gas — usually hydrogen — sealed inside the engine and the expanding gas drives the pistons.

The experimental engines have proved to be clean, quiet and economical, but the engine still presents some packaging problems, primarily because of the need for a very large radiator.

From the standpoint of a gasless car, the electric car probably is receiving the most attention. It emits no exhaust fumes and is virtually noiseless.

But it can't travel very far without being recharged, weighs much more than a comparable gasoline-fueled car and would be ore expensive to produce until it could be built under mass-production methods.

Battery power

In discussing the battery electric power plants recently, General Motors President Edward N. Cole said they "simply transfer the problems from the tailpipe of the automobile to the smokestack of the central electric generating station."

Until there is a breakthrough in battery technology, the electric car has a very restricted role in the transportation system, Cole said.

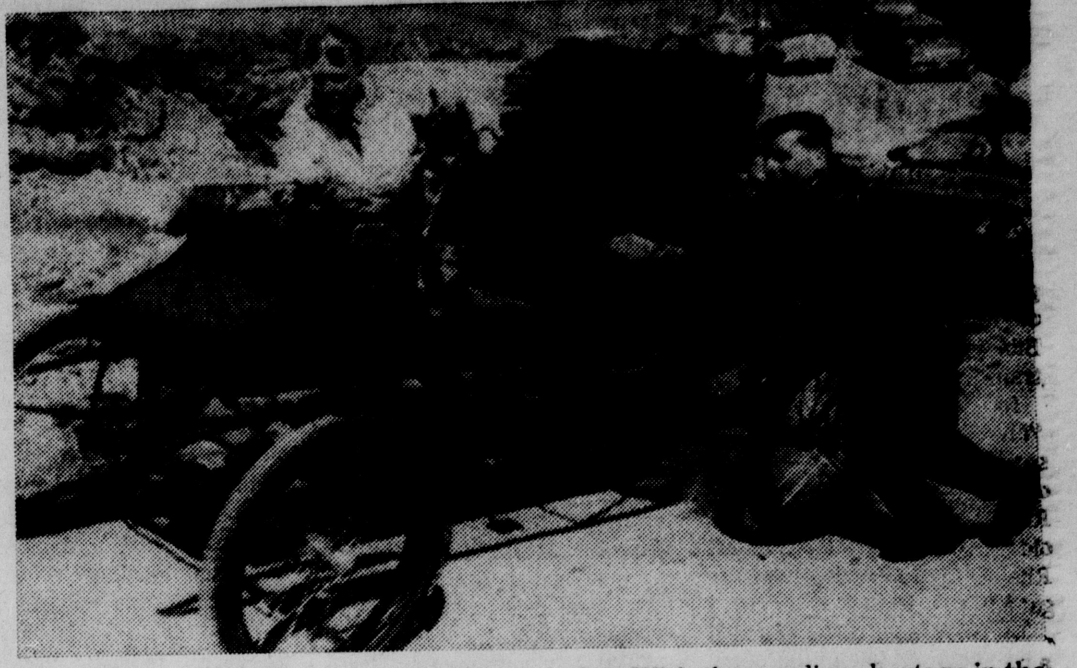
All the major U.S. automakers took part in the electric car resurgence of the mid-1960's, but admitted in a few years that they had been a little "overenthusiastic" about the potential of major battery breakthrough.

There are a number of electric cars on U.S. roads now, some conversions of regular gas-powered cars and others specially designed as electrics.

The electrics are most often considered as urban vehicles where only short distances are traveled and as the only serious means of shifting part of the energy burden away from the auto's present almost-total dependence on petroleum fuels.

The city of Birmingham,

(Please turn to E-6, Col. 3)



MAKING A COMEBACK — At the turn of the century the steam auto was the most popular vehicle on the road. But eventually it was passed by the gasoline car and faded into oblivion. With the gasoline shortage in the offing, however, it soon may be revived as the family auto. Here a Stanley Steamer is given a push at a New Hampshire celebration.

Prosperous Poles must 'capture' their furniture

WARSAW (UPI) — When a Warsaw woman recently decided to buy a new couch for her apartment, she did what anyone would do—who lives in Poland.

She arose at 5 a.m., lined up in the frosty morning air with other hopeful customers at Warsaw's main furniture store and waited until the 9 o'clock opening time to see if she could get one of the dozen or so couches delivered there each day.

Five mornings she went, five mornings she was too far down the line to make her purchase. Finally she hired the son of a neighbor to stand in her place and he got the couch—but not before queueing up every morning for another week.

That sort of experience can be the rule rather than the exception in Poland, where home furnishings are almost as hard to buy today as meat was 10 years ago.

As the newspaper Zycie Warszawy said, "You don't buy furniture, you capture it."

Three months' wait

Tables, chairs and sofas sometimes take three months or longer to obtain. Lamps are all but impossible to find.

Dawn-to-dusk queues are frequent outside furniture stores and quarrels among those waiting are not uncommon.

Ironically, the shortage is largely a product of Poland's new-found prosperity. It's a perfect example of the growing pains that are hobbling this country's two-year-old economic boom.

"The explanation (for the lack of furniture) is really very simple. "It stems from growth of the population's incomes, a faster tempo of housing construction and the desire to have more comfortable and modern furnishings at home."

Take wages, for instance. They've gone up 20 per cent in three years as part of the government's drive to raise living standards. Yet many prices have remained frozen and day-to-day expenses have risen no more than 10 or 15 per cent.

Therefore millions of Poles have extra income. What do they do with it? Buy furniture, among other things. Shops here sell out as fast as new supplies arrive.

Housing boom

Then there's housing. Previous governments neglected the national building program, which even today remains vitally important considering three-fourths of Poland's urban dwellings were destroyed during World War II.

Anxious not to repeat mistakes of the past, present leaders stepped up construction to the point that 250,000 apartments now are being built every year.

But new homes need new furniture—lots of it. And that puts even more pressure on the home furnishing market.

"We could sell 50 of these every day," a willowy blonde salesgirl at Warsaw's cavernous Dom Meblowy ("House of Furniture") told UPI. She gestured towards a neat row of green folding daybeds—each tagged "sold"—lined up in front of her.

The girl said when she came to work that morning 37 people were waiting outside the store in hopes of buying one of the 16 daybeds delivered during the night.

"These are the lucky ones," she said, holding out a sheet of paper with 16 signatures scrawled across it.

Neglected industry

No short-term solution to the problem presents itself, although the demand for furniture is expected to double in the next five years. According to journalist Jozef Kusmierek of Zycie Warszawy:

"Nobody likes to work for the (furniture) industry and, what's worse, no one takes it seriously. Too many people think of it as some kind of handicraft."

What most experts recommend is a thorough reorganization of the industry, introduction of production incentives, improved training of skilled personnel and better coordination with related industries.

One big step, they say, would be to remove responsibility for furniture production away from the Ministry of Forestry which, as one official said, "seems more interested in trees than tables and chairs."

Yet journalist Kusmierek remains doubtful. "From a social, cultural and economic point of view, there are few phenomena as useful as having people interested in their apartments," he wrote. "The fact this phenomena exists in Poland should please us.

UCLA economists predict poor start, but late rally

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — UCLA economists have predicted rocky going in 1974 for the U.S. economy with a rally later in the year if the flow of oil from the Middle East is renewed.

At their 22nd annual business forecasting conference, the economists predicted:

—A substantial decline in residential construction.

—Increased unemployment.

—Worsening inflation and rising consumer prices.

—A decline in interest rates and corporate profits.

—An increase in the Gross National Product by $99 billion or 7.7 per cent.

—A decline in industrial production by 0.4 per cent, in private housing construction by 18 per cent.

—An increase in wholesale prices by 6 per cent (a drop of 7.4 per cent from 1973). And an increase in consumer prices by 7.5 per cent compared with 6.1 per cent this year.

—Stock market prices will rise late next year.

—The Dow Jones Industrial average will fluctuate in a range of 750 to 1050.

Old phrase turned to a new use

NEW YORK (UPI) — Wilma Scott Heide, president of the National Organization for Women (NOW), always gets a laugh and applause on the circuit when she cites "old husband's tales."

That is the feminist's way of putting a stop to the circulation of "old wives tales" a sexist phrase.

Non-gas autos . . .

Mich., a Detroit suburb, recently began testing a new electric van developed by the Copper Development Association (CDA). Know as the Copper Electric Van IIIB, it was put into service with the Birmingham Water Meter Department where it will operate with other gasoline-powered vans.

"With the cost of gasoline going up rapidly and the supply situation for the future somewhat uncertain, we are pleased to have the opportunity to test an electric van," said Mayor Ralph W. Moxley.

The vehicle was built specifically for the stop-and-go driving found in suburban use.

Preliminary data showed its top speed was 52 miles per hour with a 95-mile range at a constant speed of 40 m.p.h. In typical metropolitan traffic requiring two stops per mile, the range drops to 53 miles.

It's powered by 36, six-volt, lead-acid storage batteries similar to the batteries used in golf carts.

The low-range and high initial cost is a good example of the reasons the electric vehicle is not ready to displace the gasoline-powered car. The present internal combustion engine may have strong competition in the near future, but not from the steam and electric cars.

Modern tapestries from 13 countries on exhibit

LOS ANGELES — "Contemporary Tapestries in Many Lands," an exhibit of 23 tapestries from 13 countries, is now on display at the California Museum of Science and Industry, Exposition Park. It runs through Jan. 27.

The tapestries were selected from the collection of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Hurschler of Pasadena, who in the last decade have been actively collecting, exhibiting and distributing contemporary tapestries from all over the world.

A number of the works on display have been woven in the traditional manner, mainly in Aubusson, France, and Portalegre, Portugal. Many others are unique wall hangings by innovative artist-weavers who explore techniques and materials. Woven with cotton, wool, jute, hemp, sisal, silk, hair, metal thread and other fibers, the compositions frequently have more the quality of sculptures than of traditional tapestries.

By showing artist-designed and workshop-woven tapestries, as well as an increasing number of unique pieces by artist-weavers, the Hurschlers hope to stimulate an appreciation for the contemporary manifestations of an age-old art form.

The museum is open daily from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., except Christmas.

Pomona chorus to offer Yule music on Friday

POMONA — The Pomona Community Chorus, directed by Ray Woods, will present a program of Christmas music at the Pomona Unified School District auditorium at 8 p.m. Friday.

The chorus, assisted by the choir of the First Presbyterian Church of San Pedro, will perform J. S. Bach's "Magnificat" with orchestra and soloists. This will be followed by a program of light Christmas music.

Soloists will be Charlotte Carpena, Stan Chapen, Randy Collins, Tina Harrell, Hayden Jones, Jim Marquis and June Smith.

Tickets are $1, students 50 cents, senior citizens and children free.

Islamic art collection on view at museum

LOS ANGELES — A major collection of Islamic art will go on exhibition at the county Museum of Art Dec. 20. The exhibit will continue to March 3.

The collection of 650 objects, formed by the late Nasli M. Heeramaneck, was recently purchased for the museum by Mrs. Joan Palevsky, a member of the board of trustees. It is one of the most comprehensive collections in the United States, covering the entire range of Islamic art produced between 700 and 1900 A.D., in the area bounded by Turkey in the West and Afghanistan in the East.

The exhibition, composed of approximately 500 of the most important works from the collection, includes: paintings and calligraphy, glass, bronzes, ceramics and textiles from Middle Eastern countries such as Turkey, Syria, Egypt, Persia and Iraq, where Islam has been the driving religious and cultural force since the 7th Century.

Persian aesthetics and taste greatly influenced the art of Islam, and it was Persian literature that inspired the great Islamic miniatures. The miniature paintings in the exhibition illustrate the brilliant calligraphy characteristic of Islamic art, as well as the rich and colorful figurative imagery developed after the 10th Century. Of particular interest are the Shiraz miniatures of the 15th and 16th centuries, a period when Persian painting reached its apogee, as well as works by 17th Century masters such as Riza-i-Abbasi, famous for his paintings of elegant youths and ladies, and his pupil Mu'in Mussawir, whose work dominated the second half of the century.

Apart from painting, perhaps the most renowned Islamic art works are the ceramics. The exhibition includes superb examples of every major type of pottery produced in the Islamic world. Of special importance are the monumental objects such as a 15th Century Mihrab (prayer nich), a large section of a 17th Century Safavid palace tile, and a calligraphic tile from Isnik, famous Turkish center for ceramic art during the Ottoman Empire.

Also on view fill be a collection of Islamic metal work, including examples from the Seljuk period which was particularly renowned for its extravagant designs. For the most part Islamic metalwork consists of items of everyday use such as candlesticks, jugs and drinking cups, as well as highly stylized sculpture of birds and animals used either as incense burners or finials. Highlighting this portion of the exhibition and attesting to the sumptuous and luxurious quality of Islamic art, are glittering gold objects such as a 10th Century bracelet and a 16th century royal sword from Persia.

The exhibition includes a large and important selection of Islamic textiles. Of special interest are the Persian floral fabrics which depict refined sensibility and the Turkish velvets of the 16th and 17th centuries, which are the most visually dramatic of all Islamic textiles and were a great influence on Western textiles, particularly Italian Renaissance velvets.

College players taking show about on a wagon

CLAREMONT — The Four Colleges Players of Claremont will present their annual production of "The First Shepherd's Play" on the colorful pageant wagon at various locations in Claremont this week.

Performances are Thursday at 1:15 p.m. at Pilgrim Place and at 3 p.m. in Memorial Park; Friday, at 1:30 p.m. at the Claremont School of Tenology and at 3 p.m. on the Bowling Green at Scripps College; and Saturday at 1 p.m. in front of Garrison Theater and at 3 p.m. by the Coop at Pomona College.

The presentation is free of charge.

Directed by Linda M. Grinstead, the shepherds are portrayed by Ken Sturm, Jeremiah Barry, and Pat Costello. Others in the cast are Steven Cotten, Ruth Fisher, who is also stage manager, and Ardele Leavelle.

The play is under the general supervision of Jesse Swan, professor of drama at the four colleges.

"The Second Shepherd's Play" is an Interlude of the 32 plays in the Wakefield Cycle first presented in England during the 14th and 15th centuries.

CGS students show work in Libra Gallery

CLAREMONT — An art show in clay opens next Wednesday night at Claremont Graduate School's Libra Gallery.

Two CGS students, Don Huffman and Steve Nagler, will show their work. Huffman constructs rough earthenware and stoneware forms, Nagler does earthenware landscapes. Both artists are residents of Claremont.

The show will open at 7:30 Wednesday night and continue through Dec. 17. After the opening, show hours are 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Libra Gallery is at 12th Street and Dartmouth Avenue.

Farmer needs raft for work in flooded fields

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Timothy Mulcahy watched his ranch foreman float by on a sail-equipped raft over what used to be his pastureland and reminisced about last winter's flood that looks like it will never go away.

"We lost 50 per cent of our crop," said the 31-year-old rancher, "and it cost four times as much as normal to harvest what was left."

Buenos Aires Province, which by itself is larger than Italy, was hit during the southern hemisphere winter with more than 60 inches of rainfall, most of it in two months. The average annual rainfall is 30 inches. The land is flat and the water has nowhere to go. Six months later it is still there.

Increasing Mulcahy's harvesting expense was the need to buy a huge four-wheel drive tractor that could maneuver on the muddy ground that was not fully flooded.

He also bought 1,100 pigs to eat the corn that the tractors couldn't get and that would have gone to waste.

"We couldn't sell it as grain," said Mulcahy's wife Marianne, a native of Cornwall, England, "so we sold it in the stomachs of pigs."

Had to sell

Mulcahy, his father, and his two brothers who run the farm that has been in the family since 1865, were forced to sell more than 10 per cent of the 5,600 acre spread.

But they could not offer for sale the acreage remaining under water.

"It may take as much as four or five years for the water to drain," Mulcahy said, "since it is already at the water table (or level of the underground water)."

A British economic writer said "it is as if there were a long constant rainfall in Holland. Holland would disappear."

At its height in May the flood covered somewhere between 2.4 million and 5 million acres, or an area that would cover much of Holland.

It is perhaps a measure of the size of Argentina's fertile farmland that despite the floods there were no wheat or corn shortages. But some government miscalculation of the size of the pending crop, and some advance sales of what that was later flooded caused the country to import some grain at the end of the season.

Mulcahy found one silver lining in the storm clouds that inundated his land. He discovered a family of black neck swans, a breed which he said was nearing extinction, apparently thriving on the flooded conditions near his home.

He raised them from a few weeks of age, and a few weeks ago brought them to his pastureland which is a lovely place for swans who like floods.

Ranch hands on Timothy Mulcahy's 5,000-acre spread at Nueve de Julio, left, a cattle town in Argentina, have to be pretty good sailors. They use raft to travel over some of the pasture and corn fields still under water after last winter's flood. More than 60 inches of rain fell in two months, inundating somewhere between 2.4 million and 5 million acres.

State's geologic dangers outlined in unique study

By DONALD THORNTON

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Devastating earthquakes from San Francisco to Los Angeles, lava spewing volcanoes in the north and tidal waves the length of the coast could lay waste to populous California at any time.

In fact, those three potential dangers and the seven others making up the Golden State's top 10 geological hazards, could cause a staggering $55 billion damage between 1970 and the year 2000, according to official state estimates.

Plagued historically by such deadly events, the state isn't waiting for another disaster— such as the 1971 San Fernando earthquake—before taking action.

The California Division of Mines and Geology has prepared a comprehensive, 112-page report, titled Urban Geology Master Plan for California, estimating the losses from the 10 hazards—and giving detailed action to take to reduce them.

The report, which took three years to prepare, is designed to help state and local agencies plan for safe and orderly growth in relation to geological hazards.

"It's the first report of its kind made anywhere by anyone," said State Geologist Wesley G. Bruer.

"Our main thrust was to examine the nature of these hazards, their magnitude and to try to come up with some thoughts on how they can be reduced," he said.

Although the report details catastrophic life and monetary losses which can be expected from 1970 to the year 2000, Bruer said, "We think it's a matter-of-fact report and in most respects a conservative report." But he admitted the final figures "sort of alarmed us."

An example of such figures are those listed for earthquakes. According to the report, quakes during 1970-2000 could kill more than 50,000 persons, injure tens of thousands of others and cause an estimated $21 million damage in California.

But the report also states that if its recommendations are followed, quake life loss could be reduced by 90 per cent and dollar damage cut by 50 per cent.

The recommendations, costing an estimated $2 billion, include better quake prediction and vigorous enforcement of improved building codes, such as the tearing down of old buildings.

"The most important thing is that as well as being in the interest of public safety and protection of property from damage, the geological loss reduction measures also make very good economic sense— they're good business," Bruer said.

At a cost of $6 billion, Bruer said, the state could reduce the $55 billion damage total by 69 per cent. The overall recommendations include, in addition to improved building codes, strict land use zoning, sophisticated warning systems for volcanoes, landslides and tsunamis and the addition of geologists to the staffs of all state and local growth planning agencies.

Other hazards and potential damage listed by the report included: mineral resources loss due to urbanization $17 billion; landslides $9.9 billion; flooding $6.5 billion; erosion $600 million; expansive soil (shrinking and swelling) $150 million; Fault displacement $76 million; volcanic eruption (most probably in the Mt. Shasta-Mt. Lassen area) $49 million; tsunami $41 million, and soil subsidence $26 million.

Thomas E. Gay, a senior state geologist and one of three authors of the report, said that although it dramatized loss figures, it was not intended to be a "scare report."

But he continued, "It's an expression of the seriousness of the problem. There are things that should be done and we should get to them."

State and local agencies, he added, should plan ahead and "not wait to be reminded by earthquakes or flooding disasters."

The master plan, according to Bruer, will be a "working document. We will continuously review not only its contents but also we're going to attempt to monitor the new measures or increased level in reduction measures taken in the state to see how much ground we're gaining, if any."

But he added, "We don't have any legal clout to go tell people to do this or else. What we tried to say is if you do these things you'll prevent a great deal of loss and pain in the future."

Pewter is no passing fancy

"Everyone needs one extravagance."

With this statement Burton Pell reveals the philosophy which has built this fine collection of pewter.

Pewter, with its satin-like soft-to-touch surface, has been known to craftsmen for at least 4,000 years. If you like pewter, you will probably say it has a mellow, rich appearance. If you don't like pewter you will probably think it is a dull imitation of silver.

Pell said he is "hooked on pewter" and has a collection of antique objects fairly representative of English, European and American craftsmanship.

Pewter is a very workable alloy, composed of tin and copper with lead and antimony or bismuth added. Generally, the higher the lead content the cheaper the grade of pewter.

Because it is so workable very little early pewter is to be found. Usually broken or damaged pieces were taken to the pewterer and traded for new. The old pewter was then melted down and reworked.

This is particularly true of the Colonial American pieces which resembled English pewter in style.

"Most of our early pewterers were of English or Dutch descent," Pell said, explaining the similarity of design. However, he added that it is easy to distinguish the American pieces because they lack the luster that English pewter possesses. The more often pewter was reused the more impure it became.

Pell likes to talk about the individual pieces in his collection although a large share of his pewter was acquired by purchasing a "collection gathred by someone of great taste," he explained.

An interior designer, Pell travels extensively and has garnered some very fine pieces of Continental pewter. "Continental is a coverall term because it is very difficult to determine the exact origin of many European pieces.'

It was on on of his European trips that he purchased a pewter handwarmer, thinking it was a flask. When he found a similar one pictured in a German book on pewter he had the description translated and learned the true identity of the object.

Pell is interested in articles of workship and he has a rare French crucifix, candlesticks, communion cup and baptismal fount. He explained that in times of economic depression churches sold their silver plate and replaced it with pewter, using the money to aid the poor.

He recently acquired two alms basisn. One by Samuel Cocks is English, circa 1820. Inscribed on the rim of the face is, "Body, south side, begin at east end," denoting how and where the offering was to be taken.

The second plate has the words, "Dissenting Congregation, Edin. 1804," on the face. It is his first piece of Scottish origin.

A member of the Pewter Collectors Club of America, Pell attends at least one meeting a year and through the club has access to the expertise of pewter authorities.

He advises new collectors: "Don't just grab and buy. Find the thing that you like and specialize in it."

Judge to 'tell it to judge'

RENO, Nev. (UPI) — District Judge John Barrett will "tell it to the judge."

He was cited by a California Highway Patrolman for going too slow on Interstate 80. Barrett, accustomed to Nevada's unlimited speeds on the open road, thought he was being a good citizen by going along with President Nixon's recommendation that motorists drive at 50 miles per hour to conserve gasoline.

"That's not the law," said the patrolman. "That's too slow."

Barrett took the ticket and said he would appear in court— after driving home at 50 m.p.h.

TODAY'S Women

Auxiliary schedules home tour

Three charming homes in Claremont, each with a distinct personality, will be opened to guests at the "Christmas Fantasy" sponsored Wednesday by the Pomona Valley Community Hospital Auxiliary.

Open from 2 to 10 p.m. will be the homes of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Atwell, 739 Harvard Ave.; Dr. and Mrs. Edward Hauch, 693 W. 9th St., and Dr. and Mrs. Gerald Stiles, Claremont.

Proceeds from the tour will benefit the Sick Baby Fund of the auxiliary which financially assists families when babies or children are in need of medical care.

Mrs. William H. Ariss is general chairman for the yule home tour. Chairmen for the homes are Mrs. Nelson Bell, Atwell home; Mrs. Gerald Rathbun, Stiles home; and Mrs. Harold S. Edick, Hauch home.

Serving as chairmen also are Miss Edith Frances Eells, Mmes. Harry Kinne, Carl Ohler, Lawrence Smith, Chester Rappe, Charles Pacini, G. J. McGuire, Herman Wente and Robert Steele.

Tickets are available at the Volunteer Office at the hospital or by calling Mrs. Chester Rappe, 624-2191.

Attending the Christmas Fantasy promises a delightful way to start the holiday season while supporting the fund for children, states Mrs. Ariss.

BENEFIT PLANS MADE

LIGHTING CANDLES

Mrs. Robert Steele, seated, Mrs. Don Hershey and Mrs. Edward Hauch light candles in the Hauch home, one of three to be open for the PVCH Auxiliary tour on Wednesday.

HOME TOUR ARRANGED

Dr. Constance W. Atwell, left, discusses plans to decorate her home with Mrs. William H. Ariss, general chairman of home tour, and Miss Edith Frances Eells. Proceeds from tour will benefit Sick Baby Fund of hospital auxiliary. Homes will be open from 2 to 10 p.m.

Children stage grabbing spree in toy departments—for free!

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
UPI Family Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Every little kid dreams at one time or another of being locked in toyland overnight.

The visions occur every year around this time, frequently after seeing a picture of Santa or, even better, visiting him.

Very few children ever get to spend that night among the toys, to play with them all, testing ones they might want. But eight really lucky boys and girls ranging in age from seven to 12 got a chance to stage a grabbing spree in toylands in their cities.

The aisles were cleared. The children—six girls and two boys —were told they could take home all the toys they could grab in three minutes. At no charge to their parents. At no risk of a shoplifting charge.

The names of children selected to live out the fantasy of a young lifetime were drawn at random. Each child participating in the lottery had put on a homemade carnival to raise money for the Muscular Dystrophy Association of America.

The winners spent these free three-minute shopping sprees in toy supermarts in the Toys-RUs chain, which footed the bill. In the suburbs of Chicago, Washington, D.C., Baltimore, Los Angeles, San Diego, Detroit, San Francisco and Richmond.

Of interest to Santa's helpers is which toys scored high with the kids. Going through a list of what they grabbed, there are some surprises.

Two little girls took footballs. The biggest puzzlement was created by Christine Eisel, 10, of Hamtramck, Mich. She ran off with a red football uniform. Said it was for her male cousin in Ashland, Ohio.

Aside from bicycles, the only items that might be described as favorites were tape recorders (seven), radios (six), sleeping bags (five), cameras (five) and phonographs (three).

Aside from those items, not more than two children agreed on any other categories. The only unanimous choice: bicycles. One little girl took two: one for herself and one for her mother.

Only two girls selected dolls and only one a doll buggy.

The youngest child who won a free toy shopping spree was Wendy Percy, 7, of Glenview, Ill., a Chicago suburb. Her loot included a bike, a watch, a tape recorder, a camera, two radios, two dolls, a doll house, a typewriter, a phonograph, a couple of games, a couple of paint-by-number sets and a marking printing set. Retail value of her free toys: $247.98.

Charles Hilliard, 10, of Glendora, Calif., a suburb of Los Angeles, made off with the highest dollar value by concentrating on expensive items. To wit: a 10-speed bike, an electric train set, a casette recorder, a walkie-talkie, a three-band radio, a gym set, two tennis rackets, a skate board, a phonograph, a football, a sleeping bag and a back pack. Total value: $521.33.

Of specific help to you uncles, aunts and grandparents who need some idea of what children of specific ages selected:

—Girl, 11. Ten-speed bike, tape recorder, walkie talkie, tent, sleeping bag, slumber bag, radio, two games.

—Girl, 10. Tandem bike, football game, football, organ, show-n-tell records, large bear, telescope with tripod, pogo stick.

—Boy, 10. Ten-speed bike, train, cassette recorder, three band radio, gym set, skateboard, phonograph, tennis rackets, football, sleeping bag, back pack, racing banner—for his new bike.

—Girl, 11. Four band radio, AM-FM radio, cassette recorder, camera, guitar, sleeping bag, stereo system, directional signals and many assorted other things for her bike— chrome mirror, combo chain lock, rainbow spokettes, water bottle, kickstand.

—Girl, 10. Ten-speed bike, doll buggy, pocket camera, clock radio, tape recorder, roller skates, candle molds, guitar, furniture set.

—Girl, 12. Ten-speed racer bike. Back pack, tennis racket, football, sleeping bag, steel tennis racket, basketball and other sports and outdoor equipment.

If this look at the toy tastes of some children still leaves you puzzled over a gift for a child on your list, send money.

Complete kitchen

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (UPI) — More than 95 per cent of all American homes in 1970 boasted complete kitchens, including hot and cold running water, according to the Building Components Division, Rockwell International Corp.

Slightly more than 93 per cent could claim a bathroom with hot and cold running water, a flush toilet and bathtub or shower, the plumbing supplies producer reported.

Nutritionist is speaker for meeting

Pomona Valley Chapter of the American Nutrition Society has invited the public to join the members in hearing a talk by Elizabeth Broadston, lecturer, author and radio personality, Tuesday at 7:30 p.m.

Mrs. Broadston's topic will be "Nutrition Potpourri." The speaker has held many positions in dietetics and has brought up her family according to the basic principles of the American Nutrition Society.

The meeting will be held at Pomona First Federal Savings and Loan, Indian Hill and Foothill boulevards, Claremont.

Information on the program may be obtained by calling 626-6974 or 626-6277.

Lepire, Eckeard troth told

Mr. and Mrs. Ray J. Lepire of Pomona announce the engagement of their daughter, Jeanette Marie (Ginger), and John Raymond Eckeard III.

Miss Lepire is a 1969 graduate of Claremont High School and a 1971 graduate of Modesto Junior College where she majored in Police Science. She has attended Cal Poly Pomona and Cal State San Jose.

The bride-elect is employed by Los Angeles County as a deputy clerk in Pomona Municipal Court.

Her fiance is the son of John R. Eckeard Jr. of La Verne and Mrs. Margaret Ulfers of Chino. He graduated from Bonita High School and attended Mt. San Antonio College.

Mr. Eckeard served 18 months in the Army as a member of the military police in Ethiopia. He is now an investigator for the State Department of Labor Law Enforcement. He is attending the California Highway Patrol Academy.

The couple will be wed on June 29.

Mr. Lewis to speak in Chino

Jerry Lewis will address the Monday morning meeting of the Chino Federation of Republican Women. A coffee is planned at 10 a.m. in the recreation room of the Pembroke Downs Mobile Park, 12400 Cypress, Chino.

Mr. Lewis now represents the 73rd Assembly District and is seeking the 20th District Senatorial Seat vacated by Sen. William Coombs. The special election will be Dec. 18.

At 11 a.m., Mrs. Robert Wilson of the San Bernardino County Club, will install new officers of the Chino group. The new officers are Mmes. Donald Lamb, president; Sherman Pruitt, first vice president; Clarence Wanger, second vice president; Bruce Barnes, secretary; Roy Harris, treasurer; James Sanchez, publicity chairman; Jack Moons, parliamentarian; Pete Vander Poel, legislation chairman; Arie Van Lueween, chaplain; and George Fritz, auditor.

The public is invited to hear Mr. Lewis and need not stay for the business session unless they wish.

Volunteer group sets luncheon

The Police Declaratory Quorum has scheduled a no-host luncheon Monday noon at the Claremont Depot.

The volunteer citizens group which is dedicated to promoting good police-community relations will visit the California Youth Authority in the afternoon, according to Mrs. Helene Worness, chairman.

Reservations for the luncheon and tour may be made by calling 624-6531 or 622-3659.

Scarves

Give a girl enough scarf . . . and that's just what is happening in the fall and winter clothes. Scarves come in all dimensions and in all sorts of exaggerations. Sometimes they add sharp color contrast to a costume but more often they're coordinated in color. Special favorites are the pale beige and camel tones and the long rectangular shapes that loop loosely at the throat and fall to the waistline or lower.

There's a shirtdress for every home seamstress to tackle — from the young homesewer who's used to jeans as a way of life to the woman who never gave up wearing comfy shirtdresses in the first place.

GOP Women to hear Richardson Thursday

An evening with State Sen. H. L. (Bill) Richardson is planned for the Christmas program of the Pomona Valley Republican Women's Club Thursday.

"The Coming Victory" will be the senator's topic for the dinner meeting at Buffums Palomares Room. A social hour at 6:30 p.m. will precede the 7:30 dinner.

Senator Richardson's recognized knowledge in the field of conservation gained him a seat on the Natural Resources Committee of the California Senate. He was formerly chairman of the Senate Commitee of Fish and Game.

Raised in Chicago, the senator is a self-made man who worked his way through schools and colleges after once dropping out of high school. His creative ability in commercial art and writing has been an asset to him in the senate. His book, "Slightly to the Right," has sold over 300,000 copies and he has produced film strips on subjects ranging from marijuana abuse to the death penalty.

H. L. RICHARDSON

Husbands and guests of members are invited to the holiday program. Christmas music will be presented by a Pomona High School musical group.

Reservations are due by Friday and may be made by calling 629-8602 or 622-4966.

Best style

The two-piece shirtdress may well be the best of both fashion worlds. It combines the freedom of separates with the uncontrived, fresh look of a dress.

LAS POSADAS THEME — Chester Johnson, foreground, models Mexican hat depicting theme for Las Posadas party. In background are Mrs. Jim McEwen, committee member, and the Very Rev. Msgr. William J. Barry, pastor of Our Lady of the Assumption Church.

LORETTA VARELA

June date selected by couple

Miss Loretta Varela and Greg Gulick are to be married on June 29.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julio Varela of Montclair. She graduated from Montclair High School in 1971 and attended Chaffey College.

Miss Varela is employed at May Co., Montclair.

The groom-to-be is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gulick of Newport Beach. She attended Claremont High School and Citrus College. He is employed at Pacific Rubber Stamp Manufacturing Company.

Ontario BPW sets activity

Christmas music will be presented by the Chaffey High School ensemble at the Tuesday meeting of the Ontario Business and Professional Women's Club.

Mrs. Samuel Kaufman will present the program for the evening, "My Visit to Russia."

Members will meet at 6 p.m. at the Holiday Inn, Ontario, and will take unwrapped gifts to the meeting for inmates of Patton State Hospital, San Bernardino.

Bridge section of the Ontario BPW will meet Dec. 20 at the home of Celesta Walters.

Annual dinner dance charted Saturday eve

"Las Posadas" is the theme for the annual Christmas dinner dance sponsored by Our Lady of the Assumption Catholic Church on Dec. 15.

The 7 p.m. party will be in the Damien High School gymnasium, 1124 Bonita Ave., La Verne.

Las Posadas spotlights the procession of Mary and Joseph as they seek shelter on Christmas Eve. The traditional procession includes music, featuring singers in the parish.

Chairmen are Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lerma and Juan Gambea. Mr. and Mrs. Jose Obeso will again make the pinata which will be smashed by some lucky guest during the evening.

Other chairmen include Mr. and Mrs. Art Escovedo, treasurer and reservations; Mrs. Jim McEwan and Chris Torcivia, decorations; Roman Salizar, refreshments; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gerdeman, publicity. Assisting with plans is the Very Rev. Msgr. William J. Barry, pastor.

Sal Vsquez, and his band will play for the dancing after dinner.

Among the special guests will be nuns and priests who have served Our Lady of the Assumption parish in the past. Menudo will be served Sunday morning after the party. It will be at the church auditorium.

Fire Dept. Auxiliary sets party

The Pomona Fire Department Auxiliary has planned its annual Christmas party Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Robert Hecht.

Hostesses for the evening are Mrs. Ed Neilson, Mrs. Larry Ogle, Mrs. Kurt Lindebaum and Mrs. Dwaine Lindebaum.

Officers will be elected and committee reports submitted at the meeting. The party will include a gift exchange and fondue snacks. A Christmas basket will be collected and then given to a needy Pomona family.

Fire department personnel and their children will gather on Saturday at Station 6 for a Children's Christmas Party from 10 a.m. to noon.

Included will be special entertainment and Santa Claus. Punch, coffee and candy will be provided and parents are asked to take a $2 gift with their child's name on it and a half dozen cookies per child.

Prices celebrate 25th year

Members of the congregation of Trinity Lutheran Church in Pomona held a reception recently in observance of the 25th wedding anniversary of their pastor and his wife, the Rev. and Mrs. Harold C. Price.

At the mornng service Pastor Price and his wife repeated the wedding vows they ahd made 25 years ago in San Diego. He pointed out that five of the years have been spent in the Pomona parish.

Pastor Price is chairman of the Community Life Commission for Pomona and dean of the San Gabriel District of the Lutheran Church in America.

Library to show yule films

A series of Christmas films for preschool children will be shown at the Pomona Library on Tuesday starting at 10 a.m. in the story hour room.

Different films will be shown on Dec. 18 at the same time and place.

Parents and preschool teachers are invited to accompany the children. Each program will be about 45 minutes long and free of charge for all residents of West End, Pomona and San Gabriel Valleys.

"How the Animals Discovered Christmas," "The Littlest Angel,'' and "Christmas Crackers" will be shown this Tuesday. The second program will include "The Great Toy Robbery" and "The Story of the Night Before Christmas."

Films are part of the continuing series of children's activities offered by the Pomona Library. For more information, call the library.

Vicksburg WRC plans potluck

The nomination and election of officers will be held at the Wednesday meeting of Vicksburg Woman's Relief Corps at the VFW Hall.

A covered-dish luncheon will be served at 11:30 a.m. to honor members having birthdays in October, November and December. Mrs. Ethel White will bake the birthday cake and Mrs. Annie Bentley will have charge of the dining room. Mrs. Ruby Barrett and Mrs. Anna May Clark will be in charge of the kitchen.

The business meeting will begin at 1 p.m. Members are asked to bring donations for baskets to be delivered to shut-ins at Christmas.

Grange sets 3 programs this week

Fair Valley Grange will meet for a business session on Wednesday at 8 p.m. at 11667 S. Monte Vista Ave.

On Friday at 8 p.m. the Women's Activities group will meet for a Christmas party and gift exchange.

The grange will meet for a potluck dinner and Christmas program on Saturday at 6:30 p.m. An exchange of gifts will take place during the evening.

VISIBLE MAN

FOR PATIENTS—Mrs. Betty Clark and Mrs. Delbert E. Barb, right, stack models, kits and games to be delivered to the Camp Pendleton Hospital by members of the Pomona Navy Mothers Club.

Navy Mothers bring gifts to Pendleton

Two hundred dollars worth of games, models and various kits are being presented to patients at the Camp Pendleton Hospital by the Pomona Navy Mothers Club 444.

Members of the club visiting the hospital are also delivering apples donated by the San Dimas Grange, Christmas candy, and knitted cast socks and lap robes. Mrs. Gertrude Burton and Mrs. Katie Esqueda are chairmen for the annual holiday program at the hospital. Three wards, with a total of about 50 patients, will be visited.

Funds for the gifts were raised during the Baby Pageant sponsored by the club.

The Navy Mothers will have a Christmas luncheon and gift exchange on Dec. 18 at noon at the Naval Reserve Trining Center, 1700 E. 1st St.

Pen Women schedule yule party

Claremont Branch of the National League of American Pen Women will have a Christmas party and meeting Thursday at 2:30 p.m. in the home of Mrs. Philip White, 2461 Mesa Terrace, Upland.

Other hostesses will be Mmes. Alan T. Doody, Alan Palmer, Ivan Petroff and Fred Riddington.

Several members will present creative work in prose, poetry, art or music appropriate to the season.

Fur patterns

Watch for something new in fur patterning. Designer Pauline Trigere calls it marbelizing, skillfully working skins in tones of beige, gray and off-white into an unusual mix. The fur is dyed fox.

Campus group to fete women at colleges

All campus women are invited by the Campus Women of the Claremont Colleges to attend a Christmas coffee at the Athenaeum on the Claremont Men's College campus from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. Monday.

The Athenaeum is located at 890 Columbia Ave., across from the new addition to Honnold Library.

There will also be a Holiday Punch from 4 until 6 p.m. on the same day so that individuals who are not free in the morning may have an opportunity to attend.

The occasion will provide an opportunity for women on and off campus to get together to mark the holiday season, to share a holiday recipe or a Christmas decoration idea and to enjoy the Athenaeum's special Christmas decorations done by Jil Stark.

MR. AND MRS. CARROLL PALMER

Carroll Palmers mark golden anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Palmer of Pomona greeted the 150 guests who gathered Saturday to honor them at their 50th wedding anniversary reception.

Hosting the celebration were the couple's son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth E. Palmer of Upland.

The former Dorothy Pedley and Carroll Palmer, both natives of Pomona, were married Dec. 23, 1923, in the Trinity Methodist Church of Pomona. Mr. Palmer was employed by the Consolidated Water Company for several years before it was purchased by the City of Pomona in 1926. In 1965 he retired as a mechanical electrician after 39 years of employment with the City of Pomona.

Mr. Palmer was active in the Old Baldy Scout Council as a neighborhood commissioner for several years. Mr. and Mrs. Palmer are members of the Community Baptist Church of Ontario where they have served as deacons and Sunday school teachers.

Besides a son the couple also has three grandchildren and a great-grandaughter.

Wearing hats

A woman about town in New York the other day reported seeing more men wearing hats. It may mean that the men's hat industry, on the dormant side for so many seasons, may come to life.

"I saw," said one woman, "four men walking four abreast and they looked peculiar. Then I figured out why they looked peculiar. Each had on a hat!" Then she looked around and saw other men with hats.

Mrs. Reeves to entertain

''Creches Around the World" will be presented by Mrs. Florence Reeves when the Pomona Woman's Club meets at her home, 2705 Park Ave., La Verne, Monday at 1:30 p.m.

Her large collection of creches will be displayed and she will relate incidents of various tours during which the collections was granted. Many are also of her own design.

Roll call will be answered with a favorite toy. Mrs. Winona Crow will offer the thought for the month.

Assisting the hostess will be Mrs. Kay McClellan and Mrs. Edith Dean.

Program and party scheduled

A birthday program honoring past noble grands will be presented by Maxine McCormick at the Heliotrope Rebekah Lodge meeting Tuesday. at 8 p.m. at 11667 S. Monte Vista Ave.

Refreshments will be served by Mrs. Lynn Chapin and her committee.

On Monday at 6 p.m. the Rebekahs will join with the Odd Fellows for their annual Christmas dinner at 11667 S. Monte Vista. As a Christmas project the Rebekahs will pack cookies for shut-ins.

YLI plans party here

Gifts will be exchanged and secret pals revealed at the Christmas party of the Pomona Institute 143, Young Ladies Institute, on Wednesday.

A potluck dinner will begin the activities at 6:30 p.m. in the Knights of Columbus Hall.

General chairman for the party is Mrs. Tony Recupero. Mrs. Al Cohn is in charge of decorations and is being assisted by Mrs. Joe Labarrere and Mrs. Matt Markey.

Church unit schedules annual tea

Women from churches in the Chino community are invited to attend the 40th annual Christmas Tea of the Chino United Methodist Church to be held Tuesday from 2 to 4 p.m. in the church social hall.

The tea is the traditional start of the Christmas season at the church. During the afternoon plates of cookies, nut bread and Christmas treats will be prepared to be taken to shut-ins not able to attend the tea.

Mrs. David Waters is general chairman of the event and is assisted by members of Elizabeth Circle. Mrs. Howard Williams is in charge of the shut-in plates and Mrs. Carl Schuler is program chairman. Chairman of circles will act as hostesses.

ROSEMARY TUCKER

Tucker, Hansen troth told

Miss Rosemary Lee Tucker and Darrell Gene Hansen are planning a spring wedding.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas C. Tucker, former Claremonters now residing in San Clemente. She attended Claremont High School and Mt. San Antonio College. Miss Tucker is studying floral design.

Mr. Hansen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Hansen of Mesa, Ariz., attended Pomona High School, MSAC and Cal Poly Pomona.

He is attending Saddleback College.

Gift books to be topic at library

Books which would make good holiday gifts will be discussed during a Christmas book talk at the Pomona Public Library on Wednesday.

The program will begin at 10 a.m. in the young reader's area and will include books for adults and children. coffee, tea and cookies will be served during the hour long session.

There is no charge and the program is open to all interested persons.

A book exhibit taken from the library's collection will be displayed and a list of holiday books will be distributed. Speakers will be librarians Robin Hunter and Sue Mackall.

Chi Omegas schedule yule fete

The Chi Omega Alumnae has scheduled a progressive dinner for its annual couples' Christmas party on Dec. 15.

The members and guests will meet at 7 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Johnson in Cucamonga for a social hour.

Dinner will be served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Bentley in Claremont and dessert is planned at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Hood in Claremont.

Any new Chi Omegas in the area are invited to join the party. For information and reservations, call Mrs. Kay Lott at 621-1520.

When washing clothes, avoid tangles. Put in a mesh bag belts, aprons, and other items with long ties.

Pre-Christmas meet charted in Claremont

Pre-Christmas festivities of the women of the Claremont United Church of Christ, Congregational, are planned Tuesday at 10 a.m.

Activities will begin with a business meeting followed by a holiday program arranged by Mrs. Myron Powell. An original play for children based on the story of the creche will be presented.

Ancient and modern Christmas music will be provided by a trio composed of Mrs. Frank Herkelrath, soprano, Mrs. Bert Norton, flute, and Mrs. David Naftel, piano.

Members of the Friendly Circle of the Women's Fellowship will be hostesses for the holiday luncheon at noon. During the day items from Church World Service will be available to purchase and a collection for the fund to provide emergency needs for over 900 retired ministers will be taken.

Child care will be provided by the church with advance notice.

'Voice box' is key to teacher's speech

By JOHN LESAR

MERRILLVILLE, Indiana (UPI) — "The night before surgery, I shed a few tears, like any other adult would, not knowing what the future might hold," recalled Andrean High School football coach Pete Billick.

Billick submitted to the surgeon's knife May 20 for the removal of his cancerous vocal cords and part of his trachea, not knowing if he would ever be able to talk or teach again.

But in August, he was back on the football field, growling orders to his Andrean 59ers and in September, he was in the classroom, conducting four industrial arts classes in a sure, steady voice.

Three weeks after surgery, Billick was fitted with a new artificial voice box—a voice prosthesis developed by researchers at Northwestern University in Evanston, Ill. Doctors at the university say Billick has displayed extraordinary motivation and spectacular progress in using the new device, described by university otolaryngologists as a "research tool."

In the classroom, Billick uses a sound system to amplify his voice and avoid undue strain. He comes up sounding just a little like James Cagney.

Wondrous comeback

"I'm not ready to hang it up yet," the 40-year-old teacher said. "I can't say enough about the research and technology that has allowed me to come back."

But Billick is pretty resourceful himself. One day he noticed, on his way to work, that he had forgotten his voice box. He simply fashioned a new one from a few "spare parts" he had with him and some adhesive tape.

The new device consists of lightweight tubes and valves that help the patient direct air to the part of the throat at which maximum vibration can be produced. The tubes are attached to two openings in the patient's throat and, because the new device is placed well above the esophagus, it has the potential of giving voice to patients unable to develop any other kind of speech due to extensive throat surgery.

But the voice box is not the end of the road for Billick. He goes to speech therapy sessions about once a week to learn a system of speaking by using the esophagus.

His esophageal speech is not yet as firm or fluent as the voice he masters with the new voice tubes, but he's working at it and, eventually, hopes to have two ways of talking.

Billick says his football players and students have, if anything, been more cooperative since he returned with his new voice. He cannot shout but can still keep a class in line.

Northwestern's developers of the new voice box, Dr. George Sisson and Dr. Fred McConnel, say initial results with the first four patients, particularly with Billick, have been encouraging. They plan to test the device on 20 patients before making any claims but are hopeful it will become the most useful and effective "artificial larynx" now in existence.

78,700 GIs on casualty list of WWII are still missing

ARLINGTON, Va. (UPI) — The day after Hiroshima was leveled by the first atomic bomb used in war, five American airmen disappeared on a routine flight over "the hump" in Asia.

Their recently recovered remains were being buried today in Arlington Nationali Cemetery.

Each year a few bodies of Word War II servicemen are recovered and identified —46 in the past three years. But Pentagon records still show 78,700 men missing in jungles, hedgerows and islands, 22 per cent of American servicemen killed in World War II.

From Vietnam there remain 2,400 men unlocated —half still listed as missing and the remainder declared dead although their bodies have never been recovered. They account for 4 per cent of the Vietnam death rolls.

On Aug. 7, 1945, the five being buried today in a common coffin took off from China in a B24 Liberator assigned to haul gasoline. They headed over the Himalaya Mountains —"the hump" — toward India and were never heard from again.

Recently, wreckage was sited in a remote jungle area of India. It was a B24 bearing the tail number 441293. Skeletal remains were also found, and laboratory checks confirmed they belonged to the missing crewmen.

They were:

Flight Officer Richard H. Franken, 21 at death, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Franken, Aransas, Tex.; 1st Lt. James W. Cantrell, 23, whose father lives in Mexia, Tex.; Flight Officer Francis P. Yuskaitis, 20, son of Stella Yuskaitis, Brockton, Mass.; S. Sgt. Harvey E. Brockmiller, 20, son of Emma O. Brockmiller, Waseca, Minn., and Sgt. William J. Cannady, 24, whose former wife, Mrs. Hazel Haviland lives in Jenison, Mich.

They were among the last Americans to die in the war. Seven days after their disappearance, Japan surrendered.

Nine artists teamed for Scripps show

CLAREMONT — Nine contemporary California artists will show their work in "The Lyric View," an exhibition opening Tuesday at the Lang Gallery of Scripps College. It continues to Jan. 25.

The public may view the exhibit from 1 to 5 p.m. daily. The gallery will be closed during the Christmas holidays, Dec. 20 to Jan. 2.

All the artists have received prizes and exhibited widely. Joyce Treiman of Pacific Palisades, the only woman in the show, had a one-woman exhibit of her work at the La Jolla Museum in January, 1973. She will display three oils — "Campers," "Portrait of Uta" and "Model Series."

South Laguna artist John Paul Jones, a University of California at Irvine faculty member, will display two paintings, "Match Play" and "Spectator." Ray Saunders of Oakland, a leading Black painter, will show "When I Was Young and a Little Older," two mixed media selections.

Sculptor Manuel J. Neri of the San Francisco Bay area will have "Three figures standing around" in the exhibit.

UCLA professor Ray Brown will show two oils entitled "Grandfather" and "Grandparents." Keith Crown, a member of the USC faculty, will exhibit three watercolors, "California Landscape," "Illinois Landscape" and "Soybean Field."

"Dyptich," a two-part oil painting and "Butterflies" will be shown by Arthur Okamura of Bolinas. Roger Kuntz of Laguna Beach will have three oils — "Santa Cruz Pier," "Sunset Pattern" and "A Winter Landscape" — in the show. Roland Petersen, a Danish artist who is associate professor of art at UC Davis, is displaying three acrylic paintings entitled "Aerial Changes," "Silent Glider" and "Cloud Shadow Vertigo."

Reviews of movies

By SARAH SMILEY

"Kid Blue" is a marvelously funny, yet at the same time shrewdly observant social comedy.

It's about a reformed young train robber (Dennis Hopper) who tries to go straight in Dimebox, Tex., but whose very air of strangeness and alienation make him an easy target for the insanity, self-righteousness, and cruelty of the "straight" citizenry.

Hasseled endlessly by a bullying sheriff who hates him on sight (Ben Johnson), cheated and humiliatted by his employers, patronized by the fellow boarders in his rooming house, and seduced by his best friend's wife, Kid finally decides to return to the only line of work from which he can turn a modest profit and still be his own man.

His partners in crime are, fittingly, as much social outcasts as he: three dispossessed Indians and a harmlessly psychotic preacher. The whole movie is done with such a light touch that its serious insights into the machinations of power and respectability never get preachy or heavyhanded, and we enjoy ourselves all the way through.

My only complaint is the ending, which as it is a bit too slapstick and contrived, tends to blunt the precarious comic-realistic balance that the majority of the film maintains so beautifully. Still, this is an enjoyable film well worth seeing, clever and quietly hip. At The Montclair Theater.

It plays with "Ace Eli and Roger of the Skies," a messy, jumbled, movie set in the Midwest of the 20's about a father and son who barnstorm all over the place having "cute" adventures. It is badly directed, badly written, badly acted, badly edited; in short, it just doesn't fly.

2 U.S. destroyers sold to Brazilians

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — The U.S. Navy destroyers Brinkley Bass and Henry W. Tucker were formally turned over to the Brazilian navy in a ceremony recently.

Both ships were launched in the closing days of World War II, and saw action in the Korean War and Vietnam. No sale price was disclosed.

Brazilian crews have been training on the ships for several months, the Navy said, and are expected to continue training in the San Diego area for another month before sailing for Brazil.

Chorus, wind ensemble to perform Christmas music

CLAREMONT — Christtmas music by Bach, Daquin, Mouton, Schneidt, Schutz, and other composers will be featured in the Pomona College music department's annual Christmas concert next Sunday, in Bridges Hall of Music. All seats will be reserved for the three performances, scheduled at 1:30, 4 and 8:15 p.m.

William F. Russell, chairman of the music department, will direct the 150-voice Pomona College Choir and 25-piece Wind Ensemble in a program of familiar carols sung by the audience and choir, a 16th century motet by Flemish composer Jean Mouton, Old English carols in settings by Holst and Vaughan Williams, Gregorian chants for the Christmas season, and two Baroque double choruses; Samuel Scheidt's "Nun Komm, der Heiden Heiland," and Heinrich Schuetz's famous "Deutsches Magnificat." In addition, Pomona College organist David McVey will play organ music by Bach and Daquin.

Admission to any of the three performances is 50 cents per person. Since all seats are reserved, and capacity houses are expected, patrons are urged to purchase their tickets early. Tickets may be obtained at the Thatcher Music Building office, fourth Street and College Avenue, or by calling 626-8511, ext. 2242. Mail orders will be filled in order of receipt, and should specify the performance preferred, together with a second choice and a stamped, return envelope. Checks should be made payable to Pomona College.

Any remaining seats will be sold at the Bridges Hall box office on the day of the program. The box office will open a half hour prior to each concert. Arrangements for wheel chairs may be made in advance through the Thattcher Music Building office.

MSAC slates program of exercise

WALNUT — Two demonstrations of the ancient exercise, Tai Chi Chuan, will be presented by James Wing Woo on Tuesday and Wednesday at 2 p.m. in the Mt. San Antonio College Art Gallery. Both programs are open to the public free of charge.

Woo, who teaches Tai Chi Chuan, Kung Fu and other Chinese martial and art form exercises, says the system demands patience, dedication and humility to perfect the muscular control necessary for this art form. But, he says, the rewards are great for both physical and emotional control and a feeling of total well-being.

The slow, purposeful movements are all designed to elongate the muscles and gain total control in order to tone the mind as well as the body.

Artists plan Yule festivity

ONTARIO — The Associated Artists will have a Christmas party at the Ontario public library, 215 E. C St., at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday.

The program will include a gift exchange, brunch, and selection of the painting of the month, based on a poem in the November newsletter.

Bernice Schuyler and Shirley Bonneville tied for last month's picture of the month award.

Nuclear energy potential realized in '73 activity

By LeROY POPE
UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — This has been the breakthrough year in nuclear energy potential.

Global gas and oil shortages than worsened all year helped cause the breakthrough, but spokesmen for the electric utility industry and manufacturers of nuclear steam generators say other factors helped persuade Americans that atomic power is the inevitable solution to the national energy problem. Efficiency and safety factors have been proved to most everyone's satisfaction.

It has been a record year for the sale of nuclear equipment and nuclear fuel. This pickup actually begain in 1972 after a five-year sales lag in new plants and delays in bringing plants under construction into production.

There were many reasons for the lag—opposition by environmental pressure groups, government restrictions and regulation and technical difficulties that prevented some atomic power plants from achieving expected levels of power output.

This year many of the problems became easier to handle. The general feeling of a real breakthrough resulted not only from the year's sales but from indications that sales in 1974 and 1975 may be at least as good.

Fourteen new nuclear reactors representing 15,258 megawatts of power received permits from the Atomic Energy Commission, making 1973 the industry's peak year for new construction.

Eleven plants ordered in previous years went into production this year, the latest being the Zion 2 unit near Chicago.

"Nearly one-third of all the nuclear plants now operating began operating this year," says the Atomic Industry Forum.

As of mid-November there were 40 operating nuclear power plants in the United States producing 24,766 megawatts. Fifty-eight more comprisiig 54,672 megawatts were building and 109 representing 118,992 megawatts were on firm or "letter of intent" orders.

Predictions that 1974 and 1975 will be as good or better came from the five companies making most of the equipment: Westinghouse Electric Corp. and General Electric Co., which make both electric generators and nuclear steam generators, Combustion Engineering Corp. of Stamford, Conn., and Babcock Wilcox, Inc., of New York, which build nuclear reactors and both nuclear-fired and oil or coal fired steam boilers; and Gulf General Atomics of San Diego, a nuclear specialty firm.

In addition to the booming sales of reactors, steam boilers and turbine generators, the sale of nuclear fuel picked up so sharply this year it was predicted a current surplus of enriched uranium may turn into a shortage before the decade ends.

The opposition to expansion of nuclear energy only eased, it did not collapse. For example, Crusader Ralph Nader and a Boston group called the Union of Concerned Scientists severely condemned an appeal by President Nixon for an increase in nuclear power. Nader called any step-up in nuclear production "utter folly," saying the inherent dangers in all nuclear processes have not been overcome. He went so far as to predict that within five years America will call a complete halt to expansion of nuclear power output.

But the blast of Nader and the Concerned Scientists drew vigorous and rebuking replies from the Atomic Energy Commission, the Atomic Industry Forum and companies in the industry. They said Nader and the scientists based their attacks on outdated data.

Sales volumes for the year of the individual companies making nuclear power equipment are interesting.

Combustion Engineering did so well, both in selling nuclear steam plans and steam boilers for power plants to be fired by coal and oil, that this company's stock rose from around $50 a share to around $94 during a year that has seen huge stock market losses.

Combuston Engineering landed $565 million in orders this year for nuclear powered steam boilers. It also sold $100 million of reactor vessels to its competitor, Westinghouse, and had $6 million in nuclear fuel sales. The company also racked up several hundred million dollars in sales of oil and coal fired boilers.

Its orders for new nuclear plants included: Duke Power Co., six 1,300 megawatt units, $260 million; Arizona Nuclear Power Project, three 1,300 megawatt units, $200 million, Washington Public Power Supply System, Richmond, Wash., a 1,250 megawatt unit, $55 million; and Gulf States Utilities, Beaumont, Tex., a 950 megawatt unit, $50 million.

Babcock Wilcox CE's big competitor, has obtained orders so far this year for nuclear plants totaling 41,000 megawatts, about the same as its 1972 business in this field.

The company would not identify customers or sites. "The customers have not given us the sites in most cases because finding a site and getting local permission to build the plant is the toughest part of a nuclear power program," BW said.

But the company said it has firm orders on six nuclear fired steam generators at a total price with fuel of about $300 million. BW said, "The only thing holding back fast expansion of nuclear power is the slowness of the AEC and regulatory authorities in granting the needed approvals."

Westinghouse and General Electric did more new business in nuclear reactors and boilers this year than Combustion Engineering and Babcock & Wilcox but did not reveal as many details. In addition, these companies sell the electric generators to go with some of their competitors' nuclear steam plants.

Westinghouse said it had received 20 firm and letter of intent orders so far this year for new nuclear reactors totaling around $915 million— not counting nuclear fuel.

Firm orders are for two units in Maryland, two in Wisconsin, two for Union Electric of St. Louis, two for Northern States Power in Minneapolis, one for Rochester Gas & Electric in New York, two in Texas, one in Kansas, one for the federal breeder reactor demonstrator project at Oak Ridge, Tenn. and a $200 million order for a 615,000 kilowatt station in Yugoslavia.

Westinghouse's letter of intent orders this year include two additional units for Public Service Electric of New Jersey's proposed offshore plant (letters of intent for the first two units for this project were received last year by Westinghouse), two units for Middle South Utilities of New Orleans and two for Jacksonville Electric in Florida.

Chairman W. D. Dance of General Electric said his company sold seven nuclear reactor power plants in 1973, including two abroad, a $100 million plant for Spain and one to a country he refused to identify. One domestic buyer was likewise unidentified.

Before you buy a house, learn real estate jargon

By DOROTHEA M. BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) — It helps to know the jargon whether you're following a baseball game, reading a stock market report or buying a house.

Even though homebuying generally is the major purchase of a lifetime for most families, too few understand the terminology that crops up in discussions with brokers and bankers.

"Even if you have an attorney at your side through the whole deal, you're likely to feel the need of a dunce cap unless you take time out to familiarize yourself with the terms and procedures involved in buying a home," says Robert G. Walters, vice president and general manager of the residential sales division of Baird & Warner, Inc., a Chicago-based real estate company.

He offers the following roundup of the most common terms and an explanation of procedures involved in a real estate sale:

AMORTIZATION: This is a provision for gradually paying off the principal amount of a loan, such as a mortgage loan, at the time of each payment of interest. For example, as each payment toward principal is made, the mortgage amount is reduced or amortized by that amount.

BINDER OR OFFER TO PURCHASE: A receipt for money paid to secure the right to purchase real estate upon agreed terms. An offer or a binder will be considered a contract when signed by buyer and seller.

CLOSING COSTS: Often referred to as settlement costs, these costs are in addition to the price of the house. They include the mortgage service charges, title search and insurance, and transfer of ownership charges. Walters cautions: "Be sure your sales contract clearly states who will pay each of these costs — buyer or seller."

CONDOMINIUM: Terms provide for individual ownership of a dwelling unit and an undivided interest in the common areas and facilities which serve the multi-unit project.

COOPERATIVE OR CO-OP: This form of ownership often is confused with a condominium, but there is a decided difference. The co-op is an apartment building or a group of dwellings owned by residents and operated for their benefit by their elected board of directors. The resident occupies but does not own his unit. Rather, he owns a stock in the total enterprise.

EARNEST MONEY: This is the deposit money given to the seller or real estate broker by the potential buyer to show that he is serious about buying the house. If the deal goes through, the earnest money is applied against the downpayment. "But if the deal does not go through," Walters warns, "the money may be forfeited unless specifics have been spelled out in the 'Offer to Purchase' contract. There are contingencies under which the earnest money can be returned to the potential buyer if the sale fails. Such contingencies could be the refusal of a mortgage to the buyer or a defect in the title.

EASEMENT RIGHTE: A right of way granted to a person or company authorizing access to or over the owners' land. Utility companies (electric, natural gas, telephone, water) often have easement rights across your property.

EQUITY: A buyers initial and increasing ownership rights in a house as he pays off the mortgage. When the mortgage is fully paid off the buyer has 100 per cent equity in the house.

ESCROW FUNDS: Money, or papers representing financial transactions, which are given to a third party (usually a realtor or lawyer) to hold until all conditions in a contract are fulfilled.

FHA APPROVAL: This is a misnomer. "There is no such thing as an FHA approved house," Walters points out. "If a builder advertises 'FHA approval' he is misleading you at worst and, at best, badly stating his belief that his house will meet the standards for an FHA insured mortgage."

HAZARD INSURANCE: Insurance to protect against damage caused to property by fire, windstorm and other common hazards. Aside from its importance to homeowners, such insurance always is a stipulation by the mortgagee (lender) to protect his investment.

HOME MORTGAGE LOAN: A special kind of long term loan for buying a house. There are three main kinds of mortgage financing in the United States for single-family homes, townhomes, or condominiums — the conventional mortgage; the VA (Veterans Administration), sometimes called the GI mortgage; and the FHA (Federal Housing Administration) insured loan.

MORTGAGE COMMITMENT: This is the written notice which you will receive from the savings and loan association, bank, or other lender, saying it will advance you the mortgage funds in a specified amount to enable you to buy the house.

MORTGAGE DISCOUNT "POINTS": Discounts (points) are a one-time charge assessed by a lending institution to increase the yield from the mortgage loan to a competitive position with the yield from other types of investments. "It is important to note here," Walters says, "that such points always are paid by the seller at the time of closing." Discounts are generally involved with FHA and VA mortgages.

MORTGAGE INSURANCE PREMIUM: The payment made by a borrower to the lender for transmittal to HUD-FHA to help defray the cost of the FHA mortgage insurance program and to provide a reserve fund to protect lenders against loss in insured mortgage transactions. In the case of an FHA insured mortgage this represents an annual rate of one-half of one per cent paid by the mortgagor (borrower) on a monthly basis to FHA.

MORTGAGOR: The homeowner who is obligated to repay a mortgage loan on a property he has purchased.

MORTGAGEE: The bank, savings and loan association, or other lender who loans the money to the mortgagor.

SPECIAL ASSESSMENT: A tax for a specific purpose such as providing paved streets or new sewers. Owners whose properties abut the improved streets or tie into the new sewer system must pay the tax.

TITLE INSURANCE: Special insurance which usually protects buyers and lenders against loss of their interest in property because of unforseen occurrences that might be traced to legal flaws in previous ownership. Likewise, a homeowner can protect his interest by purchasing separate coverage.

TITLE SEARCH OR EXAMINATION: Research of title records generally at the local courthouse, to guarantee that you are buying the house from its legal owner and that there are no liens, overdue.

Realtors install leaders

POMONA — Mildred J. Heckmer has become the first woman ever installed as president of the Pomona Valley Board of Realtors.

She succeeded James Odom during an annual installation and dinner dance held at the Pomona National Country Club.

Other new officers are Gordon T. Curtis, first vice president; Joseph D. Beck, second vice president; Charles L. Canfield Jr., secretary; and William B. Johnson, treasurer.

New directors include Peggy Vick, Tom B. Jones, Fern Spaulding and Dale Colby.

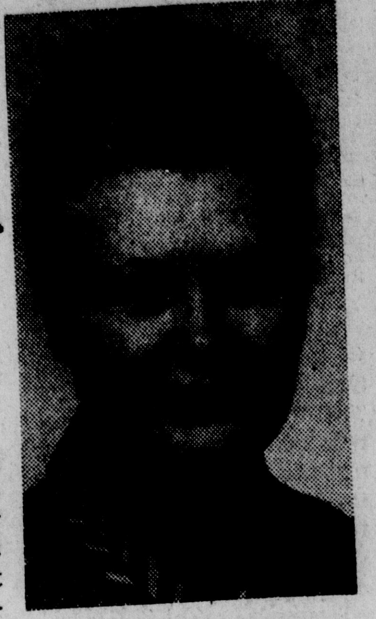
Those from the Pomona board serving as directors of the California Real Estate Association are Odom, Canfield, Mrs. Heckmer, Roger Wheeler and Everett E. Legters. Legters will also serve as a director of the National Association of Realtors.

Mrs. Heckmer and her husband have been involved in real estate since 1959 and they opened their own real estate office in Pomona in 1965.

Gravestone, but no body

BOISE, Idaho (UPI) — Police have been holding Francis Headen's gravestone since June because they can't find where he is buried.

Sgt. Mel Lynn said the headstone was found in the street and local cemeteries have been unable to find a grave to go with it.



LUCILLE KESTER

MARIA BORJE

Realty sales awards received by 2 women

POMONA — Two women have received awards for real estate sales made during October.

Mrs. Lucille Kester had the largest single sale and Mrs. Maria Borje had the greatest number of sales.

John Kelly of Title Insurance and Trust Co. presented them plaques on behalf of the Pomona Valley Board of Realtors during a recent breakfast meeting.

Mrs. Kester, a member of the realty board since February, has been associated with Rosa Schwartz Realty for the past year.

She is a docent with the Museum of Science and Industry in the Hall of Health, a member of the Crippled Children Guild of Los Angeles and a member of the Trojan Women of USC. She and her husband, George, reside in Claremont. They have two married daughters and three grandchildren.

Mrs. Borje is associated with the Herbert Hawkins Co., Inc., in its Claremont office. She has been involved in real estate in California for the past eight years, three of them as a licensed broker.

She and her family reside in Claremont.

PUC approves rate increase

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The California Public Utilities Commission has granted another 30 cent per month per customer rate increase to Pacific Gas & Electric Co. to offset increased gas costs.

Tuesday's increase was the final step in a proceeding that began in February, when the company asked for increases amounting to $46.8 million to offset increased prices for Canadian and California producers.

Hearings were held in May, and on July 10 the PUC authorized an interim increase of $18 million to offset part of the Canadian price increase.

Further hearings were held in September on the California supplied gas and the remainder of the Canadian supply.

The PUC said the latest increase would amount to $19.4 million a year for California gas and would increase the figure for Canadian gas to $27.4 million.

Richard Lewis:

Interest drop is expected

UPLAND — "The economic skies are clearing for families whose hopes of owning a new home had been clouded in recent months by tight money and formidable interest rates," said Richard Lewis, president of Lewis Homes of California.

"Oakley Hunter, chairman of the Federal National Mortgage Association, has predicted interest rates on home loans would probably drop to eight per cent by the middle of 1974," he added. The association is a federally backed corporation which purchases mortgages as a means of stabilizing the mortgage market.

"Hunter's encouraging prediction is already being borne out as we are now offering eight per cent loans on many of our new homes and even less at some developments."

These include two newly opened housing projects in Upland—one at Mountain Avenue and 15th Street and the second at San Antonio Avenue and 21st Street.

The purchase price doesn't influence the development's interest rate, said Lewis.

Homes at Mountain Avenue and 15th Street are priced from $28,950 to $31,500. The three and four bedroom homes have up to 1,711 square feet of floor space.

Homes at San Antonio Avenue and 21st Street are priced from $38,000 to $43,950.

Energy crisis dominated news

By ANDREW L. LUBERES
United Press international

The energy crisis dominated much of the nation's headlines this week. John A. Love, who gave up the Colorado governor's mansion last July to become President Nixon's first but short-lived chief energy adviser, resigned this week.

Love's resignation and that of his chief deputy was said to be the result of a top-level squabble with the Nixon Administration over gasoline rationing—a step Love wanted implemented immediately.

Love's successor, Deputy Treasury Secretary William E. Simon, said on being named as head of Nixon's new federal energy agency that Americans could expect significant price increases and perhaps rationing of gasoline and home heating oil.

If gasoline rationing is imposed as "an absolute last resort," Simon said March 1, 1974, would be the earliest possible date for nationwide controls. He said a decision on rationing would be made by the end of the month.

Saudi Arabian Oil Minister Ahmad Zaki Al-Yamani announced in Washington that the Arab countries were prepared to start relaxing their oil embargo as soon as Israeli forces start withdrawing from occupied Arab territory. Holland, the only Western European country faced with the embargo, denied it was altering its views on the Middle East conflict to win Arab favor.

The foreign and economic ministers of the nine Common Market countries postponed a decision on whether to band together and share existing oil supplies. Norway and Britain announced new strong measures to deal with the energy crisis.

As the Cost of Living Council ruled that refiners could increase the price of heating oil but had to cut gasoline prices, truck drivers protesting lower speed limits and higher fuel prices staged blockades on major roads in several states.

WASHINGTON — Gerald R. Ford took office as the nation's 40th vice president and with President Nixon sitting silently by his side pledged dedication "to the rule of law and justice for all Americans." The 60-year-old congressman under six administrations became the first vice president to be confirmed by Congress under the 25th Amendment. He made no mention of the dramatic events leading up to his elevation to the nation's second highest office.

WASHINGTON — President Nixon's diary, submitted during U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica's hearings on gaps tnd flaws in the subpoenaed Watergate tapes, conflicted with the testimony of his personal secretary, Rose Mary Woods. Sirica spent more than four hours listening to the tapes, and heard Nixon's chief adviser testify that the President was "very, very disturbed" and "almost incredulous" when he found out about an 18-minute gap on one of the tapes.

WASHINGTON — A four-day filibuster ended when Senate liberals gave up their battle for federally financed presidential elections. They had attempted to attach the measure to a bill increasing the national debt, but Sen. James B. Allen, D-Ala., the White House and conservative Republicans joined forces and defeated the amendment.

NEW YORK—After dropping sharply for five weeks—even to a three-year low on Wednesday —stock prices rallied strongly Thursday on indications of some progress in the Middle Eeast peace talks.

Israeli and Syrian troops, supported by tanks and artillery, dueled along the Golan Heights and Israeli and Egyptian planes battled over the Gulf of Suez in the heaviest fighting since the Middle East cease-fire began. The United States said it would send Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger on a tour of Israel and five Arab countries beginning Dec. 13.

COPENHAGEN — Premier Anker Joergensen resigned after his Social Democratic party fell victim to a shattering election defeat in a voter revolt against high taxes and inflation. The magnitude of the revolt was underscored by the fact that the second largest number of seats in the Foketing (parliament) went to an antitax party whose leader advocated replacing the armed forces with a telephone-answering device announcing "We surrender" in Russian.

Friend is boy crazy

By JEAN ADAMS

BAD NIGHT: (Q) I have a girl friend who is BOY CRAZY. When I am with her she gets into trouble. I spent the night with her. She didn't tell me her parents wouldn't be there or that her two boy friends were coming over.

Well, my mother called to say goodnight and one of the guys answered the phone. Now my mother doesn't trust me anymore. Can you tell me what to do?—Caught in California.

(A) When you got to your girl friend's house and found out what the facts were you should have called your mother to come get you. Tell her that if anything similar ever happens again anywhere you will do that.

Also consider looking for a more dependable girl friend.

"BROTHER": (Q.) Three years ago Kenny and I "accepted" each other as brother and sister. I was 11 then and, being an only child, wanted so much to have a brother.

I am 14 now and find that I feel romantically toward Kenny, who is now 18. I have never felt like that toward a boy. Do you think my feelings are inordinate? —"Little Sister" in Pennsylvania.

(A.) It is not at all surprising to me that you have found that what you thought three years ago was "brotherly" love was and still is in reality the kind of emotion that the standard girl feels for the standard boy.

But do not assume (or even hope) that Kenny will return your feelings. You started this and he went along, and probably now he has his mind on 19-year-old matters. It is time for your to get YOUR mind on 14-year-old boys.

(Jean Adams reads every letter but regrets that she cannot send individual replies. Address your letter to Jean Adams, care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 2402, Houston, Texas 77001.)

Thieves looting offices posing as repairmen

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Thieves are getting away with $25,000 worth of office equipment each month in San Francisco's financial district, according to police.

Inspectors Gerard Evans and David Kellog said that thieves pose as rug cleaners and typewriter servicemen to gain entrance to corporation offices. They do most of their work during the noon hour and between 5 and 6 p.m.

Evans said a man will come in posing as a rug cleaner, for instance, and when a secretary goes to check with her boss, the thief picks up a calculator or other piece of expensive equipment and leaves.

Some people have more than one story.

Not us. Our story is always the same at Orchard Lane: one-story condominium homes with two or three bedrooms—for people who don't like to climb stairs . . . who resent strangers dancing on their ceiling . . . who are bothered by the patter of little feet overhead . . . who want maximum quality throughout their home.

Love it and leave it. Take off whenever you like—for a weekend or an extended trip. With all exterior maintenance taken care of by the Homeowners Association, there are no bothersome chores to keep you home. But when you are home, there's much to enjoy at Orchard Lane. All windows are fully draped . . . many rooms are fully carpeted. There's a color-coordinated, built-in range with continuously self-cleaning oven . . . and an automatic dishwasher. Other features include cathedral ceilings, ash cabinets, Formica countertops, cultured marble pullmans . . . even fireplaces in some models. Then there's the swimming pool, the Jacuzzi, and . . . well, you'd better come see the rest. It's a real value, priced from

A MESSAGE TO CLASSIFIED AD USERS

You are about to invest money for an Ad and you are entitled to get results. To accomplish this it is necessary for you to TELL ALL about the details of your offer. Be sure you don't make any of the following errors that prevent results. Readers can't guess on important details. Remember, a well written informative ad will get results faster and cost less in the long run.

1. Don't Omit The Address

Many out-of-town readers will write you but will not spend money for a long distance call.

2. Don't Omit The Phone Number

Many readers will call you but do not find it convenient to come to your home.

3. Don't Use Blind Box Numbers

Avoid them if at all possible. They are difficult to answer and many people are suspicious of them.

4. Don't Conceal The Price

Surveys show that a high percentage of readers will not answer an ad unless the price is given.

5. Don't Leave Home On The Days You Advertise

Many good prospects will not call the second time if your phone is unanswered.

6. Don't Forget, Check Your Ad The First Day It Runs. Call Us!

7. Don't Omit Important Words To Save Money

A Little Goes A Long Way
A small down payment of $5000 plus an additional $5000 in working reserve can make you an owner-operator of a United Rent-All store. With operating United Rent-Alls from coast to coast you will be in the rapidly growing rental business for yourself, but not by yourself. United Rent-All will provide training, advertising and continuous supervision, and consultation along with the freedom to develop your business as you choose.

It's a going business with operating inventory, fixtures and systems plus established customers who rent and buy tools, party goods, sickroom supplies, household appliances and contractor equipment. Join the United Rent-All family during its 25th Silver Anniversary year.

Stores available in Azusa, Lemon Grove, Sacramento, Salem and Eugene, Oregon and major cities across the country.

FRIENDS,
Here are just a few of the many written comments we receive from our happy customers:

Courteous, cooperative, considerate attention on every detail from all your personnel.
H. & B. RUSH, Mira Loma

Cooperation and concern of your personnel made the transition to mobile home living a pleasant experience.
L. HUTCHINSON, Pom.

Thanks for the fine way you have treated us in our new mobile home and we love every minute of it.
R. & M. BLAND, Pom.

Your Service Personnel have been exceptional, both in workmanship and pleasant attitude. Thanks so much.
A. & D. KRUGER, La Puente

Yes folks, our entire staff of efficient, cooperative personnel are at your service to provide you with courteous customer relations for the rest of your life!
Sincerely
BILL HARRIS

BUT
Don't buy a new mobile home before you read this. A new home 12 x 64 expando cost $7,500, license the first year $250, skirting and awnings $1,200, porches $1,500, landscaping $600, utility sheds $250, cooler and dishwahser $550, decorations $500, total $10,600. The first year you'll spend $4,000 and you'll not be able to recover this money. So why not buy my better than new mobile home with all this work done, and I'll sacrifice my equity and give you $500 worth of bookcases. Total cost equals loan balance $6,600, bank will finance total (714) 599-5655.

BEFORE YOU BUY ANY MOBILE HOME
You owe it to yourself to talk to us about the large selection of quality resales that we have. You can save thousands of dollars, see exactly what you are buying and get immediate occupancy.

INTENSIVE SEARCH REVEALS BUT ONE LIVING MEMBER OF "DIAMOND-TOOTH" RINKLES' CLAN, A HALF-SISTER.
THIS WAS HIS ROOM.
THAT WAS HIS HAT.
MY, MY! I CAN SEE HIM NOW.
APPARENTLY THE KILLERS WERE AFTER THE DIAMONDS IN HIS TEETH.-
OH, NO, IT COULDN'T HAVE BEEN THAT.
THEN YOU WERE PRESENT WHEN THOSE WERE REMOVED?
YES, I WAS PRESENT! HE AND I WERE IN HIS CAR. THERE WAS A TRAFFIC ACCIDENT.
HE LOST THESE THREE TEETH WHEN HIS HEAD WAS HURLED AGAINST THE REAR VIEW MIRROR AND WINDSHIELD.
HE GAVE THE BROKEN TEETH TO ME FOR SAFEKEEPING. THAT'S THE LAST TIME I SAW MY HALF-BROTHER ALIVE.

SOMETIMES HE WORE A WIG -THAT'S THE WIG.
MISS RINKLES, YOU'RE QUITE DISRESPECTFUL TOWARD YOUR HALF-BROTHER. -HOW COME?
MR. TRACY, HE WAS A BEAST. -A REAL BEAST.

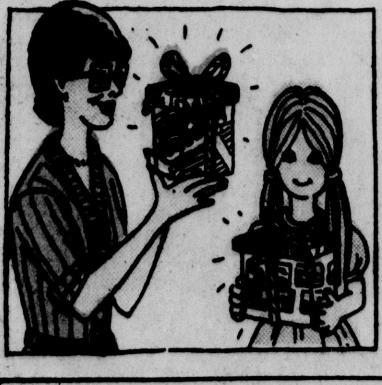
Polly's Pointers

DEAR POLLY — Once I had no fancy paper for giftwrap and could not get out to get any. I resorted to using newspaper and a bright bow. The children were so delighted that I have continued to do this — the women's page for a lady's gift, sports pages for a man and the funnies for children. This is inexpensive, handy, uses old papers and is FUN. — LAVONNE

(Polly's note: The big, fat yarn used for gift wrapping looks great on newspaper - wrapped packages, particularly when red or green yarn is used.)



Polly pays $1.00 for every idea used. Send them to her, c/o this newspaper.

DEAR POLLY — Here's how I made a cute holder for my pencil and reminder pad. I cut the shape of an owl, about 12 inches high, out of a rug remnant, sewed two buttons on for eyes and glued a triangle of colored felt for the beak. I stuck a small felt pocket on the lower front to hold a small pad of paper and placed a pencil in the two claws. A cord run through holes made in each ear can make a hanger for this. — BLANCHE.

DEAR POLLY — I am only 13, but have a good Pointer for the owners of new puppies. If you do not have a cool place to keep your puppy the bathtub is the place. Put some newspapers at one end and a little washable rug at the other, with some space left between that will be smooth and cool. If he seems to be too cool pick him up and place him on the rug. The sides of the tub cut off any drafts. If you like, a stuffed animal could be put in for him to play with. — MARY H.

DEAR POLLY — My daughter and I who live in different states exchanged address labels. Now, it only takes two licks to completely address an envelope. — MRS. E. J. W.

DEAR POLLY — Cutting a child's nails can pose a real problem. To make it easier and safer sit in front of a mirror with the child on your lap. The child's attention is caught by seeing himself in the mirror and you are saved a lot of squirming around. — LUCILLE

DEAR POLLY — So that our emergency flashlight is always handy we hang it from a cup hook placed behind the headboard of our bed. — MRS. M. P.

DEAR POLLY — Put a mirror on the inside of your kitchen cupboard and find it very handy for a quick peek when the doorbell rings. — PAT

THIS WEEK'S TOP PRIZE QUESTION:
THE HOLES WE FIND IN SWISS CHEESE ARE MADE BY BUBBLES OF GAS THAT FORM IN THE CHEESE AS IT IS BEING MADE. IN THE CHEESE FACTORY, A SAFE KIND OF BACTERIA IS ADDED TO THE MILK FROM WHICH THE CHEESE IS MADE. THE BACTERIA CAUSE THE CHEESE TO RIPEN OR FERMENT. AS IT FERMENTS, THE BACTERIA MAKE AIR BUBBLES WHICH BECOME TRAPPED IN THE CHEESE IN THE FORM OF THE FAMILIAR HOLES.

A NEW TRADITION

"Merv Griffin And The Christmas Kids," the KTTV holiday special which airs Sunday at 6:30PM on Channel 11, puts forth a solid example of the non-existing generation gap. The personable talk-show host, brings together a cast of mini super stars for his Christmas special.

A "Christmas Village," no doubt an imaginary and wondrous township, finds its residents the creative elfins currently seen and enjoyed by adults on such television series as The Waltons and The Partridge Family. Merv's Special Guest Star is Rodney Allen Ripey, who again chimes his way into America's hearts with his rendition of Santa Claus Is Coming to Town."

The Waltons have sent Mary Elizabether McDonough and Eric Scott to the Christmas Village. The Partridge Family's new friend, Rickey Segall is there too. Kim Richard, formerly of Nanny And the Professor series, brilliant young pianist Leland Greenwald, guitarist Randy Gray, The Mitchell Singing Boys Choirs, John Sheldon, and three year old "Kejo" also have been provided special visas to the Christmas Village.

The young people all have the occasion to offer their talents and contribute to the merriment of the village.

'MAKE-BELIEVE WINTER'

Perry Como's annual "Winter Show" is not only a pre-holiday salute to the season, it is a nostalgic, make-believe and very personal return to a familiar December climate for the singer himself. Born in Pennsylvania and a long-time resident of New York State, Como grew up with Jack Frost nipping at his nose and knows all about the icy beauties of a winter wonderland.

The veteran performer "retired" to Florida several years ago (if his schedule of television specials, guest appearances and Las Vegas headlining can be called retirement) and now makes his permanent home in the Sunshine State. So the artificial snow and icicles on the set of his "Winter Show," which will be presented as a special Monday at 9PM on CBS, is as close as he gets these days to the real trappings of winter. Just to make the imaginary qualities of it all complete, the show is produced in California!

"Make-believe can be very convincing at times," says Como. "We had a scenic rural backdrop on the show that was so close to my memories that my ears got cold!" After all, he reminds, this whole industry is built on make-believe. "And if we performers can't use enough imagination to see through to the reality it's based upon, we're in the wrong business." And so saying, Como buckled his overshoes and walked out to an al fresco lunch in the 85-degree sunshine.

Perry Como and special guest star Sally Struthers (of "All in the Family") get into the Christmas spirit by delivering gifts.

7 17 3 42 Kung Fu "The Hoots" Caine, in delivering a religious sect from persecution, finds himself caught in a simmering feud brought about by lack of tolerance. Anthony Zerbe, Laurie Prange and Howard Da Silva guest.

COVER CLOSE-UP

'A PERSONAL EXPERIENCE'

Telly Savalas believes that an actor has the right to his opinion. This attitude and Savalas' willingness to exercise his rights hinges Kojak as much on the solid craftsmanship of its star as it does on the skill of the creative personnel behind the series.

"Kojak is everything I hoped for," he says, "and the acting is a full-time occupation. But if there's something which feels wrong or synthetic in a script we make changes on the spot. I feel that an actor should be able to voice his feelings about character, dialogue and story. Otherwise his validity suffers."

Long a television holdout, Savalas took on the title role in Kojak after the success of "The Marcus-Nelson Murders," the special three-hour movie for television which introduced the tough and compassionate, brutal and gentle detective. From it, Savalas won an Emmy award nomination and a host of new fans. Something not to be taken lightly by any actor. How well Savalas does under the ardors of weekly television is apparent on Wednesdays at 10PM on CBS. He, and the series, are doing just fine.

Savalas' unusual background places him in a position well qualified for an objective look at an actor's place in today's television scene. It was a freak circumstance which brought him into acting in the first place. Born Aristotle Savalas in Garden City, New York, he grew up in a large and lively family. His mother, Christine Savalas, is a leading American Painter and his late father is described by Telly as "an extraordinary man."

Headed toward Psychology, he interrupted his education at Holy Cross Institute in Connecticut to enlist in the army when World War II broke out. Following military service, he resumed his education at Columbia University, graduating with honors and a B. S. degree. Disillusioned with his initial entry into psychology, Savalas joined the Information Services of the State Department. After two years he was promoted to executive director. Three years later he moved to ABC-TV as a senior director of news and special events. It was during this time that he created the "Your Voice of America" series which garnered both the Freedom and Peabody awards.

His acting career began when he was unable to find for an agent an actor who could do a proper accent. He went himself to the audition on a whim and to his astonishment won the role of a European judge in an "Armstrong Circle Theatre." That performance led to three character roles on CBS' "The Witness" series—Lucky Luciano, Arnold Rothstein and Al Capone. Burt Lancaster was so impressed with the Luciano portrayal that he signed Savalas for the role of a hardened criminal in "Birdman of Alcatraz," which won Savalas an Oscar for best supporting actor in 1962.

A long list of memorable screen characterizations followed. Notably as a homicidal religious fanatic in "The Dirty Dozen" and as Pontius Pilate in "The Greatest Story Ever Told," and there were villainous roles in "Day of the Landgrabber," "The Battle of the Bulge" and "Cape Fear," among others.

Although Savalas earned a reputation as the "Best of the baddies," he was usually the heavy until CBS-TV's "Marcus-Nelson Murders." Two days later he went to the race track and was literally mobbed. Savalas was used to a respectable amount of fan attention, but nothing like he's been accorded through the powers of television. And he likes it.

"You have to be crazy not to like applause," he reasons. "The danger is not knowing what you will do with your life if it stops. For myself, I could always be a teacher."

It's doubtful if Savalas will ever get to teach, unless it's a course on how to be a successful actor. Kojak will probably have a long and healthy life and Savalas will continue to revel in its environment. For him, the series is an experience far more personal than many actors can claim from their roles. His strong presence is a major factor of the series and his inherent drive as a perfectionist is apparent in helping the hour-long episodes stand way above the plethora of other police series now on the air.

And behind the cameras are such other talents as Kojak creator Abby Mann, executive producer Matthew Rapf and producer James McAdams. The four make a formidable team.

FOR SUZANNE PLESHETTE

Is there any similarity between Bob Newhart, who plays your husband on "The Bob Newhart Show," and your husband [Thomas J. Gallagher III]?—N. Roberts, Fairbury, Neb.

● Many. They are two of the brightest, funniest men I know—to me, the two most important qualities in a sustaining relationship. Each is strong in his own fashion. They don't feel they have to prove anything. Both are also active and interested in other things. And both are rooted in middle-class ethics and morals, and believe in fidelity. In other words, they're the kind of people I'd want my children to be like. They also share one trait that makes it difficult to get along with them: a need for privacy. This is difficult for a woman as gregarious as I am, or as Bob's wife, Ginny, is. It is not that they don't want to be with us, they just seem to need time alone. Also, both men sit on their anger and prefer to resolve conflicts by themselves rather than talk them out.

FOR JOE NAMATH

How do you keep your morale up after you suffer an injury that ruins a season for you?—Charles Johnson, Austin, Texas

● The big thing is that thank God you've only got a football injury instead of something like cancer.

FOR TAYLOR CALDWELL, author

I know you've had an interesting life. Have you ever considered writing your autobiography?—J. J. Evans, Birmingham, Ala.

● My late editor at Doubleday asked me about this, and I gave him a three-page outline. His comment was, "No one would believe this!" That was the end of that.

FOR JACQUELINE BISSET

We hear of so much divorce and drug-taking. Do you think actresses can ever be happy?—B. J., Jonesboro, Ark.

● I know that I enjoy life—maybe because I am not driven by a desire for success. I am not consumed by my career. I honestly feel I could give it up if something better came along. In fact, I am happiest in the gap between films.

FOR WILLIE MAYS

Why were you called the "Say Hey Kid"?—G. Barber, Las Vegas, Nev.

● I got that name when I came to New York. I didn't know anybody's name, so when I wanted to talk to a guy, I'd say, "Say-hey." What else was I gonna say?

FOR PAT BOONE

On TV recently you said "Watergate" was mentioned in the Bible. Could you please tell me where?—W. P. H., Newport, Ohio

● It's in Nehemiah, Chapter VIII. The water gate in the rebuilt Jerusalem wall served as the backdrop against which people heard God's law again after many years of ignoring it. The people wept as they realized how far they had wandered from God. Isn't it interesting the way history repeats itself?

FOR SEN. HENRY M. JACKSON (D-Wash.)

It's been charged that the Russians have lobbyists on Capitol Hill. Can this be true?—A. A. J., Fort Pierce, Fla.

● The Soviet Embassy does indeed have a staff assigned to the Hill. They come in and out of my subcommittee on national security office, getting material and literature. Anyone who thinks the Soviets are not active up here is not keeping up with what's going on. It would be nice if we could have similar access to people in the Kremlin.

FOR KAREN BLACK, actress

If you could use just one adjective to describe yourself, which one would you use?—P.B.O., Oceanside, Calif.

● Direct.

FOR JULIET PROWSE

You used to be good friends with Frank Sinatra. In fact, if I remember correctly, you almost married him. Do you still see each other?—P. Wingate, Kankakee, Ill.

● I'm married now—and I haven't seen Frank in two years.

FOR SEN. CHARLES PERCY (R-Ill.)

Do you think Watergate has hurt the chances of future Republican presidential candidates?—Scott Haas, Decatur, Ill.

● Not necessarily. In 1924, in the first general election after the infamous Teapot Dome scandal—which was also during a Republican administration—the Republicans not only won the Presidency but also gained three seats in the Senate and 23 seats in the House. I believe voters will recognize that no evidence has ever been offered to connect Republicans in general with Watergate.

Hal Linden cuddles pleasingly plump Mary Jo Catlett and Margret Coleman, who appear with him in "The Pajama Game."

Joy to the Rounder Woman!

By Anita Summer

What better place to discover the charms of plumper women than backstage at the revival of the hit musical, "The Pajama Game?" The cast includes Mary Jo Catlett and Margret Coleman, who tip the scales, respectively, at 185 and 168. Director George Abbott, producer-composer Richard Adler, and Hal Linden, the star, are all fanciers and defenders of the rounder, more generously-built woman.

"My first wife was a plump woman," recalls Abbott, "and for years I wasn't aware there was any other kind. I was originally attracted to her by her mind, legs, hands and healthy appearance." "The Pajama Game" is Abbott's 116th show, so during his long career he has met actresses of all shapes and sizes. "I've always found plump women know instinctively when a man needs to be consoled or comforted. They must have built-in radar. My wife always had a ready, sympathetic ear."

Said Richard Adler: "Men have always enjoyed cuddly women. Paintings from the Renaissance era depict females with rounded bellies and behinds. The first thing that strikes you about Mary Jo and Margret is not their weight, but their lovely features, peaches-and-cream complexions and expressions. They remind you of a Renoir . . . A man doesn't want to feel he's holding another man in his arms. He doesn't want a muscular woman, but one who is soft. It's called Desire of the Flesh, not Desire of the Bone. Men like women to be rounded and 'zoftig.'"

Hal Linden says he thinks plumper women are more relaxed—and so more appealing—because they're less competitive. "If a thinner woman puts on weight, she's a nervous wreck until she loses it. Her personality suffers. But if a plumper woman gains a few pounds, it's not noticeable and, consequently, she doesn't dissolve into a neurotic episode." As a high school student, Linden fell for a girl who was on the hefty side. "It was because of her face," he explained. "She was beautiful. Also," Linden decided, "plumper women are warmer. They give off more body heat."

Are Plump Girls More Affectionate Than Slim Ones?

By John E. Gibson

True or False: Women who are heavier than average tend to be more feminine. (See number 4)

In this quiz, which concerns itself with the ladies, we take a look at the shape they're in.

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. Women tend to have specific personality traits, depending on whether their figure is slim, medium, on the "pleasingly plump" side or decidely overweight.

2. Fashion-wise, the cards are stacked against women who are "more generously endowed" than others.

3. People who are overweight tend to be hard to get along with.

4. Women who are heavier than average tend to be more feminine.

5. Women with slim figures tend to be preferred by men who are aggressive, gregarious and outgoing.

6. Buxom women have the greatest attraction for the majority of men.

7. Plump girls tend to be more affectionate than slim girls.

8. People who cause the weight scales to cringe a bit as they approach usually have a jolly, easy-going, take-life-as-you-find-it personality.

9. Most women who are heavy get that way because they eat too much and take too little exercise.

10. Many women are at their best when a few pounds overweight.

ANSWERS

1. True. Studies in both Britain and the U.S. have shown that slim women tend to be the most secretive, the least inclined to wear their hearts on their sleeves, and to be the most discriminating in forming relationships. Those of medium build tend to be energetic, frank, outgoing, and to enjoy the excitement of risk and chance. "Pleasingly plump" girls, it was found, tend to be characterized by love of physical comfort (including food), enjoyment of socializing with others, and a deep need for affection and approval. The obese —or extremely overweight—women are more likely to be troubled with inner conflicts, frustration and anxiety.

2. True. A team of Harvard University investigators, who have completed a study of the subject, succinctly sum up the situation as follows: "For the last several decades, fashions have been tailored for the very tall, narrow-hipped, rather wide-shouldered female figure. Women who are short, stout, or wide-hipped with narrow shoulders have difficulty dressing à la mode." Also, women with more ample endowments are not only at a disadvantage but often feel compelled to take steps to make their figures conform to current ideals.

3. False—as evidenced by National Science Foundation studies of overweight individuals, which showed that people who give the scales a "bad time" actually tend to be quite amenable in most cases, willing to compromise when necessary, quick to adapt to social situations and usually open to suggestion.

4. True. University studies have shown that women who are heavier than average make significantly higher femininity scores on psychological tests and personality questionnaires. They have also been found to have "greater emotional reactivity"—to be more acutely sensitive to the feelings of others.

5. False. Psychological studies have shown that men of this temperament tend very definitely to prefer more generously proportioned women — those whose physical endowments are on the impressive side.

6. False. Psychologist Hans J. Eysenck, who has conducted extensive studies in this area, finds that the majority of men (and they are those whom personality tests show to be reserved rather than demonstrative, controlled rather than impulsive) tend very definitely to shy

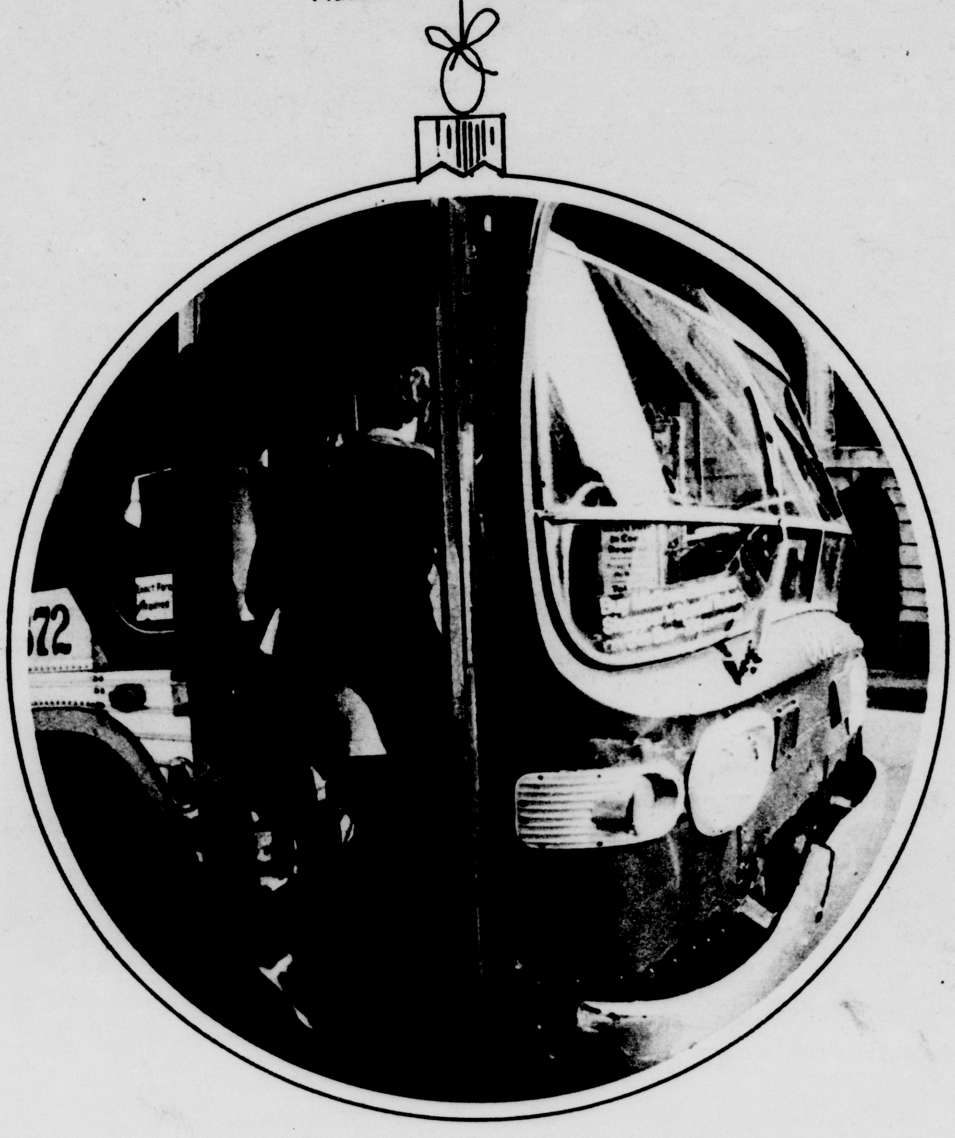
Christmas on a Bus, In the Heart Of the Great City

A Special True Story

By MacKinlay Kantor

Author of "Andersonville"



Dick regarded his fellow passengers: a full load of sad faces, tired faces, cold faces, grim faces.

MacKinlay Kantor

Evening weather spread no Good Tidings of Great Joy as the bus plowed north on New York's Third Avenue. Aboard the bus, my friend Dick Glendinning decided that the weatherman had deliberately attempted to abolish Christmas Eve as an institution.

Rain fell on sooty slush along the sidewalks. Drab figures huddled under umbrellas, hurrying to escape raw unpleasantness. Dick regarded his fellow passengers: a full load of sad faces, tired faces, cold faces, grim faces. Many were carrying gaily wrapped Christmas parcels. Still, they looked sullen.

A scrawny woman got on, her coat pebbled with sleet. She had trouble finding change in her purse. The driver was a hulking man with a thick neck. He growled, "O.K., lady, let's get going." The passenger found money for her fare, but she snarled as she dropped coins into the receptacle.

Sixtieth Street would be next. Glendinning signalled and moved to the front and stood grasping a pole for support. The bus groaned to a stop.

Before getting off, Dick looked first at the driver, then at the sullen passengers. He lifted his voice so that it would carry to the back of the bus:

"You're the worst bunch of sourpusses I ever saw in my life!" he shouted. Then he got off and walked up to his mother's apartment.

Dick and his wife Sally were from Baltimore. They had traveled to New York City to spend Christmas with Dick's mother. When Dick got back, he found Sally alone in the kitchen, making pies.

"Well, was it fun?" she asked.

"It was horrible."

"The club was horrible?" (Dick had been having a drink with some old friends at the Dartmouth Club.)

"No, no, that was fine. It was that Third Avenue bus—"

He told the whole story and concluded, "But at least I had the satisfaction of telling them off!"

Sally was quiet a moment. Then she said, "I don't think that was a very nice thing to do. Maybe those folks could have done with a little cheering up. How might it have been if, instead of glowering at them, you'd wished them a warm-hearted Merry Christmas?"

Dick sulked off into the living room, sat in the dark and looked down at cold streets and traffic lights. He felt ashamed of himself. Sally was right. He got up, went to the bathroom and washed his face. When he stopped at the kitchen doorway again, he had his topcoat on and was carrying his hat. He said to Sally, "I just had an idea. I'm going to try to make amends." He went out into the hall and down.

When the next bus came south on Lexington Avenue and Dick stepped aboard, it was obvious that he'd defied the laws of probability. It was the very same bus he had caught on Third Avenue; it had turned around and was now heading back down Lexington.

As Glendinning reached into his pocket for change, the driver lifted his gaze from the street ahead. His eyes narrowed as he recognized the passenger.

"Sourpuss yourself!" snarled the driver.

Dick began, "I'm sorry I said—"

"What the hell's the difference?" The driver turned away and slouched over his wheel.

This time there were a number of empty seats. Nevertheless, Dick sat down next to a boy of about 14.

He nerved himself to begin. Then, out loud, he began singing Jingle Bells. The youth beside him looked as if he were alarmed—then amused. He said, "We had that in school."

"Good. Come on, let's go."

The boy began to sing with him.

Two black women sat just ahead, and they turned and smiled. One said to her companion, "Somebody's happy!" Dick beckoned her and nodded his head. She nodded back, cleared her throat and added a clear contralto.

Dick looked toward the front. The driver was twisting around to see what was going on back there. Other people nearby were humming, and some of them seemed to be singing a little, although they were shy about it.

Across the aisle, a young woman spoke up. "Haven't we ridden in that one-horse open sleigh about long enough?" she laughed. And she began, "The first Nöel the angels did say...."

By the end of the second chorus, half the people on the bus were singing along with her.

Near Twenty-third Street the bus halted. There'd been a fire alarm—just a grease fire in some restaurant kitchen—but a lot of equipment had responded. Traffic was blocked solidly. The bus sat there for a few minutes; then the cops had the driver back up and go around a couple of blocks.

The odd thing was that folks who'd been observing the fire seemed to find that bus with its singing passengers much more fascinating than what they'd come out to watch. Pedestrians laughed and pointed. Dick could hear one man outside explaining to his wife that probably this wasn't a regular Lexington Avenue bus; it was a chartered deal. Some club or

IN THIS GRIND-EM-OUT WORLD, ISN'T IT NICE TO KNOW SOME PEOPLE REFUSE TO GRIND-EM-OUT?

We're sticklers about how Kent is made.

That's why Kent is probably the most quality-tested cigarette made.

We try to get rid of any taste-robbing imperfections before a Kent ever sees the light of a match. (Over 200 different quality checks in the manufacturing end, alone.)

But Kent quality goes beyond that.

We go to 3 continents, 4 countries and 10 states to find the right kind of tobaccos for the milder Kent blend.

To complement this blend, we even invented our own filter, the famous Micronite filter—to smooth the flavor of Kent.

Why are we so adamant about how Kent is made?

Because, that way we can give you the mild, smooth taste that makes Kent what it is: America's quality cigarette.

A Garland of Christmas Verses

By Richard Armour

About Richard Armour

Richard Armour, who writes "Armour's Armoury" for FAMILY WEEKLY, is an English professor who has been writing at least three pieces of verse or prose every morning for the past 35 years. He claims, "My writing is 33⅓ percent inspiration, 33⅓ percent perspiration and 33⅓ percent desperation!" He has written more than 40 books, his latest being "It All Started with Freshman English." Retired as a dean from Scripps College, Claremont, Calif., Mr. Armour lectures at campuses across the country and for (of all things) the State Department!

I.

Christmas is the time of year
Known for happiness and cheer,
Time for being kind, forgiving,
Generous to all the living.
Christmas, too, is something more:
Being trampled in a store
Seeking bargains, on and on,
Getting there before they're gone,
And when wrapped (don't laugh or scoff),
Making sure the price tag's off.

II.

Christmas, time of merry
  cheeriness,
Also is a time of weariness,
Time of stamping envelopes
Full of notes with news and hopes
Sent to friends who live no
  more
Where they did the year before,
Likewise getting (quite a plight, too)
Cards from those you didn't write to,
Also duplicated pages
Which to read would take you ages.

III.

How, I ask, could Christmas be
If there weren't a Christmas tree?
Yet there's choosing one just right,
One that's bushy, proper
  height.
Place an angel or a star
On the top, which seems up far.
Dad will do it on a ladder
Held by Mom (he's glad he had her).
Then there's that stern choice judicial:
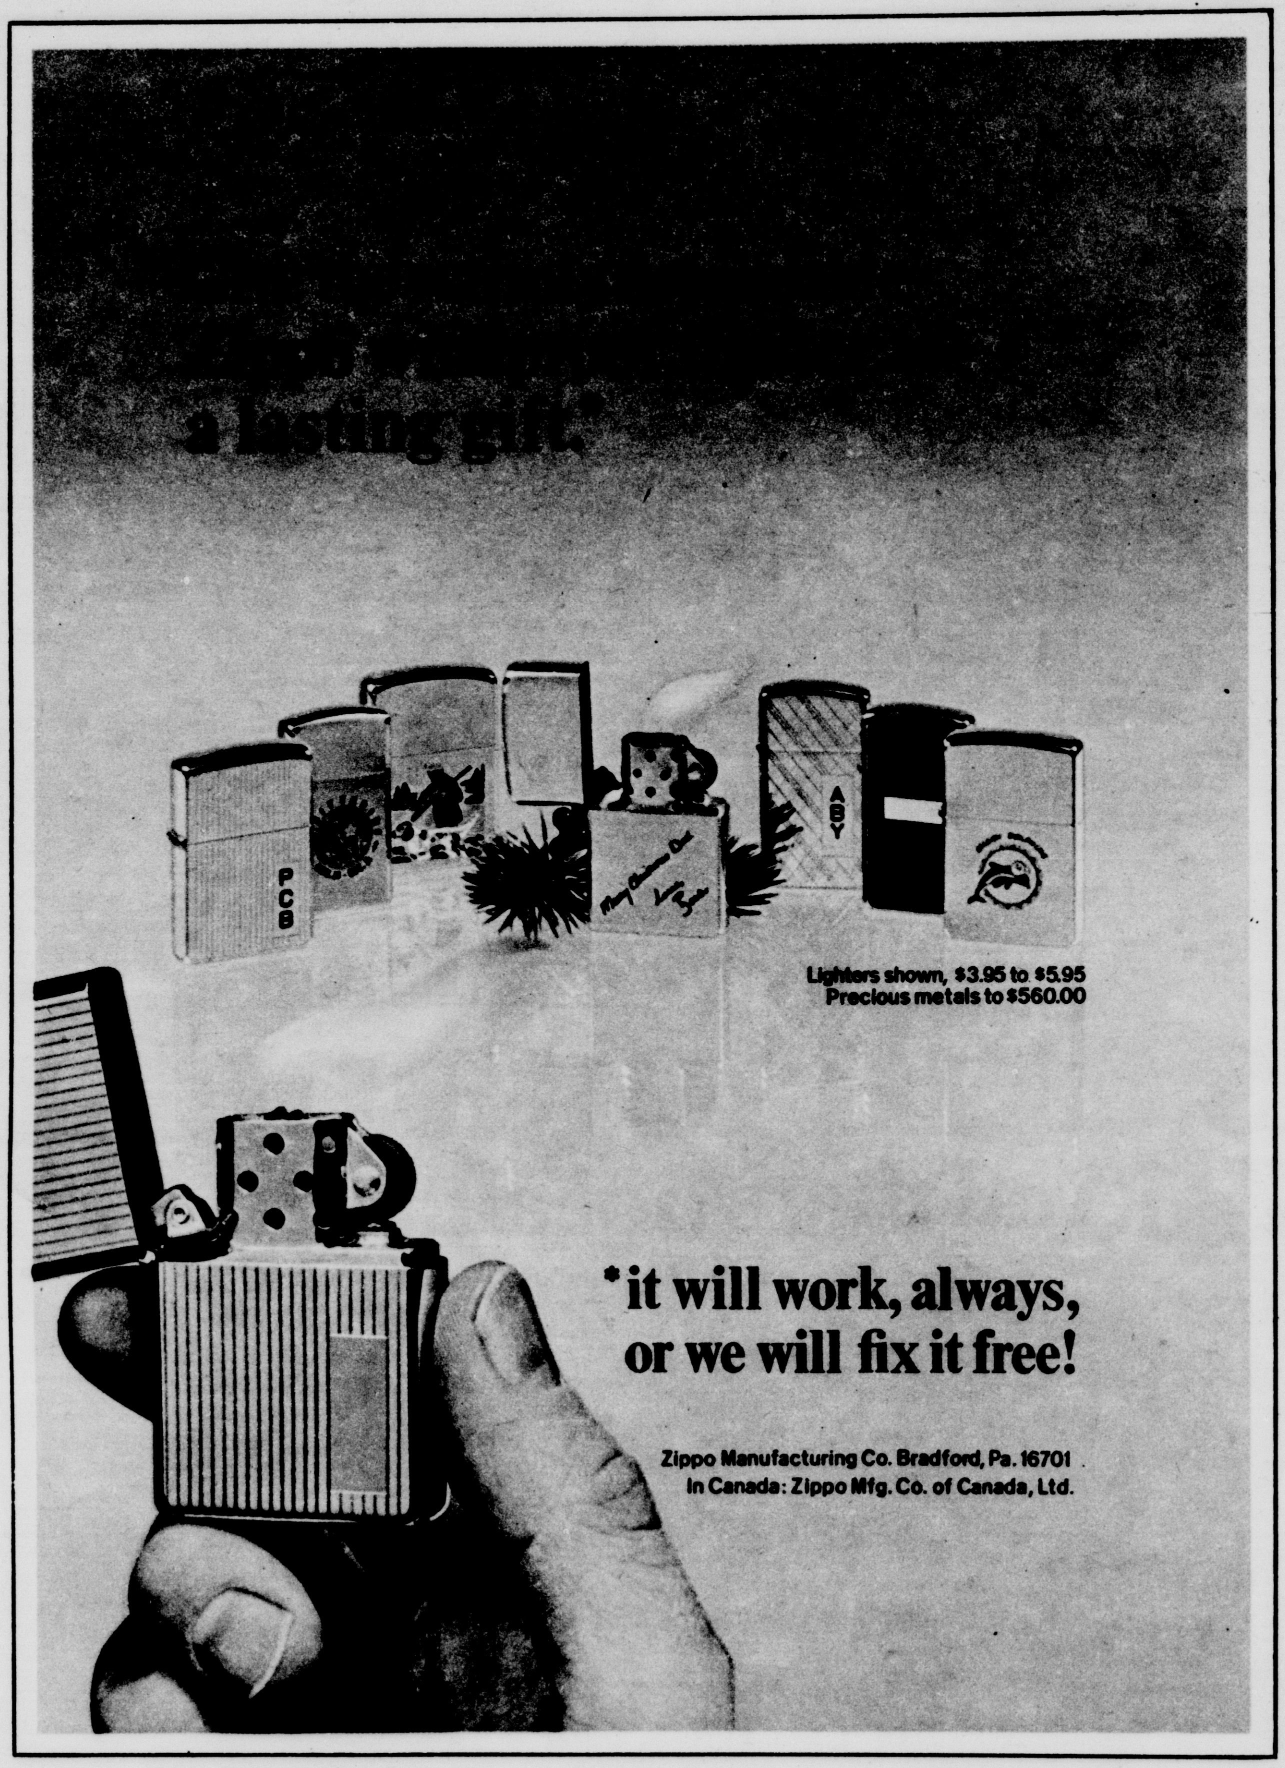
Tree that's real or artificial?



Lighters shown, $3.95 to $5.95
Precious metals to $560.00

or we will fix it free!

IV.

Christmas is when people
  gather.
Some you welcome, some you'd rather Stayed away. No, that is wrong–
Stayed, but didn't stay so long.
In-laws, outlaws congregate;
Some come early, some come late.
Some are old and some are young,
Most are fun to be among.
"Next year," some say, "we invite you.
Visit us." How they delight
  you!

V.

Christmas, time of starry skies,
Time for puddings, too, and pies:
Apple, mincemeat, plum, and others,
Baked by sacrificial mothers.
Time of turkey, gravy, dressing,
Cooked by recipes–and guessing.
Just this once, forget your diet,
Take a second on the quiet.
One consoling thought, at that:
Santa's happy, and he's fat.

VI.

Christmas greetings, one and all!
Christmas can be quite a ball.
Open presents, hide your sorrow–
They can be exchanged
  tomorrow.
Sing a carol, sing like birds,
Hum if you don't know the words.
Stand beneath the mistletoe:
Kiss, be kissed, before you go.
Christmas comes but once a year....
Twice might be too much, I fear.

JACQUELINE BISSET

I had such lovely Christmases as a child. But I think what has happened to Christmas is rather dreadful. It isn't just that I've grown up and out of the marvelous conviction that the mystical sudden appearance of the Christmas tree at six on Christmas morning, lighted and loaded with gifts and ornaments, was really, truly magic; it is my disgust at how commercial Christmas has become. I hate buying presents on cue. I don't even send Christmas cards any more. I like the spirit of Christmas, and I like having people be nice. This is very admirable. I just wish they'd be like that all year long!

DENNIS WEAVER

I attend the Church of Self Realization, and I have come to understand that an individual's peace is carried within him. The object of our senses doesn't have the power to make us happy. For example, you see a hat and you buy it. Then you're happy, you say. But when you get it, almost immediately the pleasure begins to fade away. If it had the power within itself to make happiness, then it would do so for everybody. But it doesn't. So you see, it's what's within you, that creates peace and breeds gentleness. And that's the way I feel about Christmas—it's a time to get in touch with the feelings within you.

ROBERT YOUNG

I'd like to feel that Christmas is not especially different. Betty and I just like to spend several days with our children and our grandchildren, among the decorations. We also enjoy the giftgiving on our patio, which Betty decorates especially for the occasion. That's the heart of a memorable day.

MITZI GAYNOR

Love! Love! Love! is what Christmas means to me. Love of family, love of friends, love of business associates. . . . I know it sounds Pollyannaish, but Lord! Don't we have to start somewhere?

MIKE CONNORS

To me, Christmas means a time when love of family and friends is more openly expressed. The tragedy of the American family is that the emotion of love is usually buried and only surfaces during the Christmas season. Let's hope the philosophy of the present Love Generation rectifies all that!

SAMMY DAVIS, JR.

I refuse to think of the commercial aspect of Christmas but try to honor the holiday in terms of what it is supposed to mean. In other words, the ethics of the holiday.

SUSAN DEY

I hate to say this, but I think Christmas has become a big pain. It's come to mean a lot of things it shouldn't. Like rushing around like crazy. And commercialism. It's become so commercialized that the fun has gone out of it. Before Halloween I started getting Christmas catalogs, and by Thanksgiving, decorations were up all over and stores were pushing their Christmas items. So where does that leave the warmth and friendliness of Christmas? In the cash register, that's where!

JIM FRANCISCUS

Christmas is more than a day to me. It's a special season at the end of the year that peaks on Christmas Day. It's a time for family in our home, and I like to think it's a time when togetherness is symbolic throughout the world. It's a time when Kitty and I doubly enjoy and appreciate one another and our three lively daughters. Personally, I feel and believe in the timeless tradition that Christmas is the time for giving of yourself.

JOAN BLONDELL

That's the time I collect whatever family there is around, and we all get together. It means in. Not going out to parties. But coming together in the home. And I do the whole thing myself when it is my turn. My brother and sister and I take turns having everyone in. We're all so glad to be together, and there's presents for the kids, and it's just a lovely close time.

RODDY MCDOWALL

I believe Christmas means doing things for children. It's the time of the year when one makes a special effort to make things better for them, and to bring them happiness. After all, Christmas really does belong to the children, doesn't it? And since I have no children of my own, I try to do for others. But don't ask me what, or which charities I am involved with, because I won't tell. I feel that is very, very private.

DINAH SHORE

Christmas is a time for tradition, and we try to do it all: the tree, the time-honored dinner and, especially, having the family together to celebrate the occasion. I have always tried to observe one other tradition, and that is to create homemade gifts. I like to hand-paint my own holiday greetings or make fruitcakes or make some accessories in needlepoint. This has always been the essence of Christmas.

MARY TYLER MOORE

Christmas to me means family—family and presents and wrapping paper and ribbon; a tree and lights and holly and all sorts of decorations, indoors and out; tripping over the dogs and keeping them away from the cookies; Christmas cards on the piano and the mantel and new names hastily added to old lists; and a big, big family dinner — that's what Christmas means at our house.

MONTE MARKHAM

Christmas has always been a special time in our family, but not in the conventional sense. By that I mean we have attempted to keep an expression of love and need for one another throughout the year, and the culmination of that togetherness manifests itself on Christmas Day.

LUCILLE BALL

Christmas means getting together with the kids and all the family at home or in Snowmass, Colo., where I have a condominium. Ironically, I broke my leg skiing right after I bought the place, but that mishap hasn't kept me off skis. I get everyone together and we go cross-country skiing. I just love it. I pack picnic baskets and away we go! This year, because we started shooting my series late and I'll soon be leaving on a publicity tour with "Mame," we'll gather at home in Beverly Hills and have an old-fashioned Christmas dinner with turkey and cranberry sauce and persimmon cake.

Sugar 'n' Spice Cake:

1 cup (2 sticks) butter or margarine
2 cups sugar
4 teaspoons ground cinnamon
1 teaspoon ground ginger
1 teaspoon ground nutmeg
½ teaspoon ground cloves
2 teaspoons pure vanilla extract
4 eggs
3½ cups unsifted all-purpose flour
1 tablespoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup milk
Seven Minute Frosting (recipe below) or 1 pkg. (7.2 ozs.) fluffy white frosting mix
Thin red candy "shoe string" licorice, peppermint rounds, jelly candy slices and squares, multi-colored chocolate candies

1. Preheat oven to 325° F. Grease and lightly flour two 9x5x3 inch loaf pans.

2. In a large mixing bowl with electric mixer at medium high speed beat butter and sugar together until light and fluffy.

3. Add cinnamon, ginger, nutmeg, cloves and vanilla extract; beat at low speed until blended.

4. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition.

5. Combine flour with baking powder and salt. At medium-low speed, add flour mixture and milk alternately, beginning and ending with flour.

6. Pour batter into prepared loaf pans. Bake for about 1 hour and 20 minutes or until a cake tester inserted into center of the cake comes out clean.

7. Cool in pans 5 minutes. Turn out onto wire racks and continue cooling.

Makes 2 9-inch loaf cakes

SEVEN-MINUTE FROSTING

The Frosting:

2 egg whites
1½ cups sugar
½ cup water
1 tablespoon corn syrup
½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons pure vanilla extract

1. In top of double-boiler combine egg whites, sugar, water, corn syrup and salt. Blend with electric mixer at high speed for one minute.

2. Place over rapidly boiling water and beat on high speed until mixture forms peaks, takes about 7 minutes.

3. Remove from water. Add vanilla extract and beat until thick enough to spread, about 2 minutes longer.

Fills and frosts 2 8 or 9 inch layers or 13x9 inch cake or 2 9-inch loaf cakes.

To Assemble the House:

1. Place one of the Sugar 'n' Spice loaf cakes in center of a serving tray or foil-covered cardboard.

2. Spread top with Seven-Minute Frosting; set aside.

3. Cut "roof" out of second loaf (a triangular wedge, cut lengthwise.)

4. Place the "roof" triangle on the frosting of the loaf cake. (Remaining cake may be cut up and decorated as desired.)

5. Spread remaining frosting over entire "house."

6. Decorate using thin red licorice strips to outline roof, windows and doors, peppermint rounds to top roof, jellied candy slices for shutters, etc.

7. If desired make "snow" by using additional frosting over top of serving tray.

DIAMOND WALNUTS ANNOUNCES ITS BRAND NEW COOKBOOK.

Special offer: Brand new DIAMOND Walnut Cookbook. 112 pages of DIAMOND Walnut recipes, many brand new, and some old time favorites, too. Recipes for cookies, candies, breads, fruitcakes, pies, cakes, frostings, salads, appetizers and main dishes.

They all call for DIAMOND Walnuts, just the way every good cook in America does. (We've been America's favorite ingredient nut for three generations.)

DIAMOND is the most carefully grown walnut in America. We're the largest producers of walnuts, and the only ones to plant, harvest and package all of our walnuts ourselves.

That's what makes DIAMOND a walnut you can be proud to use. And to use often.

To get your own copy of the brand new DIAMOND Walnut Cookbook, "Recipe Favorites", just send $1.00 to DIAMOND Walnuts, Box 4130, Dept. FW, Clinton, Iowa 52732. And then enjoy your cooking even more with DIAMOND Brand Walnuts.

much in winter, owing to the cold. Therefore, my school days were limited. Although I was kept busy helping at home and helping the neighbors, when 12 years of age I left home to earn my own living as then was called a hired girl. This was a grand education for me, in cooking, housekeeping, in moralizing and mingling with the outside world.

I went to live with a family by the name of Mrs. and Mr. Thomas Whiteside. They were lovely people, while well along in years.

I was cared for by them as a child of their own.

"In the fall of 1887 . . . I married Thomas Salmon Moses, a farmer by occupation. We left on our wedding trip for North Carolina. . . . But we never reached there."

They were Presbyterians by creed, so one of my duties was to drive the horse "Old Black Joe" to church for them on Sunday mornings and place bouquets on the pulpit in the church and always remember the text. I lived with the Whitesides for three years, caring for Mrs. Whiteside, who was an invalid and finally died. Then I kept house for Mr. Whiteside for a year till his nephew and wife could come and take care of the farm and him.

I was very proud in those days, could get up such fine dinners for his friends who came from far off to see him. When the minister came and I could bring out the fine linen and the China tea set, and the heavy silver, then the hot biscuits, the homemade butter and honey, with home-cured dried beef—I was proud. But I sometimes now think they came for eats more than to see him.

Then Mr. Whiteside died, and I drifted away from that neighborhood.

1880. Still working as a hired girl, and caring for the sick. Those were busy days.

In the fall of 1887—Nov. 9 it was—I married Thomas Salmon Moses, a farmer by occupation. We left on our wedding trip for North Carolina to take charge of a horse ranch in North Carolina. But we never reached there. We were kidnapped at Staunton, Va. Or I should say, we were "over-persuaded" to go no farther south. So we hired a farm near Staunton for a year, to see if we would like the south.

The people there were over-anxious for northerners or westerners to come in and build up the state. They were in a way helpless since the colored help had been taken from them. We remained on this farm one year, then moved farther down the valley onto a 600-acre dairy farm.

"Here I commenced to make butter and ship it to the White Sulphur Springs, W. Va. I also made potato chips, which was a novelty in those days. This we continued for several years.

There our ten children were born. And there I left five little graves in that beautiful Shenandoah Valley.

We came back up north to New York State Dec. 15, 1905, with our five children to educate and put on their footing. We bought a farm and went in to the dairy business selling milk and doing general farm work. Here my oldest daughter married and left home. Here my two oldest sons bought a farm and struck out for themselves. And here, on Jan. 15, 1927, my husband died, my youngest son and wife taking over the farm, leaving me unoccupied. I had to do something, so took up doing pictures—first in worsted, then in oil."

Come. Rediscover "Our Greatest Americans" with this wonderful NEW ingot series. Choose from five fine art ingots minted in 999 Pure Silver. Take Abraham Lincoln; John F. Kennedy; Douglas MacArthur; Thomas Edison or Dwight D. Eisenhower. Each ingot contains 480 grains of pure silver, all five ingots contain 2400 grains of pure silver.

A TREASURY OF FINE ART

Five flawless, gleaming mirror-like proof finish ingots will be issued, each quarter year, until late 1975 . . . ideal to display individually or as a group during our country's bicentennial celebration in 1976. Future ingots will commemorate other remarkable Americans who have contributed so much to our country's greatness.

A STRICTLY LIMITED OFFER

The Hamilton Mint, known for its magnificent relief sculpture and craftsmanship will strike this series in an extremely limited edition of 10,000 proof finish sets in Pure Silver. To protect the integrity of this edition, only one complete "proof" set will be minted for each subscriber and the dies will be destroyed after all editions are completed. Proof sets are usually reserved only for masterworks of medallic art.

GUARANTEED PRICE PROTECTION!

If you purchase all five now. The Hamilton Mint will guarantee this remarkably low purchase price for future purchases in this series should you choose to make them. Although the price of silver and gold have almost doubled this past year, The Mint will commit for a sufficient quantity of silver and gold at current market prices to fully cover your future orders. (No matter how high the price of silver and gold may rise while the collection is being minted.)

YOUR PERSONAL SERIAL NUMBER

Your individual proof finish ingots will be minted expressly for you and each ingot will carry your personal matching serial number along with The Hamilton Mint Hallmark and certification of Silver and Gold content. If you purchase all five in this initial group, your same serial number will be reserved for you for all future ingots in this collection.

Each group of five will come smartly packaged in clear lucite display case along with fascinating historical background of each subject commemorated . . . details worth preserving together with your valuable ingot collection.

REMARKABLE INVESTMENT POTENTIAL!

This remarkable opportunity to acquire ingots of artistic and historical significance in Silver and Gold is at a time when leading economists and investment advisors are predicting silver and gold will continue to become even more valuable in the years to come. Collectors have already realized bonanzas. A 1970 Christmas Ingot, for example, was issued for $12.00 and is now being re-sold for $185. A 1972 Thanksgiving Ingot containing 1 oz. of silver originally sold for $4.50 and is now trading at about $62. How your Horoscope can bring you wealth, love, success and happiness.

by Norman P. Kennedy

Astrology Today

PRESENTED BY THE AMERICAN ASTROLOGICAL ASSOCIATION
"The Nation's Largest Astrological Society"

© 1973 American Astrological Assn. of Ohio, Inc.

Did you know your horoscope could mean the difference between happiness or sorrow; between success or failure?

Picture a long room with doors at each end. In this room there are money, attractive persons of the opposite sex, books that tell you the secret of happiness and many other valuable articles. But, also in this room are bottomless pits, traps, hostile persons and dangerous beasts chained in various places around the room. You must walk through this room, but you may take out of it anything you can.

Now if you had a choice, would you choose to 1) go through the room blindfolded or 2) go through the room with your eyes open and with written instructions on which places and people to visit or avoid.

Of course, all of us would pick the second choice in a case such as this. Isn't it ridiculous, then, that we would choose to go through life, the same situation, blindfolded! Even when there is a means to go through life with a map and our eyes wide open! The means provided is Astrology. The map is our astrological horoscope.

How does it work? Nature's cosmos imprints each of us at the time of birth – when the umbilical cord is cut. We then become ourselves. Until the cord is cut, we are part of our mother. Why or how we presently do not know. The movement of the large solar bodies then times potentials for events in our lives. Astrology does not cause events but is timing of events. But, it's not fortune telling. It's a prediction of potentials which free will can override.

What does a natal horoscope analysis by a qualified astrologer contain? A natal horoscope analysis contains the best psychological analysis of yourself that you can get today. Because, in a controlled experiment in 1960, astrologers beat psychologists in predicting case histories.

In addition, a natal horoscope analysis includes discussions on the following: financial outlook; taxes and inheritances; early home environment; relationships with family, relatives and parents; lovelife and marriage; children; career and occupation; hopes; wishes and goals; and subconscious attitudes. In a major analysis, a one year forecast is also included.

Many people think that astrology only appeals to "way out" unscientific people. Nothing could be farther from the truth. In fact, studies show that astrology appeals most to intelligent and logical people. Famous scientists Galileo, Carl Jung, Johannes Kepler, Roger Bacon, Tycho Bache and Albert Einstein all believed in astrology.

Your horoscope can help you be in the right place at the right time.

Your horoscope can help you avoid disasters while guiding you to your beneficial opportunities.

Did you know that astrology helped the allies win World War II? The allies employed astrologers. The axis powers started out employing astrologers. But, this was ceased early when the famous astrologer, Karl Ernst Krafft, predicted the exact time and place of an attempt on Hitler's life in 1939. Hitler thought the astrologers were conspiring against him, so they were imprisoned.

Hitler turned back to astrology – too late. He read his horoscope in the last moments of the war as Berlin burned around him.

More on avoiding disaster, came these stories from a recent article in the Miami Herald newspaper. The article tells the story of Mary Kelly, a Miami computer programmer, who heeded the advice of her horoscope which warned her of a wrong medical diagnosis. She avoided an unnecessary operation that would have left her a cripple.

The Miami Herald also tells the story of astrologer Clifford McMullen, who is George McGovern's personal astrologer. He warned McGovern that if he ran for president, that he would win the Democratic nomination, but he would lose badly to President Nixon in the November election.

Your horoscope can bring you wealth. Famous business tycoon, J. P. Morgan, used astrology to acquire his fortune. Morgan did not make a financial move without checking his natal horoscope forecast.

From an article in the Miami Herald came this story:

> "Stockbrokers on Wall Street are as likely to call an astrologer in this decade as Hollywood film stars would call a psychiatrist in the last. David Williams, a 75 year old retired financial expert who lives in Clearwater, has made $150,000 from the stock market in 13 years by using astrology as an investment guide."

Your horoscope can show you the way to success and happiness in love and marriage. Horoscopes of Grace Kelly and Jackie Kennedy predicted their current successful marriages, Grace Kelly to Prince Rainier and Jackie Kennedy to Aristotle Onassis.

Princess Grace and Prince Rainier have recently had their horoscopes done together by American astrologer, Keith Clayton. As with these famous people, your horoscope can help you find and keep a lasting and meaningful love relationship.

Now and through the ages a good natal horoscope analysis has meant success for many people. In other cases many men have missed their opportunity; some with tragic consequences, such as Adolf Hitler.

Will you miss your success opportunities? Will you stumble into pitfalls you could have avoided?

Today, right this moment, you can have your natal horoscope cast and analyzed. You can get it for only the cost to make your duplicate copy. You get the expensive casting and analyzing process – FREE. The article below will tell you how. The means are available, but the choice is yours.

HOW TO GET YOUR NATAL HOROSCOPE FOR ONLY THE COST OF MAKING COPIES.

by John F. Ford

Send me your exact time and place of birth. I'll cast and analyze your natal horoscope for research purposes. You may have duplicate copies of your horoscope for only $3.00 – the cost to make your copies plus postage and handling costs. You get the expensive casting and analyzing process – FREE, because of the fact that we must produce your horoscope for research anyhow.

Your natal horoscope will consist of nine pages and over 3,000 words. Your natal horoscope will contain your psychological analysis plus a discussion of the following: your lovelife; financial outlook; marriage, family and children relationships; career and occupations; hopes, wishes and goals; and subconscious attitudes. A horoscope of this type would cost up to $300 if done by an astrologer.

I will cast your horoscope with the help of our 360 - 65 I.B.M. computer, which contains over 24 million bits of information. Your horoscope will not be the worthless type found in daily newspapers. Your natal horoscope will be cast from your exact time and place of birth for you and you alone.

THERE'S ABSOLUTELY NO CATCH. I need this information for my astrological research. I am looking for certain planet configurations. If you are chosen as a research subject, I will mail to you a research questionnaire. If you fill out and return this questionnaire, you will be entitled to extra bonuses.

There is no need to worry about find-ind out about an unavoidable coming disaster thru your chart. As mentioned, astrology deals in potentials. Your free will can override potentials if you know about them. In any case, the policy of qualified astrologers is positive astrology. If there is something negative in your chart, you are told what you can do to make it positive.

To get your horoscope thru this special opportunity, simply fill out the research computer form and mail to the address given on the form. Include the $3.00 copy cost for each horoscope or charge your credit card. There is a limit of two per family. If you don't know your exact time of birth, fill in 12:00 PM.

If you have any questions, call me, John F. Ford, president, The American Astrological Association. Telephone m at (216) 478-2171. Thank you!

Grandma Moses:

Continued

Her Simple Genius...

BY OTTO KALLIR

The autobiographical sketch you may have just finished reading was written by Anna Mary Robertson Moses in 1945. It is an outline of the years up to her husband's death in 1927—that is to say, the time preceding her career as a painter.

The astonishing story of Anna Mary Robertson Moses's development has aroused the interest of the American and the European public for more than three decades. As "Grandma Moses" she has become known all over the world. Wherever her pictures were shown, they met with exceptional response – in the U.S., in Western Europe and in Russia. People everywhere have been impressed by her paintings, which so vividly depict life in rural America, the changing seasons, the daily chores and pleasures of farm life, of which the artist was a part for close to a century.

Although Anna Mary Moses started painting seriously only in her old age, one cannot set an exact date for the beginning of her artistic activities, because, almost without being aware of it, she had from early childhood on done painting and decorating in her home.

"When I was quite small," she once wrote, "my father would get me and my brothers white paper by the sheet, like the kind used for newspapers. He liked to see us draw pictures. It was a penny a sheet and it lasted longer than candy. My older brother loved to draw steam engines, the next brother went in for animals, but as for myself I had to have pictures, and the gayer the better. I would draw the picture, then color it with grape juice or berries, anything that was red and pretty in my way of thinking."

But the inclination for painting, shared also by her father and other members of the family, was always subordinated to the duties and obligations of everyday life. Anna Mary did not have the leisure to develop her talent, either in her early youth, as a young housewife in Virginia, or after the family returned to New York in 1905. But her artistic urge often expressed itself in a desire to decorate objects of daily use around the house.

Two examples have been preserved: a fireboard and a table. She wrote about the fireboard: "One time I was papering the parlor, and I ran short of paper for the fireboard. So I took a piece of paper and pasted it over the board, and I painted it a solid color first, then I painted two large trees on each side of it, like butternut trees. And in back I did a little scene of a lake and painted it a yellow color, really bright, as though you were looking off into the sun light. In the front, to fill in that space, I brought in big bushes. I daubed it all on with the brush I painted the floor with.

"Finally we re-papered the parlor and papered over the picture. When we re-papered the room again a few years ago, we took the paper off the fireboard, but the colors had faded somewhat. That was my first large picture."

About the table, she wrote: "I have an old tip-up table, on which I paint. My aunt gave it to me 35 years ago. It was built for a log cabin. . . . The table was made of pine planks, under the top between the standards there was a box in which they kept their pewter dishes. . . . "My aunt sent it to me for a flower stand. I have painted scenes on the standards and covered the top with postal cards, and now use it for my easel."

The painting on the fireboard is dated May 10, 1918, and those on the table were done about 1920. These first attempts already show a painterly technique rarely found in works of self-taught artists.

OAKLAND'S JIM OTTO: "Football's Superstars Make Too Much Money!"

Jim Otto, center for the Oakland Raiders, is not only the "Iron Man" of the NFL—he is also the No. 1 "straight man." The 255-pound, 35-year-old Otto joined the Raiders when the American Football League was formed back in 1960, and is the only original member of the team left. Before the current season began, he had started in 182 consecutive league games for the Raiders. He is the Raiders' offensive captain, has been an All-League center, and is known to his opponents as a man who hustles every minute in every game. . . . Otto considers himself a "straight man" because he adheres strictly to the old traditions of discipline, dedication and self-denial. "I'm interested in the money I make from pro ball, but I don't consider it as important as having pride in my job," he says. . . . Otto is outspoken in his criticism of other pro football players who selfishly insist on "doing their own thing," who are prima donnas who will not give of themselves 100 percent to help the team. "The superstars of this game get too much money, don't care about their teammates, and are undisciplined people who tend to play only in spurts," he says. . . . To demonstrate just how "straight" he is, Otto had a picture of himself and his family taken for Christmas cards. The picture showed him in Oakland uniform while his son also wore a football uniform. His wife and daughter held Oakland pennants. "A lot of people in football thought this was corny, but that's just because they don't have pride in their uniform and are only in the game for what they personally can get out of it," he says. . . . Otto is a native of Wausau, Wis. He won all-state honors as a center and linebacker for the University of Miami, and set a Miami record for tackles by linebackers. . . . After receiving his B.S. degree in education, he was drafted by the new Oakland team.

away from center-fold type girls. They prefer the slimmer girl whose physical charms are more conservative.

7. True—according to psychological studies which show that women who are somewhat heavier than what is considered the "ideal figure" tend to be much more affectionate, and to have significantly more enthusiasm for love and romance, than many women who don't have a weight problem.

8. False. Consensus of psychological studies shows overweight people are quicker to suffer from real or fancied slights, more subject to social anxieties, more easily saddened or dispirited by events or circumstances which others might take in their stride.

9. False. Studies sponsored by the National Institutes of Health show that "not all people who are heavy are excessively fat, and that the relative contributions to overweight of bone, muscle, and fat varies from person to person."

10. True. When a woman's natural weight is a few pounds over the norm, she is likely to feel better, look better and radiate more charm personality-wise if she doesn't try to shed poundage to achieve the slenderness encouraged by current fashion trends but which may be quite unsuitable to her constitution and individual body structure. And in such cases, the rigors of a weight-reduction regime may play such havoc with her nerves and general disposition that any attractiveness she may gain may be more than offset by her irritability and jumpiness. Many a woman's personality has suffered when she forced herself to shed pounds she didn't really need to lose, just because she was brainwashed by the fickle tides of contemporary fashion.

Never Have Rough Hands Again!

"Gloves You Can't See"

Most hand creams and lotions try to replace natural skin moisture with unnatural oils and chemicals after hands have become rough. 'Gloves You Can't See' works differently. A few drops rubbed over the hands create an invisible, non-greasy 'glove' that actually seals in the natural moistures and oils your skin produces — seals out detergent, water, dryness before damage can begin. The result is naturally soft, smooth hands that never become rough . . . even for real problem hands.

Large three month supply. Order today.

MONEY BACK GUARANTEE!

Through extensive laboratory tests and hundreds of satisfied customers, we're positive 'Gloves You Can't See' will work for you! That's why you're protected with a full money-back guarantee. After 7 Days — A remarkable transformation— pot almost gone — revitalized.

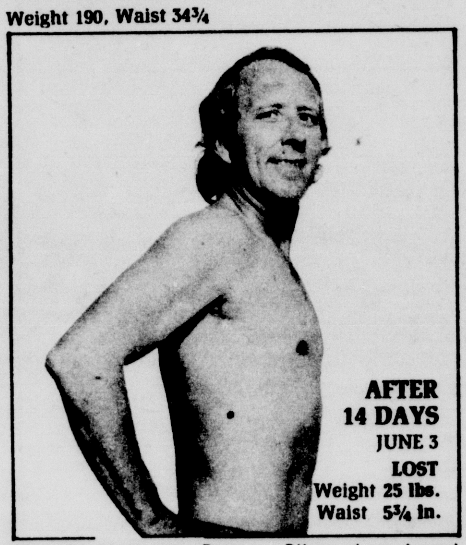
Weight 190, Waist 34¾



After 14 Incredible Days — Slimmed, reshaped, looking 15 years younger, feeling 25 years younger.

Joe Weider, fitness expert and trainer of champions since 1936 says:

"Give me 5 minutes twice daily for only 7 days and you'll lose up to 3 inches from your waistline, up to 6 pounds of unwanted weight, and 'shape up' — or I will return every penny."

LET'S FACE THE FACTS WHY YOU'RE OUT OF SHAPE

You eat the wrong combination of foods, you do not get enough exercise to thoroughly work your muscular, metabolic and respiratory systems daily. Because of this, fat accumulates around your waistline, heart and other body organs, slowing you down, aging your body and destroying your vitality, virility and youth. There is only one way to firm up and shape up: that is through proper exercise and proper nutrition. Effortless exercisers, reducing pills, sauna shorts, weighted belts, dangerous and painful diets and other gimmicks designed to appeal to your laziness will not work and have been exposed by the medical profession as frauds, ineffective and in some cases dangerous. They can only reduce your pocketbook.

Face up to it...If you want to slim down, firm and shape up, you must work off the inches, and there is no safer, faster and more enjoyable way to do it than with our patented, truly miraculous "5" Minute Body Shaper Plan.

HOW DOES THIS INGENIOUS "5" MINUTE PLAN SLIM, FIRM AND SHAPE YOU UP?

Its miraculous slimming action is based on doing one simple "5" Minute Continuous Rhythm coordinated exercise, lying on your back! That's all you do! That's all your body needs to help make up for the lack of activity it doesn't get most of the day. The action is designed to supply your waistline and hipline (where fat accumulates quickest, giving your body a flabby, weak and distorted look) with the activity it needs to slim you and keep you slim. It also burns off excess fat FAST by speeding up your metabolism and respiratory system, using up stored calories, carbohydrates and fats and releasing excess water, thereby shaping and firming up your total body!

It's safer than strenuous gym workouts, beats the time consumption and dangers of gym workouts...or any other vigorous sport.

The unit weighs about 16 ounces and fits any wallet-size case. You can carry it with you and use it — anytime — wherever there's floor space for your body. Even while watching television.

Patent Pending. © Copyright Joe Weider, 1973

WHAT THE EXPERTS SAY:

Medical Doctors, Chiropractors, Osteopaths, Athletic Coaches...agree its the most successful Waistline-Weight Reducer and Shaping Up Plan ever invented!

"Doctors have always known, exercise done while lying on the back virtually eliminates strains while slimming and reshaping the body. Yours is the finest Body Shaper Program on the market." RICHARD TYLER, D.C.

"Beats jogging and working out in gyms — and much safer. I lost 4½ inches off my waist in 14 days." — JIM HANLEY, famous athletic coach.

"Miraculous! Weighs less than a pound, is simple to use and beats working out in a gym with 30 different exercisers!" — TOM MINOCHELLO, famous gym owner.

"Based on sound physiological and medical knowledge, it burns fat and shapes the body without strain to the heart or other organs. I lost 12 lbs. of excess weight using it." DR. ANITA D. SANTANGELO, Chiropractic Orthopedics

WHAT COMES OFF IN 14 DAYS?

Individual results vary, but during an average 14-day period you can expect to lose up to 4 inches from your waistline and up to 10 pounds from your present weight. It strengthens your heart and lungs, increases stamina and endurance, improves your digestive function and general health. It also shapes you up — from head to toes. For a "5" Minute Exerciser — it sure does a lot.

*EXPOSING EFFORTLESS EXERCISERS

Reader's Digest (Sept., 1971), New York Times and Good Housekeeping, among others, exposed sauna wraps, inflated belts, weighted belts and effortless exercisers as frauds. Scientific researchers, medical and fitness experts all agree...there is only one way to firm, shape and trim up your body...you must work the inches off!

Because you may have been fooled in the past by "Effortless Exercisers," we are giving you our no-nonsense Free Trial Offer as shown in the coupon below. We want to prove to you — at our risk — what the Cox family, and thousands of others, have accomplished. You can too!...Safely...comfortably...in the privacy of your own home.

Now, medical science has the power to say to you:

Follow these 3 simple steps, and

BEGIN YOUR "MIDDLE YEARS" AT 70, 80, EVEN 90!

Announcing — an incredibly simple, medically proven, overwhelmingly documented ANTI-AGING program that is designed to:

give you the lean, glowing look of a youngster past sixty . . .

retain the strength and grace and power of a trained athlete in your body beyond your seventies . . .

and keep you in vibrant good health till ninety or more . . . even if you feel "rotten" today . . . even if your mother or father died far too young of diseases that are STILL carried in your bloodstream!

Yes, This Medical "Youth-Building Program" is so Strong That It Can Even Overcome Poor Heredity!

It is so strong, in fact, that it may actually make you look twenty or more years younger than your parents did at the same age . . . at the same exact time that it enables you to live thirty or forty years longer than they did!

We realize, of course, that these facts may seem virtually impossible to you at this moment . . . until you are shown the new medical techniques by which these goals are attained! They are:

1. The most powerful "age-reversing mechanism" known to man . . . which takes exactly six minutes per day . . . may be done by any man or woman, no matter how poor their health today . . . and which is bluntly recognized by one of the leading physicians in this book to give far better "youthifying" results – far faster – than even "cell therapy" treatments costing hundreds of dollars apiece!

2. A direct attack on the stored-up emotional poisons in your body that eat away strength and youth like internal acid, and replace them with never-flagging fatigue! This incredibly simple technique drains out those poisons, and that deadly fatigue, in approximately ten of the most revivifying minutes you have ever spent!

And, finally –

3. A new way to lose weight – not a diet – designed to change your present suicidal eating habits in exactly 48 hours! And, to break at last the vicious fat-multiplying cycle inside your body, that causes you to put on more weight, from less food, than your thin friends.

Let Us Repeat Again: These Medical Techniques Are So Powerful That They Actually REVERSE THE AGING PROCESS — WITHOUT DRUGS!

They cause you, quite simply, to grow stronger and not weaker, as you grow older! And here is the medical documentation to prove it:

In tests conducted at a leading University and Medical School in Southern California, it was discovered that life-prolongation, accomplished this way, not only added decades to potential human life spans, but – even more important – also produced vastly increased vitality and vigor, as well as startlingly heightened resistance to dread "senile decline!" (Reported on page 129 of this thrilling new book.)

As a result of scientific observations and experiments conducted in several different locations in the United States (as well as in Europe and Soviet Russia), it was definitely established that these techniques will enable almost any individual to live beyond 90 . . . and even beyond 100 healthy, productive, thoroughly enjoyable years – even if he or she had tragically short-lived parents or grandparents! In other words, disastrous heredity can now be overcome! (See page 36.)

At a leading Gerontology Research Center on the Pacific Coast, its' president bluntly stated that a single one of the techniques given to you here had (in essence): ". . . reversed the aging process and over a period of time restored the characteristics of youth to the bodies of middle-aged men!" (See Page 129.)

And one of his colleagues, discussing the same simple procedure, went so far as to state that it: ". . . relieves joint stiffness, lowers the blood pressure, and reduces the amount of fat in the body tissues. It acts like a miracle drug, and it's free for the doing!" (Italics ours – see page 130.)

But All This Research Documentation Is Only The PROLOGUE To The Real Meat Of This Revolutionary New Book! FOR NOW THE YOUTH-RESTORING PRINCIPLES LEARNED ALL OVER THE WORLD ARE PUT TO WORK — INSTANTLY — FOR YOU!

How to lose weight without counting calories – by harnessing the same exact forces which made you overweight in the first place! (It is not unusual, with these methods, to lose 15 and more pounds the first week – up to 10 pounds the second week – and a good hundred pounds or more, in as little as 15 weeks. And the weight stays off – for decades!)

How to add 10 . . . 20 . . . perhaps even 30 glowing years to your life, simply by avoiding the everyday "Life-Traps" that make you grow old too fast!

How a careful examination of your eye can tell you, with unerring accuracy, if you've eaten the wrong foods that night for dinner . . . and therefore have to give them up for a few days till your body's digestive powers restore themselves to the correct balance!

Little-known-stress-on-the-heart Number 1 . . . that kills unwary thousands every year . . . and can be prevented simply by reading a single sentence on page 70!

When you must eat . . . and eat . . . and eat if you really want to lose weight!

"Hungry enzymes" that now infest your body! They are the real reason all past attempts to peel off ugly fat have been such torture for you! And you can "command" your body to destroy them – for good – as simply as this! (See page 82.)

Why most people's muscles simply "melt away" as they grow older! (No wonder "old age" to them means ever-growing weakness!) And how you can stop that muscle-melting process overnight . . . and replace it with vibrant new strength!

And More! And More! And More! Like This —

What really causes vigor to drain out of the "aging" body! A simple fluid that if the body gives up too much of, it then dies of old age! And how you can "pump that vital cell-nourishing fluid" right back into your body . . . actually increase your body capacity to utilize by as much as 133% . . . in just a few thrilling minutes every day!

How to exercise your heart! Anyone – no matter what age– can do it! And prevent the greatest tragedy of all – premature heart attack!

Read the line in the middle of page 144 as though your life depended upon it! Because, if you've ever worried about killing your own heart through the worst possible error you can make – this one line will show you how to avoid it . . . forever!

World's easiest exercise program – for men and women who are pitifully out of shape!

How to avoid the man-made diseases! And save your body, and your nerves, at exactly the same time!

What your sleep, or lack of it, is really telling you! And how to ease yourself into a good night's rest again!

What your fingers tell you that can save your life! Listen to them . . . obey their command . . . and you may be able to out-run your own youngster!

If your blood pressure is soaring, you must do this, right now!

World's most effective weapon against demolished nerves! Gets you back to loving life, instead of hating it, in just about ten blessed minutes!

No more nervous breakdowns! And no more un-necessary heart attacks (or strokes!) The technique shown to you on page 197 may banish them from your life – for good!

How to add ten years to your life, by avoiding one little fatal mistake – at night! Before you go to sleep!

How to laugh at old age – at least till you're ninety! A simple program so effective that it may actually cause strangers to think that you are your best friends' grown children!

And Yours To Prove — In Its Entirety — For 30 Days, Entirely At Our Risk!

The choice is yours. This is a book for people who mean business. It costs you nothing! We take all the risk! Fair enough? Why not send in the coupon – TODAY!

SPECIAL ADDED BONUS SECTION

How to survive a heart attack! Why so many heart attacks are the "silent" type, that kill without the victim even being aware he has been seriously ill before! The one warning signal you simply CAN'T ignore! Why HALF of all heart attack victims ACTUALLY KILL THEMSELVES because they just don't know what to do!

BOTTOMS UP!
Kinkajous Clarissa and Fuzzypeg

In case you've never seen a kinkajou before, this picture won't help much to identify them. But it is indicative of the nosey nature of these soft furry animals from South America, who are members of the raccoon family. They sleep all day and live it up at night (when not dining on fruit and insects). If you are trying to keep anything hidden, don't get a kinkajou. Like these two, named Clarissa and Fuzzypeg, thev rifle through everything. Even a briefcase.

The color red causes aggressive behavior in people—like waving a red flag in front of a bull. And this (say the experts) bodes ill for beleaguered firemen in tough city ghettoes. But it's only one of the reasons red fire engines are changing their hue to lime yellow. More firemen, according to a study done by the Ward LaFrance Truck Corporation in Elmire Heights, N.Y., are killed traveling to and from fires than in actually fighting fires. This because of the poor visibility of the red fire truck to motorists and pedestrians. An answer to both these problems is to paint all fire-fighting apparatus lime yellow—a color that has a high degree of visibility and one that causes no hostile response in people. So far, fire departments in Detroit, Newark, Jacksonville, Rochester and Winston-Salem have switched.

QUOTE. From Sen. James Abourezk (D-S.D.): "Instead of insisting that we cannot help someone until his income or our subsidies are adequate to finance a $25,000 home, our bill would make a small, but livable, weathertight, leakproof, safe, heatable home with plumbing a reality for millions of Americans who now live in shacks, car bodies, tents and hovels. There are nearly one million American families with an average rent-paying capacity of $14 a month who need housing. The overwhelming number of them are elderly. It is time we had a national housing policy that speaks to the special needs of rural America." UNQUOTE.

Senator Abourezk

RICHARD THOMAS
Why actors slam doors

Richard Thomas, star of "The Waltons," voices his opinions on actors and discipline: "If anyone but an actor has a problem while a movie is being made, he can have a production conference to try and solve it. If an actor has a problem and holds up work, it is considered childish behavior and a lack of discipline—which is one reason so many actors rely on guerrilla tactics to make a point, like slamming their dressing-room door and not coming out until they get their way. I haven't had to do that yet, but I can sympathize with the actors who do. The time may come when I will do it. But as long as I respect the people I work with and they respect me, I'll do as my parents did—the best I can, without complaining."

NO SHOW

Though we have traveled quite a bit
And seen some scenes, we must admit
Apologies profuse we owe you:
We've not a slide that we can show
you.
We have no camera, no tripod;
We bipeds barely have a bipod.
We have no meter that we treasure,
The waxing, waning light to measure.
Our pictures all are in our minds,
And these are hard to screen, one
finds.
At least we shall not bore you, for
Our heads are what you'd have to bore
To see, arranged on mental shelves,
The pictures that we show ourselves.

Our three-year-old daughter was playing in the room where her daddy was indulging in a particularly serious game of bridge. She ran over to watch the cards being dealt. Having been forwarned not to talk about the cards in someone's hand, she leaned over to her daddy's ear and said in a very audible whisper, "Sure did get a lot of VALENTINES, Dad!"

"Well," the man said, "if you won't give me directions, just answer this one question—how will I know when I'm near the President?"

The gateman smiled wearily. "That'll be easy, sir. A Secret Service man will shoot you." —Dean Morgan

President discloses his financial worth

Nixon is millionaire in 5½ years

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Seeking to refute allegations he profited illegally from his office, President Nixon Saturday issued a financial accounting showing his net worth tripled over 5-½ years, making him a millionaire.

And he has paid a smaller percentage of his income in federal taxes—7 per cent—over that period than would a family of four with an income of $8,000. That results chiefly from a huge writeoff for contributing his vice presidential papers to the National Archives.

The accounting also showed he has paid no state income taxes since assuming office.

Both the President and a team of tax attorneys asserted that all his transactions were legal.

But to eleminate any lingering public doubt, Nixon asked a joint committee of the Democratic-controlled Congress to examine the transactions and vouch for their legitimacy.

"I will abide by the committee's judgment," Nixon said.

If the committee rules against him on the gift of his papers, and disallows an opinion by his attorneys that he does not have to pay taxes on the sale of some California property, Nixon could be liable for more than $300,000 in back taxes and interest.

And, although the statute of limitations has run out on his 1969 deductions and he could not be requred to pay for that year, his spokesman, press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler, said Nixon would do so anyway if the decision went against him.

The documentation, thick as a Russian novel, took a staff of a dozen attorneys and accountants more than three weeks to assemble. Nixon called it the most complete accounting of personal finances ever provided by a president.

It represented a major effort to refute widespread charges of personal wrongdoing that have crept into public print. A White House spokesman said the documentation will be followed by other similar "white papers" dealing with Watergate and related matters.

The documents, authenticated by an exhaustive $25,000 audit conducted at Nixon's expense by the New York firm of Coopers Lybrand, showed that on Jan. 1, 1969—three weeks before he became president—Nixon was worth $307,141.

As of May 31 his net worth was $988,522 and by now, his accountants said, he is a millionaire.

To do this on an annual salary of $200,000 plus $50,000 in expenses, the documents showed the President:

—Completed some enormously successful real estate deals.

—Borrowed heavily from friends, but paid them the going interest rate.

—Chiefly through a controversial deduction of $570,000 for donating his vice presidential papers to the country, managed to pay federal taxes at a rate of 7 per cent of his adjusted gross income. He paid $72,682.09 for 1969, $792.81 for 1970, $878.03 for 1971 and $4,298.17 for 1972.

—Paid no California state income taxes, although he has been a resident for voting purposes there since the spring of 1969.

—Entertained frugally and spent little more than half the $200,000 expense allowance he received during the first four years in office. The unspent expenses became personal income.

Over the four-year period, Nixon paid approximately 7 per cent of his adjusted gross income in federal taxes. According to current tax tables, this is the same rate paid by a family of four earning $8,000 per year and taking the standard deductions.

Kenneth W. Gemmill, a former counsel of the International Revenue Service during the Eisenhower administration and now a Philadelphia tax lawyer who donated his time to head the research into Nixon's finances, said he was "satisfied 100 per cent" that all was above-board.

"To the open-minded, the papers and documents provided today, the facts they contain and the figures they reveal will lay to rest such false rumors as that campaign contributions were converted to my personal use, that campaign funds were used in the purchase of my home in San Clemente, that I sheltered the income on which my daughter, Tricia, should have paid taxes, and that $10 million in federal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — La Casa Pacifica, President Nixon's Spanish-style seaside villa, will be donated to the American people after Nixon and his wife Pat are dead, the President said Saturday.

The half-million dollar complex overlooking the Pacific Ocean, which consists of a 14-room house and a number of outbuildings, will be given as a "conference center, guest facility for visiting dignitaries, and a working base for future presidents," Nixon said.

The announcement of the gift of the Western White House was made as Nixon disclosed all his financial and tax records to try to dispel rumors that he has profitted illegally from his presidency.

In announcing the gift of the villa, Nixon said:

"I have directed my attorneys to take the necessary steps to accomplish this, so that future administrations and future generations can take advantage of this beautiful western setting to help maintain a truly national perspective for the presidency."

The main house, built in the 1920s, consists of five bedrooms, each with a bath; a living room, a formal dining room, a sitting room, a pantry, a kitchen and service porch, and two storage rooms. The only second-floor room is Nixon's office.

East of the main house, on property with 350 feet of ocean front, is a guest house with two bedrooms, a bath and a sitting room. Other structures on the property include a caretaker's house, a playhouse, a greenhouse, a laundry, garages and a 40 by 25-foot outdoor swimming pool.

Nixon could obtain an income tax deduction of about $120,000 with the gift of the home, an IRS spokesman was quoted earlier this week.

Stressing he was responding to questions about a hypothetical taxpayer, the spokesman said that if the President sets up a trust that would automatically convey the property to the government upon the death of himself and his wife, they could live in the house until their deaths but be eligible for a deduction immediately.

If Nixon sets up the trust, he would not be the first president to so claim a deduction for donated property. President and Mrs. Eisenhower obtained a possible deduction of $314,000 for the 230-acre farm in Gettysburg, Pa. when they donated it to the government in 1967.

NATO CONFERENCE

Another house call for healer, Dr. Kissinger

BRUSSELS (UPI) — U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger arrived in Brussels Saturday for the start of a two-week, 11-nation tour to smooth relations with NATO allies and secure a negotiated peace in the Middle East.

Kissinger's plane landed in Brussels at 4:10 p.m. EST. At the airport Kissinger said the NATO alliance, while "not without stress, remains the corner stone of American foreign policy."

The Secretary started his trip just hours after Egypt's Deputy Premier announced in Cairo that Eygpt would attend the Arab-Israeli peace talks Dec. 18 in Geneva.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield volunteered unusually warm praise for Kissinger's success in negotiating with the Arabs and Israelis.

"Secretary of State Kissinger has done a superb job in getting them together," he said. "He's had to walk a tightrope between the two sides."

Mansfield said arranging the face-to-face meeting at Geneva was "a markable achievement."

"If anybody can bring about a solution to the problem it is Henry Kissinger, who under the most difficult circumstances has performed remarkably," Mansfield said. "I think he's the right man at the right place at the right time."

With last-minute assurances that Egypt would sit down at the negotiating table with Israel, Kissinger can be expected to concentrate on the other major goals of his trip: to salvage the U. S. alliance with its NATO allies and convince the Arab States to end heir crippling embargo of oil shipments to the United States.

Abandon protest, Teamster chief tells truckers after Nixon meet

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Teamsters President Frank E. Fitzsimmons concluded a meeting with President Nixon Saturday by asking the nation's truckers to abandon their protest of fuel shortages. But a dissident group of drivers promised to press ahead with plans for a two-day work stoppage.

Fitzsimmons, Nixon's strongest ally in the labor movement leadership, met with the President for 50 minutes in the Oval Office and then conferred for about one hour, 45 minutes with chief energy official William E. Simon.

He said the discussions hinged on the truckers' request that highway speed limits, which have been reduced to save fuel, be restored to 60 m.p.h. and that strict controls be placed on the rising cost of gasoline and diesel fuel. He added he was confident the President would give "due consideration" to the truckers' needs.

"I urge truck drivers everywhere to exercise patience and discipline while the issue is being resolved," Fitzsimmons told reporters after the White House session. "I do not condone blockages or nation-wide strikes."

Mike Parkhurst, editor of an industry publication, "Overdrive," meanwhile declared at a news conference on the steps of the Capitol that as many as 100,000 drivers would join in a two-day shutdown Thursday and Friday.

"Neither Frank Fitzsimmons nor President Nixon has the influence or the power or the respect to stop the shutdown," Parkhurst said. "Frank Fitzsimmons has tried to manipulate the press into thinking or reporting that the two-day shutdown would be averted."

In Springfield, Ill., officials of the Midwest Truckers Association issued a call for a two-day "park-in" next Thursday and Friday. The group says it represents about 2,000 small trucking companies in Illinois and a few from adjacent states.

Fitzsimmons, who met with reporters at the White House along with Simon, indicated that both his members and the independent drivers would hold off their threatened shutdown. "Teamster members and all truck drivers are loyal Americans first and truck drivers second," he said.

Both Fitzsimmons and Simon, who has been named to head the new Federal Energy Administration, left the clear impression that no final decision had been made on the speed limit issue. Nixon has asked Congress for legislation creating a 55 m.p.h. speed limit for trucks and a 50 m.p.h. limit for cars.

Referring to the price problem, Simon said he and his staff were investigating the possibility of providing additional gasoline and deisel fuel for truckers and added that the Internal Revenue Service was trying to find and correct any evidence of retail price gouging.

"I need the help of the truckers, the people who are out on the highways —if they could call and identify any abuse of this pricing mechanism, we'd like to know about it so we could help," Simon said.

"I faithfully promise that we will promptly take action against those who are exploiting the current fuel shortage," Simon said.

Fitzsimmons later issued an eight-page statement outlining the Teamsters position on the energy crisis and the impact it is having on the trucking industry.

It called for a "universal" 60 mph speed limit for trucks, buses and cars. It added that trucks "operate much more efficiently —from a fuel consuption standpoint —at high speeds than at lower speeds proposed, such as 50 or 55 mph."

The Teamsters leader also argued that a 60 mph speed limit would conserve automobile fuel. He said motorists tend to exceed the speed limit slightly and strict enforcement of a 60 mph limit would "actually be slowing autos down anywhere from 10 to 15 miles per hour."

The statement said union members get 16 cents per mile and no hourly pay accept in cases of breakdowns and severe delays. Federal law forbids them to drive more than 10 hours at a stretch and they must take an 8-hour break between stretches.

"The very simple arithmetic of lower speed limits is that they reduce the earning power of over-the-road drivers upwards of 18 per cent while at the same time resulting in greater consumption of fuel," he said.

2 to 4 cents a gallon, says IRS

Truck drivers being overcharged for fuel

CLEVELAND (UPI) — The Internal Revenue Service here said Saturday that truck drivers are being charged two to four cents a gallon more than the ceiling price for diesel fuel.

Dale Kauffman, head of the IRS Price Control office here, said seven of 41 truck stops checked by the IRS in Northern Ohio were found to be overcharging truck drivers.

"We swept Interstate-71, I-75, I-80, I-90, I-77, I-76 and the (Ohio) turnpike," said Kauffman.

"All seven rolled their prices back on the spot," Kauffman said. "They were all located just off the interstate highways, but the turnpike stations were all okay.

Kauffman also said all truck stops checked were receiving only 70 to 90 per cent of their normal allocation from oil companies.

In turn, 21 of the 41 were limiting sales to truckers to between 12 and 70 gallons.

Nearly 800 truckers gathered Saturday at truck stops near the Toledo entrance to the Ohio Turnpike. Some threatened to resume the highway blockades of the past week to protest the high cost of fuel and lowered speed limits.

Energy crisis good for Christmas, says Yule tree king

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — The "Christmas tree king" always did think the overload of electric circuits with Christmas tree lights in recent years was "perversion of Christmas spirit."

That's why he sees in the energy crisis in America "added incentive for a nationwide return to Christmas trees that are more in keeping with tradition."

The "Christmas tree king" is Rick Kirk, of G.R. Kirk Co., Puyallup, Wash., the nation's largest provider of freshly cut evergreens.

The matter of the power shortage came up in the middle of "Operation Christmas Tree" involving the shipping of Kirk's trees to various markets. A large part of that is handled by Burlington Northern Railroad, which uses 180 to 200 box cars just for Kirk and a few other, smaller, operators.

Kirk's firm this year is wholesaling almost 1.5 million cut trees, taken from forests of Quebec, Nova Scotia, Wisconsin, British Columbia, Montana and Washington.

Distribution is made to independent dealers throughout the United States by rail, truck and even by air in special circumstances. Getting trees to market in prime condition is the tree king's big concern in the six to eight weeks before Christmas.

Power-consuming electric lights, he noted in discussing the matter with Lane Downey, Burlington's area sales manager who is coordinating the shipment of the trees, were successors to lighted candles on Christmas trees.

"I'm in no way suggesting we go back to candles, because they were not safe," said Kirk in offering ways of decorating with bright, natural things such as popcorn strings, apples and other fruit and small decorative wrapped gifts.

—Flocked trees with bright baubles of a single color—they stand out day or night. Today's flocking methods also are fireproof.

—A well-shaped green tree, dressed in streaming red, gold or silver garlands, with just a sprinkling of matching or contrasting baubles is equally esthetic, and without lights the tree lasts longer, suffers less abuse at the decorator's hand and is safer than those strung with power-consuming electric lights.

—For those who insist on electric displays, just a few low-watt twinklers strategically placed can retain the esthetic simplicity of the ideas mentioned and still cut power use sharply.

Family fun and true unity in the Christmas spirit await those who like the most expressive tree of all—one with homemade, handcrafted decorations, colorful paper cut-outs, glue-and-sparkle cards, cones and balls, multicolored ribbon bows, cranberry garlands and maybe even a nice white bone for the family dog.

"Recent years have seen a tendency toward overloading of circuits," said Kirk, "and the most plausible explanation I know is that almost everyone wants to upstage his neighbors in light-count. What perversion of Christmas spirit!"

Must ration gas—Mansfield

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield and three House members predicted Saturday that President Nixon will have to impose gasoline rationing and abandon proposals for an increased gasoline tax.

Mansfield told reporters administration officials were being unrealistic in declaring that rationing will not start before March 1 if at all.

"I think the administration is not fully aware of the gravity of the situation and that it will have to revert to rationing whether they like it or not," Mansfield said.

He rejected as unfair proposals that a 30 or 40 cent per gallon tax be imposed on gasoline to restrict consumption.

"The ordinary working stiff ... would be penalized,'' Mansfield said. "They're the ones who pay most of the taxes anyway. No one should be given preferential treatment."

Support for rationing was expressed in separate statements by Reps. Brock Adams, D-Wash., William L. Dickinson, D-Va., and Ike F. Andres, D-N.C.

Adams was critical of an emergency energy bill approved Friday by the House Interstate and Commerce Committee because it would not require President Nixon to impose a mandatory gasoline rationing program.

The bill, Adams said, called for "end-use allocation" but he added it was unclear whether this would authorize rationing.

"Without a definite rationing system, the average American will either be forced to stand in line at gas pumps to pay outrageous prices —or will be left to the mercy of individual gasoline companies and dealers who can exact whatever demands they want when customers try to obtain gasoline."

Dickinson said he was opposed to higher prices, higher taxes and rationing. But as a last resort, he said, he would choose rationing as "the lesser of three evils."

Andrews said a tax increase to force a reduction in gasoline use would be "discriminatory, punitive and very unfair.''

IT LOOKS REAL

Los Angeles special agent in charge Robert Powis displays handful of bogus $20 bills confiscated by the U.S. Secret Service in Malibu Saturday. The counterfeit money was valued at $1.1 million. Agents were led to the hidden bills by James A. Muscarella, 25, Los Angeles, who was later booked on suspicion of distributing counterfeit currency.

Food shortage growing as strike continues

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Shoppers throughout California found their favorite foods missing from supermarket shelves Saturday in the sixth day of a food industry strike-lockout which appeared far from settlement.

"There are no dairy products and the fresh vegetables are going bad. Nobody's buying them because the prices are too high," said Carol Sornstein, a frustrated housewife of North Hollywood.

Food chain employers and butchers union representatives in San Francisco Saturday held their first face-to-face meeting since picket lines went up.

A management spokesman said, however, the Northern California dispute — involving some 13,000 employes—could not be settled until an agreement is reached in Southern California.

Negotiations to end the strike-lockout of 22,000 workers in Southern California were scheduled to resume Monday.

Leaders of the four unions striking 61 market chains, including Safeway, Lucky's and Thriftimart, threatened to increase the number of pickets this week if no agreement is reached. That could mean even more shortages at the markets.

"Nobody is going hungry but shortages are going to get worse, especially in the big markets as they work off the inventories they had built up in anticipation of the strikelockout," said Jerry Vercruse, chief negotiator for the Teamsters Union and chairman of the four-union coalition.

Robert K. Fox, president of the Food Employers Council, said management is finding alternative means of distributing food while the wholesale and retail workers are on strike.

Even some stores not actively being struck are feeling the effect of the strike-lockout by food industry warehousemen, delivery truck drivers, butchers and other workers. Bakers and some retail clerks observed picket lines.

Impeach probe looms

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The confirmation of Vice President Gerald R. Ford apparently proved to be a dry run for the House Judiciary Committee's investigation of grounds for impeaching President Nixon.

Committee staffers said Saturday that the impeachment inquiry, which began officially in October, will swing into full tilt this week now that they have completed their investigation of Ford.

Several of the staffers said they anticipate the impeachment probe will take much longer, assuming that Nixon offers the same defense as each of the 12 officials impeached in the past —that it is "politically motivated." But the White House has not yet indicated how fully it will cooperate with the committee.

"If he (Nixon) wants us to impeach him or get off his back, will he come forward and cooperate?" a committee aide asked. "The role of the President is a significant one in terms of proceeding."

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield praised the "pace" at which the House committee is moving. "I think this is something that should be done with the utmost caution and care," Mansfield told reporters.

"I don't think he will resign, I don't think he should resign," Mansfield said.

"He ought to stay in office until all the facts are laid out by the special prosecutor, by the grand jurors, by the Ervin committee and by the White House."

The 22 committee staffers who were assigned to the seven-week Ford investigation will form the bulwark of a 45-member staff for the impeachment inquiry. Anticipating charges that it is "politically motivated," the staff notes that not one word was leaked to the news media about some 100 formal interviews that were conducted in 14 states during the Ford inquiry.

The committee's 38 members —21 Democrats and 17 Republicans —will be briefed by the staff next Tuesday on a mountain of material that already has been collected and the field of candidates for a special counsel to oversee the proceedings. The field has been narrowed down to four from more than 100 prospects, according to sources.

One committee staffer said there has been some pressure from some of his colleagues to issue subpoenaes soon to demonstrate that the committee is not stalling. But he indicated subpoenaes are not likely until at least January after a special counsel has been hired and he has determined what materials are needed.

California tax official doubts Nixon exemption

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — A California tax official said Saturday there is a "serious question" about President Nixon's claim of exemption from state income tax.

The state tax collection authority said it wants to know why the President has not paid California taxes.

William M. Bennett, one of three members of the state Franchise Tax Board and chairman of the tax-collecting Board of Equalization, said the fact that the President is registered to vote in California indicates he is a resident.

"That ordinarily means he pays taxes here,' Bennett said.

"You can't vote here unless you're a resident, and that has a lot of tax consequences.'

At Bennet's request, the Franchise Tax Board will include the question of Nixon's tax status on the agenda for its regular meeting Tuesday in Sacramento.

"What I'm looking for is the reason he's immune from California tax liability," said Bennett.

A liberal Democrat who earlier this year expressed skepticism about property tax assessments against Nixon's San Clemente villa, Bennett said he asked the board to look into the President's state income tax two months ago.

At the time, Bennett said he was "quite suspicious. And now it appears I had a lot to be suspicious about."

He referred to the President's disclosure that he paid no California income taxes since assuming office.

Nixon's lawyers said that while the President resided in California for voting purposes, his domicile was in Washington, D.C., where elected federal officials are exempt from local income taxes.

According to the President's statement, his lawyers received an opinion from California tax officials in 1969 that he was not liable for state income taxes.

Ontario woman held in shooting

ONTARIO — A 33-year-old Ontario woman has been taken into custody in connection with the Friday night shooting of a local man in his apartment.

Ann Deloes Morris, of 860 N. Virginia St., was picked up at her home Saturday about 3:30 p.m. by police, as a suspect in the wounding of Jerry Hallam of 430 Parkside Ave.

Another suspect, Thomas W. Ridgeway of 808 E. Raymond Ave., Upland, is still being sought by police.

Hallam was listed in fair condition Saturday at San Antonio Community Hospital in Upland.

Police gave no motive for the shooting.

200 gather at rally to hear call for Nixon impeachment

POMONA — Rep. Jerome R. Waldie, D-14th Dist., Antioch, a leader in the national movement to impeach President Nixon, made a 10-minute whistle stop at a rally here Saturday.

"The country is trying but has not yet succeeded in telling Congress it wants Richard Nixon impeached," Waldie told some 200 gathered at the Civic Center Plaza.

"Congress will move only when the majority of its members are convinced there will be no political consequences. Maybe that's the way it should be. Impeachment should not be done for political reasons."

Waldie said that now that Gerald Ford had been confirmed and sworn in as vice president, there is a lot of talk on Capitol Hill. "Now we've got Ford in we can move on Nixon," he quoted congressmen as saying. "Some are talking impeachment. Most are talking resignation," he said.

He said the House committee to investigate what grounds for impeachment exist is "gearing up" to move.

Waldie was followed by Richard Spawn, a member of a Ralph Nader investigative group. "We all have to hurt" was the theme of his brief talk. He outlined campaign contributions, the energy crisis, income tax payments, presidential homes. White House bugging and presidential contempt for Congress as things "that make us hurt."

Another rally speaker, Bill Lindeke, former Cal State Los Angeles political science professor, said that the corporate elite of the country now holds power and "that power should be taken back and put in the hands of the people."

Lindeke said "we need the impeachment because we need to get all the information out in front of the people so we can break down this structure of power."

Mike McHahn, a student at Claremont Graduate School, served as master of ceremonies. He said the rally was sponsored by a group of about 60 persons calling themselves Concerned Citizens of Pomona Valley.

Man is booked; swings at jailer, but breaks hand

ONTARIO — A man arrested in connection with a burglary Friday afternoon became so angry while being fingerprinted that he reportedly swung at a jailer, missed, hit the wall instead, and broke his hand, West End sheriff's deputies reported.

Dennis William Bevin, 28, of 1676 Kingsley Ave., Pomona, was being booked at the jail on suspicion of grand theft and receiving stolen property when he reportedly swung at the jailer.

Only a short time earlier, William Harper of 10389 Kinberly Ave., Montclair, had reported to police the theft of a 19-inch black and white television set, a World War II Japanese rifle, and a .22 caliber Remington pump action rifle.

Bevin was treated by a doctor for his injury.

Nixon finances . . .

funds was spent on my homes in Key Biscayne and San Clemente," Nixon said.

Although both law and tradition protect the privacy of such documents even for a president, Nixon said he was making them public "because the confidentiality of my private finances is far less important to me than the confidence of the American people in the integrity of the President."

At the same time, Nixon confirmed that his chief asset— the 5.9-acre La Casa Pacifica estate he and Mrs. Nixon purchased at San Clemente, Calif., in 1968—would be donated after they die to the government for use as a conference center, guest facility for visiting dignitaries and a working base for future presidents. Its value is $571,167, Nixon said.

IRS sources said Nixon could claim this gift as a tax deduction as well.

Figures from the tax returns he and Mrs. Nixon filed in 1969, 1970, 1971 and 1972 were furnished and reporters were permitted to check the actual returns to verify them.

They show he paid a total tax of $78,651.10 during these four years on a total adjusted gross income of $1,122,266.37.

With deductions totaling $257,376 for interest on money he borrowed to purchase his estates, property taxes of $81,255, and deductions for his gift to papers of $482,019, his taxable income for this period was only $172,892.

And he still has $94,981 left as a deduction from the papers' donation against future taxes.

In addition to his $200,000 yearly salary, the president receives an additional $50,000 expense allowance each year which, by law, he has to account for only for tax purposes.

His tax records show that during his first four years in office, he spent only $108,000 of this on such items as gifts to visitors, officially related entertainment, and the use of portions of his Florida and California residences as office space. State dinners and large scale functions are paid out of a separate White House fund.

The remaining $92,000 was treated as regular, taxable income.

The documents showed Nixon profitted heavily from his real estate transactions. He purchased 199,891 shares in 1967 at $1 per share in a corporation developing Fisher's Island in Biscayne Bay near his Florida home. He sold at cost 10,000 shares to his personal secretary, Rose Mary Woods; 3,000 to his speechwriter and protege, Patrick J. Buchanan; and 1,000 shares to his valet, Manuel Sanchez.

The remaining 185,891 shares he sold in May, 1969, for $371,782—a profit of $184,891 over a two-year period.

His apartment in New York City, purchased for $100,000 in 1963 and improved by expenditures of $66,860, was sold in May, 1969, for $312,500—a profit of $142,912 over a five-year period.

In 1967, he bought two undeveloped lots in Florida on Key Biscayne for a total of $38,080. Last December he sold the properties for $150,000 for a profit of $111,270 in 5-½ years.

For this transaction, Nixon borrowed $20,000 from his older daughter, Tricia, from a trust established for her in 1958 by Elmer Bobst, chairman of the board of Warner-Lambert Co., and a long-time family friend.

There have been allegations Tricia did not pay her share of the income taxes on this transaction but, according to copies of her tax return, she paid taxes on a capital gain of $11,617 in 1972 and will pay on $32,891 in her 1973 returns.

The Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation, composed of ranking members of the House Ways and Means Committee and the Senate Finance Committee, is the only group in Congress authorized to examine income tax returns.

The President specifically asked the committee to confirm the legitimacy of his $570,000 deduction for the papers donation, and opinions by his legal advisers that he did not have to pay taxes on $117,370 capital gain from the sale of some property in California.

Questions have been raised whether the transfer of his documents was completed before July 25, 1969, when a new law eliminated such gifts as tax deductions.

Nixon's lawyers cited legal precedents to show that while he resided in California for voting purposes, his domicile was Washington, D. C.—thus he did not have to pay California state taxes. In addition, all elected federal officials are exempt from District of Columbia income taxes.

On another controversial subject, the documents show that Nixon paid no personal capital gains taxes when he sold a portion of his California estate to Robert H. Abplanalp and C.G. Rebozo, his two closest personal friends.

Abplanalp, the President's chief benefactor, had loaned him a total of $625,000 to purchase La Casa Pacifica.

The estate, consisting of 26 acres including the Nixons' 14-room Spanish-style villa, cost $1.4 million in 1969. A year later 2.9 acres was added for $100,000. In 1970 the Nixons sold all but 5.9 acres of the property on which their beachfront home was located for $1,249,000 to Abplanalp and Rebozo doing business as the B & C Investment Co.

Nixon's accountant, Arthur Blech, valued the portion of the estate retained by the Nixons at approximately $280,000 — which meant that they made no profit on the sale and consequently paid no taxes on it.

However, the auditors of Coopers & Lybrand figured that the value of the retained portion was $397,817, which would have given the Nixons a profit of $117,370 as a long-term capital gain.

Even with the higher evaluation, however, the Nixons had sufficient deductions to write it off and still would have not had to pay taxes, the figures show.

Nixon pointed out that the IRS audited his returns from 1971 and 1972 and found them to be in order.

Turning to another controversial subject, Nixon said some people erroneously believed that from $6 million to $10 million in government funds had been spent improving his homes in California.

"One myth breeds another, so many observers also believe that the government improvements have vastly enriched me personally," he said.

Actually, only $68,000 was spent on his home for security-related changes ordered by the Secret Service, he said. An additional $635,000 was spent on the grounds for other security purposes.

However, $6 million was spent to construct and maintain the Western White House office complex on adjacent government property. Nixon called this a "valuable national asset" which is used as a conference center for public and civic groups when not in use by the White House staff.

Do-it-yourself A-bomb? It's easy

NEW YORK (UPI) — Any reasonably intelligent person can build a nuclear bomb, claims physicist Theodore Taylor who helped design much of America's atomic arsenal.

With a do-it-yourself bomb guide drawn from publicly available federal government documents or local library, you can buy much of what you need from the hardware store and steal the rest—like radioactiive materials — from a nuclear facility, according to Taylor.

The homemade nuclear bomb is what Taylor has been warning the U.S. government about for years.

Taylor, 48, designed nuclear weapons at Los Alamos, N.M.— near where the world's first atomic bomb was exploded— from 1949-57, and has served as a consultant on nuclear physics for the federal government and private industry.

Taylor said in an interview and an article in the current issue of "The New Yorker" he first talked to the Atomic Energy Commission and government officials about homemade bombs in 1967, but was unable to convince anyone of the threat.

In the past few years he has tried to bring the problem to the public's attention "until pressure forces the AEC to stop pushing security under the rug."

According to Taylor, two things are needed to build a crude nuclear bomb: fissile (fissionable material) and know-how.

Enough know-how, he said, is available in declassified documents and standard reference works.

"The Encyclopedia Americana is very good, and so is the World Book," he said, "Los Alamos Primer No. 1, used to brief scientists in the 40s, costs $2.06 and is available from the Oakridge Technical Information Service."

Most other needed information, all but the "gory classified details," is catalogued in an annual publication, "Nuclear Science Abstracts," available in many libraries, he said.

"Anything else you need can be figured out from the declassified material and standard sources," he said.

Taylor said the only barrier to home construction of nuclear bombs is the availability of fissile material, plutonium or uranium. By 1978, energy demands should begin to cause dramatic increases in existing quantities of both, he said.

"All reactors either make or use plutonium or uranium," he said. "Fast breeder reactors make more plutonium than they use."

Excess radioactive material is a byproduct of nuclear power plants. Power plant authorities and other users of nuclear energy store the byproducts, usually in the form of impure compounds, saving it for eventual recycling.

The utility companies are holding off storing it, probably until 1978, when economics make it necessary to recycle, he said. Plutonium costs about $5,000 a pound.

"This means there are significant amounts of plutonium around right now, but there will be much more by 1978," he said.

The AEC stipulates the security precautions to be used in transferring and storing fissile material. But, said Taylor, the regulations are inadequate.

"The degree of protection is less than is typically given to money in vaults," he said, "We guard our money much better than we have guarded, are guarding or will guard our nuclear material."

New AEC regulations scheduled to go into effect this month require that users take precautions to prevent theft "short of a significant armed attack."

"Much more is needed," said Taylor, "the overwhelming majority of plant managers I talked to said they couldn't stop theft by a large group of professionals. We need more guards, fences, alarms and surveillance."

West End Demos plan Yule party

ONTARIO — The West End Democratic Club will hold its annual Christmas Party here Monday at the Mural House, 1850 E. Holt Avenue, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

The San Bernardino County Supervisor Ruben Ayala and Rialto City Councilman Ralph Carter, the two Democatic candidates in the Dec. 18 20th Senate District special election, will be the featured guests.

Christmas on parade in Pomona

Spending the night on the town with Dad could prove a little noisy, but this youngster appears to be enjoying his front row seat in the parade.

Chief Tom White Cloud lent a little Indian splendor to the parade in his Cheyenne costume.

Top prize to St. Joseph's

26,000 see Yule spectacular

POMONA — Unseasonably warm early evening weather Saturday drew an estimated 26,000 spectators to view Pomona's 21st annual Christmas parade along Holt Avenue.

Although the thermometer began dropping following the 6 p.m. start, the crowds held as "The Magic of Christmas" expressed in 116 units flowed by for two and half hours.

Traditional religious themes were depicted in winning float entries.

A first-place trophy and a check for $200 went to St. Joseph's Hill of Hope for its striking twin-bableau entry. Prceeded by a group of marchers forming a large cross, the float featured the birth of the Christ child at its front and the journey of Joseph and Mary to Bethlehem in its central portion.

Ganesha High School's train pulling a jack-in-the-box was thw winner of the second place award and First Church of the Nazarene took third place with it's elaborate manager scene.

In addition to the familiar marching bands, drill teams and equestrian units, there were plenty of celebrities on hand.

Los Angeles Angel's pitcher Bill Singer of Diamond Bar rode as grand marshal, with actress Ann B. Davis and Barry Williams, both of the "The Brady Bunch" TV show, division marshals.

Other marshals were The Scattergun Hill Gang, performing a raucous mass shoot-out, and Pam Lambine, currently Miss Pomona Valley.

Alta Loma High school captured the sweepstakes award in band competition and also won first place for its drill team.

Ganesha High School won first place in the high school band category, while Chino Junior High School was tops in the junior high division.

DRIFTWOOD DAIRY

A young spectator, top, is more interested in his candy apple than in watching Driftwood Dairy's float depicting a crew of pengins engaging in some wintry fun and games at left.

Mrs. Minnie C. Vance

POMONA — Mrs. Minnie C. Vance of 760 S. Elm St., died Thursday in Tahlequah, Okl.

Mrs. Vance was born Nov. 10, 1898 in Jewell, Kan. She had lived in the Pomona area since 1926. Mrs. Vance had been in Oklahoma for the past two years because of her health.

She is survived by three sons, Gerald C. of Tahlequah, Keith of Chino and Donald G. of Woodland; a daughter, Mrs. Dorthea Hartine of Albany, Ore.; a sister, Mrs. Betty Gavin of Ault, Colo.; 13 grandchildren and eight great grandchildren.

Services will be held Monday at 1:30 p.m. in Todd Memorial Chapel Pomona. Mr. Ford Carpenter, of the Church of Christ in Long Beach, will officiate. Burial will be made in Pomona Cemetery.

Mrs. Rose Ong

POMONA — Mrs. Rose Ong of 807 N. Gibbs Ave., died Thursday at her home.

Mrs. Ong was born Dec. 26, 1904 in Douglas, Ariz. She came to California in 1914 and lived in Imperial Valley before moving to Pomona in 1935. She was a member of the First Baptist Church, Pomona.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Jerry Randall of Montclair and Mrs. Jody Weaver of Lindsey, six grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Services will be held Monday at 11:30 a.m. in Todd Memorial Chapel Pomona. The Rev. Paul B. Ryan of the First Baptist Church will officiate. Entombment will be made in Pomona Mausoleum.

Mrs. S. Mary Pfister

POMONA — Mrs. S. Mary Pfister, wife of Edward J. Pfister, Sr., of 3727 Equation Road, died Friday in a local convalescent hospital.

Mrs. Pfister was born July 30, 1911 in Denver, Colo. She came to California in 1970 from Weirton, W.V. and had lived in Pomona for the past three years. She was a parishoner of Our Lady of the Assumption Catholic Church, Claremont.

Besides her husband, she is survived by two sons, Edward Jr. of Goldsboro, N.C. and John R. of Wellsburg, W.V.; a daughter, Mrs. Margery Zajicek of Pennsylvania Hills, Pa.; a brother, Vail S. Barker of Kansas City, Mo.; a sister, Mrs. Mildred Leslie of San Diego; and nine grandchildren.

Shipment is being made to Mingo Junction, Ohio, where services will be held in St. Agnes Catholic Church and burial will be made in the Mt. Calvary Cemetery in Steubenville, Ohio. Friends may call at Todd Memorial Chapel Pomona Monday from 2-4 p.m. and 7 and 9 p.m.

Registration on for bicycle trip across U.S.

ANAHEIM — Registration is now under way for persons interested in participating in the fourth annual See America Bike-A-Thon next year.

Deadline for registering is Dec. 15, and anyone wishing to participate should contact Dana J. Morrison here on or before that date at (714) 776-2266.

The Bike-a-Thon is sponsored by the See-the-Americas Bicycle Club, and is open to all age groups. The tour is tentatively scheduled to begin June 20, 1974, in San Diego and end in New York City 46 days later.

Each cyclist will be responsible for his own expenses.

GI pleads guilty to espionage

McGUIRE AFB, N.J. (UPI) — Sgt. James D. Wood Thursday pleaded guilty to three counts of espionage stemming from a meeting last July with a Russian diplomat where he passed highly sensitive military secrets.

The Tacoma, Wash., airman pleaded guilty to wrongfully taking classified documents, failing to protect classified material in his possession and wrongly and willingly attempting to deliver them to unauthorized persons.

He faces a maximum 10-year federal term. A life sentence which could have been imposed was dropped.

Wood, 35, who had been recommended for promotion to master sergeant and for a second Meritorious Service Medal before his arrest in July, was charged with passing classified military documents to Soviet diplomat Viktor Chernyshev, who was recalled by the Soviet Union after Wood's arrest at the request of the U.S. State Department.

Students to vie in hair styling

AZUSA — Imaginative headdresses with a holiday theme will be created by Citrus College cosmetology students during the 10th annual Fantasy Headdress Show Monday.

After final arrangements of headdresses at 6 p.m., a promenade of models and judging will follow at 7 p.m.

In addition to the sweepstakes trophy, first-, second- and third-place awards will be made for best interpretation of the "Happy Holidays" theme, most artistic, most original and unique use of hair.

The program, open to the public at no charge, will also include musical numbers and skits presented by the students.

BILLBOARDS CONDENSED — A traveler examines a map on a push-button electronic kiosk at a roadside rest area near Oceanside. The system condenses vast billboard displays into small advertisements.

By DONALD THORNTON

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The billboard, once the most prolific offspring of the vast California state highway system, may be on its way out.

Called a blight by its critics but a possibly true American art form by its proponents, the highway sign has been severely restricted in the past several years on federal, state and local levels.

But its slow disappearance on the more than 15,000-mile California system is leaving a big gap—especially for travelers in need of information about motorist services.

The California Department of Transportation in 1971 was directed by the legislature to establish a statewide motorists information system—based on something other than the billboard.

The department called for proposals and ideas from the business sector and has come up with what it thinks is a satisfactory replacement:

Push-button electronic kiosks tucked neatly into roadside rest areas and featuring advertisements for area traveler services.

"There'll always be some billboards," said Harry Kagen, right of way program director for the department. "But so many are coming down that there will be a real need for the motorist to find available services—where's the next service station, the next motel, the next restaurant?"

The electronic kiosk concept was developed by Carter Corp. of Costa Mesa, and one of its information centers has been in use about seven months at the Aliso Creek Roadside Rests on Interstate 5 just north of Oceanside.

The Carter kiosk, described as nearly vandal proof, has electronic equipment to accommodate 160 messages.

By activating any one of the 160 buttons, a viewer is shown his location in relation to the selected subject site. Also displayed are four color photographs of the subject, such as shots of a hotel or a restaurant menus. The motorist also will hear a 30 second message describing the service.

The Oceanside rest stop kiosks have proved so successful the state has called for similar proposals or other creative ideas on four other highways, Routes 5, 80, 10 and 15.

Linton L. Patton, transportation right of way agent, emphasized that the information centers result in "no expense to the state or the taxpayer."

Under the new motorists information plan, Patton said the state agrees to provide the space, parking, lighting, water and other basic necessities at rest areas. The selected firm provides its own facilities and services at its own cost.

"The company that is selected would then sell advertising space to businesses along the route and that revenue would go to the company and, depending on the expense incurred, a portion of it would be going to the state," Patton said.

The Carter center charges its advertisers about $35 a month, he added.

"I'm optimistic about the future and I think there's going to be more of this," Patton said.

The transportation department, he said, considered the information centers "as being something that would be very desirable if not essential for a traveler.

Navy's rent-a-ship venture costing too much

By KIM WILLENSON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U. S. Navy is going down to the sea in rented ships, and the General Accounting Office says it is a sweet little deal for almost everyone except Uncle Sam.

A GAO report on the inner financial workings of the Navy's venture into rent-a-ships, obtained Saturday by UPI, says the government will pay about twice as much to lease the vessels as it would if it bought them.

The report also says the Navy chose to rent the ships rather than buy because that was the only way it could get nine tankers it said it needs. Congress didn't think the ships were necessary.

The Navy does not dispute GAO's basic arithmetic, but it insists the deal also is sweet for Uncle Sam because two dollars spent tomorrow actually are worth less than one spent today.

Whatever the logic, details of the rent-a-ship transaction help illustrate why the Defense Department is regarded as a very good customer by the firms that sell to it.

The Navy got into the rental program in 1971 when, after several years, it gave up efforts to have Congress replace 14 aging "fleet oiler" tankers with nine modern, 25,000-ton vessels.

Despite the fact that they annually vote billions for new planes, carriers and missile submarines, neither the House nor the Senate Armed Services committees showed much interest in laying out $100-million for the tankers.

Someone in the Navy figured a way to run the blockade. Instead of buying ships, the Navy could lease them —as the big oil companies do.

It could hide the lease fees in its operations budget, approved by the appropriations rather than armed services committees, and charge off much of the expense to the Army and Air Force —as the cost of transporting fuel for those services.

Though government leases costing more than $500,000 traditionally need congressional approval, the law governing Navy transactions contained no such limit. Thus the GAO had to rule the transaction legal.

Armed with GAO approval, the Navy asked proposals on a ship "build and charter" deal. The Navy would guarantee a 20-year charter for vessels built with private money.

Marine Transport Lines of New York headed a syndicate that proposed the cheapest deal —nine ships for 20 years for $313 million. Marine and its partners, 14 banks, agreed to put up $40 million and sell $120 million in bonds to raise the total cost of building the vessels.

Actually, the charter fees cover only the cost of servicing the bonds —the borrowed $120 million at 7 ⅞ per cent for 20 years. That would seem to leave Marine and partners in the position of lending the other $40 million interest-free.

But the Navy compensated for that by getting a special tax break so the Marine group will be able to write off depreciation on the full, $160 million value of the ships against their own tax bills from other business. What's more, they will be able to do it in 12 years instead of 20.

The effect of this, says John Rinko, the GAO auditor who worked on the case, is that the government actually will be lending the Marine partners $72 million in unpaid tax money during the first 12 years of the contract.

Though eventually all of it will have to be paid back in the final eight years (in higher taxes when there are no writeoffs), the partners stand to gain $120 million in compound investment income on that money.

In addition, when the charter ends the partners still will own the ships, which will in two decades be worth an estimated $24 million. This would amount, the GAO estimates, to a total return of $144 million on a $40 million investment.

The Navy also wrote some special profit guarantees into the contract. If the ships are lost for any reason, tthe owners get back 122 per cent of the replacement cost.

So juicy was the deal that the partners hesitated just long enough to make sure the Navy had the legal right to engage the "full faith and credit" of the U. S. government before going ahead.

Although GAO ruled the

deal was legal, it was so disturbed by the details that it complained to both the Pentagon and Congress.

GAO said that the Navy will spend $178 million more in cash to lease the ships than it would to buy them outright.

It also noted that the Navy undertook the deal —obligating the full faith and credit of the U. S. government —without consulting Congress.

The Navy's response was to take the proposition to a House Armed Services subcommittee last spring — 1½ years after the project began.

The Navy told the subcommittee, headed by Rep. Charles E. Bennett, D-Fla., that it was not interested in the tax aspects of the rental, only in how much money would come out of its own budget.

On that basis, it said, the deal is cheaper than buying. When Bennett inquired how that was possible, Rear Adm. John D. Chase, explained it this way:

The value of the dollar declines every year, and if the government took the dollars and loaned them out, it also would collect interest. Between the two, the dollar depreciates by 10 per cent a year. This year's dollar is worth only 90 cents next year, 81 cents the year after, and so on.

Figuring that way, Chase said, the $313 million over the life of the contract was worth only $150 million in 1972 dollars. So, he contended, the government "saves" $10 million by spending $178 million.

Bennett turned to his counsel, George Norris.

"Do you understand it?" he asked.

"No, sir," Norris replied.

"My staff agrees with me in not being able to understand it," Bennett said.

The GAO does not understand it, either. Even if the Navy premise is accepted, the auditors say, the discount rate should be only 6 per cent. At that rate the government spends $20 million more in 1972 value —not $10 million less — regardless of taxes.

Ultimately Bennett and his committee agreed with the GAO and slapped the Navy on the wrist for having evaded the authority of Congress.

Chase's boss, Assistant Secretary of Defense Arthur Mendolia, apologized, and Bennett told the Navy that if it wanted to rent any more ships it should come back with a bill that would give the services specific authority to do so.

So far, however, "they've been stalling," says Norris. One reason may be the difficulty of explaining how the government saves $10 million by spending $178 million.

Meantime, the contract has been let and the ships are under construction. All nine are due to be completed by Dec. 7, 1974 —the 33rd anniversary of Pearl Harbor — and the U. S. Navy will officially be in the ship-rental business.

Solon rebukes Ash in dispute over legislation

WASHINGTON UPI) —Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., today gave Roy Ash, director of the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) a strong rebuke for his efforts in behalf of the administration's energy proposals.

Mansfield said he had heard Ash was taking an interest in legislation soon to come before the Senate —its own research and development energy measure which differs in many respects from the administration's proposal.

The Senate Democratic leader said Ash's interests appeared to be in restoring the administration proposals, but added "he seems to be interested in too much legislation for his own good."

The usually mild-mannered Mansfield said in Senate remarks, "We can take care of our own business in our own way. We do not need any advice from a functionary of the executive.

"They have no business up here intervening in our affairs."

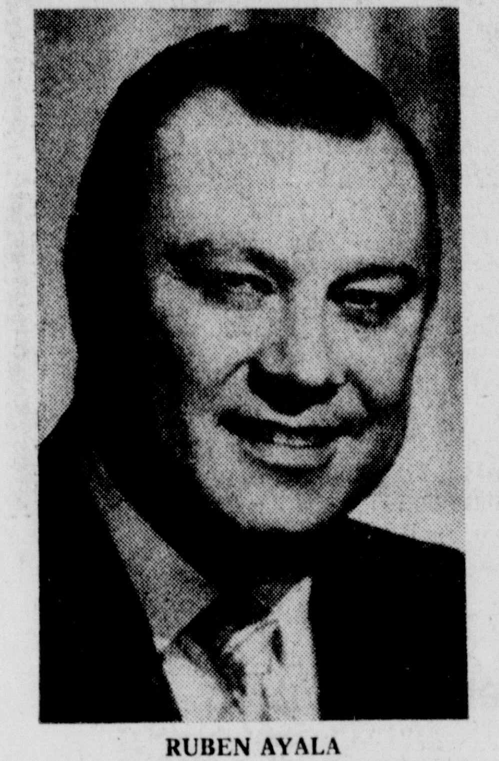
Race for state Senate seat in stretch

Election decides party control in state Senate, future incumbency



RUBEN AYALA

By PAUL HILL
P-B Staff Writer

In nine days, voters in the 20th state Senate District will go to the polls in a special election to select a new senator as their representative.

They will choose from among four candidates, all of whom see integrity as the main issue in the election.

Their ultimate decision will also have an impact on the Pomona Valley, since the winner will enjoy incumbency status in next year's general elections in the newly-reapportioned 32nd Senate District.

(Under the reapportionment, the 20th district—which consists of most of San Bernardino County with the exception of the Redlands-Yucaipa area—was carved into three new Senate districts. The 32nd district will include most of the City of San Bernardino and the Pomona Valley cities of Pomona, Ontario, Chino, Upland and Montclair.)

The candidates are Assemblyman Jerry Lewis; San Bernardino County Supervisor Ruben Ayala; Rialto City Councilman Ralph Carter; and Big Bear Businessman Robert Allenthorp.

Lewis and Allenthorp are Republicans, and Ayala and Carter are Democrats.

The election is being held to fill the Senate seat vacated Oct. 20 by William Combs, who took a job with the U.S. Treasury Department.

If none of the candidates win a majority (50 per cent) of the vote Dec. 18, a runoff election will be held Jan. 15 between the leading Republican and the leading Democrat.

In terms of voter registration, Democrats have an edge (116,223 to 80,620). However, only 25 to 35 per cent of the eligible voters are expected to turnout, and traditionally a small vote tends to favor Republican candidates.

Whether fallout from Watergate will have a significant effect on the voters is impossible to judge, but it obviously has had an impact on the candidates and their campaigns. Hence the issue of integrity.

Lewis and Ayala, who appear to be the leading candidates in the race, made public a list of their campaign contributors by name and amount last week.

Lewis has also promised full "mail disclosure," saying that he will provide the press with advance copies of his mailers which will be distributed to voters throughout the district.

Interestingly enough, in much of his campaign literature, Lewis does not mention that he is a member of the Republican Party. He has said repeatedly that voters in the 20th District do not vote along party lines, but make their decisions based on the candidate and his stand on the issues.

Some Democrats—including Ayala and Carter—feel Coombs' departure for Washington was hastily arranged when Republican leaders in Sacramento learned that the new reapportionment of the 32nd District would have a large Democratic voter registration (60 per cent).

The GOP hierarchy, the Democrats charge, feel that Lewis' chances in the new district will be better if he goes into the 1974 election as the incumbent.

Both Lewis and Coombs deny there was any such ploy, and Lewis claims that Coombs' unhappiness in the Legislature was so well known that his resignation should have come as no surprise to the Democrats.

With the 20th Senate position now unoccupied, the Democrats have a slim 20-19 edge in Senate seats.

Here is a brief profile on each candidate.

LEWIS

Lewis, 39, is an insurance man by profession. He was first elected to the Assembly in 1968 to represent the 73rd District, which covers a major part of San Bernardino County. He has lived in the county all of his life.

He is a confident man, and sure of his direction.

As a senator, Lewis feels he can be a "more effective" legislator because he does not believe there is as much partisanship in the Senate as in the Assembly.

City holds tight rein on horse-riding activity

I live in Pomona and board horses outside the city.

A few weeks ago I was stopped by a Humane Society officer who informed me that it is now illegal to ride horses within the Pomona city limits.

I feel that this law is a poor one. I have several children who need a healthy, time-consuming interest. Our horses and other animals provide this interest. If my children can not use the horses within Pomona, it is difficult to ride at all.

My parents and grandparents used horses for transportation in this area.

In this time of environmental concern it seems wrong to ban horses from the streets. Please inform me why this law was passed, whom it was passed by and how long it has been in effect. — M. Z., Pomona.

While your children's pastime has been harnessed by the Pomona City Council, it hasn't been eliminated.

About three years ago a city ordinance was passed prohibiting horses on sidewalks, paved portions of streets and landscaped portions of street.

This law was passed after horses had slipped on the pavement, causing injury both to themselves and their riders, says Larry Thomas, city clerk.

It doesn't apply to parades for which special permits are granted.

So all you have to do is to search out unpaved, unlandscaped road areas and sign up for every parade the city authorizes.

OPERATION SCHOOLWATCH BEGINS

'Operation Schoolwatch' turns eyes to vandals on Pomona campuses

By PHYLLIS CANNON
P-B Staff Writer

POMONA — Would-be vandals, beware!

Operation Schoolwatch begins today and this community's 80,000 residents are turning their eyes towards their schools.

This comprehensive plan to protect school property, triggered by heavy vandal losses—the most recent of which was the $25,000 Madison school fire—will not be relaxed until Jan. 2 when children return after the holidays.

During that three-week period, residents are urged to notify the police department of anything suspicious they see taking place on any school property in Pomona or North Diamond Bar.

Everyone in the community is being urged to take part in the watch.

Thousands of bumper stickers, pieces of literature and posters today are going onto automobiles, into homes and into display windows to bolster interest.

The stickers will go on the cars of all school district and city employes. Children have carried home literature detailing costs of vandalism committed just this year and in years past. Posters plead, "Please Don't Let Anyone Hurt Our Schools!"

Operation Schoolwatch has the endorsement of City Council. Conducted under the supervision of Douglas A. Robertson, the school district's community information officer, the program was approved at the Nov. 13 school board meeting.

A second phase of the watch will take place on Saturday, Dec. 15. Principals, parents, students and adult supporters, will canvas neighborhoods circling their schools soliciting cooperation.

Vandals in the past have inflicted costly destruction upon Pomona's schools.

During September, 62 incidents of vandalism were reported at the district's 31 schools. During October there were 92.

From 1968 to 1971, the district spent $60,000 on window glass. From 1971 to this year, $64,000 has been spent to repair the work of vandals, and this does not include damage caused by fire. Four acts of arson, prior to the Madison school fire, cost the district $92,000. These figures do not include insurance costs, theft and burglaries.

All costs are paid by the taxpayers.

So, anyone who sees something he regards as suspicious, is asked to dial 620-2155 and calmly tell the officer how many persons, of about what age, are where, doing what.

In Robertson's words, "If everyone helps we can stamp out vandalism in Pomona's schools. That is our goal."

Rain helped but . . .

Smog harmed W.E. crops

SAN BERNARDINO — Farmers in San Bernardino County last month were helped by rain but hurt by smog.

Unusual smog conditions from Nov. 8 to 10 inflicted light to moderate damage to leafy vegetable crops in the West End and Bloomington areas, said county agriculture officials.

These crops included leaf lettuce, endive, table beets and Swiss chard. The smog effects, however, were disappearing by the end of the month.

Early winter storms moved through the county, dropping from one to three inches of rain in scattered locations. The moisture aided development of citrus crops and dryland pastures.

The rain also helped growers conserve fuel that would have been necessary to operate pumps for irrigation, they added.

Prospects for the new orange crop remained poor, with estimates for navel oranges at less than 100 field boxes per acre.

Fruit growth, however, has been above normal with color now breaking under the influence of cool weather. Harvest isn't expected to start until mid-December as the crop is slow in reaching maturity standards, officials said.

On a positive note, grape growers experienced a good vintage year as picking is now completed. This was accompanied by good yields and good price returns, they added.

The picking of lemons will slow during December. Both domestic and export shipments increased as fruit became more available. As the new crop becomes more noticeable, it appears that the yield will be 15 boxes per acre over previous estimates of 205 boxes per acre, said officials.

Coordinating council airs juvenile diversion program

POMONA — Juvenile diversion projects will be discussed by three speakers at a meeting of the Pomona Community Coordinating Council Dec. 17, at noon at Orlando's Restaurant.

Speakers will be Clarence Webb, community relations coordinator and acting project director in Pomona; Saif Ullah of the Duarte Self-Help Clinic and acting project director for the Mid-San Gabriel Valley; and Mrs. Toby McManmon who is with the family counseling services in San Gabriel and project director for the West San Gabriel Valley.

They will tell how juvenile diversion projects function, their purposes and their potential benefits to a community.

Pomona recently submitted a proposal for a Pomona Valley Juvenile Diversion Project to the Los Angeles Criminal Justice Planning Board.

This project, which would serve Pomona, Claremont, La Verne, San Dimas and Walnut, has been recommended for funding.

Objectives of the program are to reduce the number of juveniles entering the criminal justice system and to increase the numbers diverted to positive programs of community agencies where behavior patterns of youthful offenders could be modified and energies channeled into constructive endeavors.

Reservations for the luncheon may be made by calling 622-1269 before Dec. 14.

Brown running caravan to poor Tijuana families

CHINO — Joe Brown, whose project to aid poor families in the Tijuana area is now in its 11th year, is planning another Christmas trip this week.

Some 100 persons will join in the 50-car caravan to bring food, clothing and Christmas gifts to 300 Mexican families.

The group will depart at 7 a.m. Saturday, Dec. 15, and return at about 5 p.m. the same day. Persons wishing to join the caravan should assemble at Brown's Missionary Center at 508 S. Euclid Ave. by 6:30 a.m.

Persons wishing to donate food, clothing or wrapped gifts and toys are asked to drop them off at the warehouse at 3669 E. Philadelphia St., Pomona, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesday.

Brown is also requesting donations of all types of food discount coupons. These are needed on a year-round basis to help purchase food ittems, said Brown.

Opinion

Is energy crunch really blessing?

This country is still shaking over the threatened energy crisis. Every segment of our national and personal life is touched and many within the church are trying to guess the impact upon the religious community in North America.

Will church attendance drop as the gasoline shortage intensifies? How will the large, sprawling sanctuaries and church buildings survive the fuel shortage? Will major urban congregations have to curtail program and activities? Perhaps none of this will come to pass. Yet denominational leaders and pastors must face the energy crunch along with their secular counterparts.

Some churchmen believe that the energy squeeze may have a large plus for the Christian community: the return to the neighborhood parish. The automobile has scattered Christians in every direction, many families driving five or six miles to attend a church that is completely removed from the demands and opportunities of their community. For years the neighborhood parish has suffered urban mobility, along with the population shifts. New people may discover not only the pleasure of walking to church, but the larger advantage of a clearly defined community that can face the problems and opportunities close at hand.

Keeping people at home — and that is certainly one of the ultimate effects of any gasoline shortage—may help families to rediscover the joy and fun of another era: togetherness. Right now most recreation seems to have a motor attached, turning wheels and making noise. Another form of exercise and recreation may emerge—walking and reading.

The early Christian Church did quite well in growth and influence through letter writing. The New Testament is mainly a collection of letters, shared and reread by Christians all over the Middle East and Asia Minor. This may be the hour for the recovery of Christian communication, through the written word.

Many within the religious community will secretly salute the energy crisis if It means fewer national meetings for the church. In the past several years, most religious groups have been meeting more and enjoying it less. The weight of bureaucratic proceedings, the staggering cost of hauling people all over the map, the frayed nerves and hasseling over every imaginable social-political issue, has hardly built up the life of the spirit.

A nice long pause in national meetings—or at most, very carefully planned and selected sessions—is not to be scorned. A movement is already afoot for more powerful local and regional control in the affairs of the church. The energy demands and the Arab shutdown may actually assist the Church in a rediscovery of mission and fellowship.

Reading, writing and Watergate

Watergate may have the impact of another Sputnik in the classroom.

Just as the launching of the first space satellite started a revolution in the teaching of science and mathematics, Watergate may precipitate a renewed effort to teach the values and the workings of the American system of government.

It could also become the most controversial subject in the schools since sex education.

In both cases, strong emotions and opinions are involved, and in both cases, many people are convinced that if everyone would just stop talking about the subject, it would quietly go away.

Watergate isn't going to go away, however. "There may have been a coverup in the government, but there can be no coverup in the classroom."

With these words, Rep. Margaret Heckler, R-Mass., kicked off a recent conference of educators in Scarborough, Me., on the subject: "The Educational Implications of Watergate."

"There is a crisis of confidence in government," Rep. Heckler told more than 130 New England teachers. "It is important for educators to face the questions of Watergate, to help renew faith in our country."

But how does a teacher present the facts about Watergate when so many Americans dispute what the "facts" are? How does a teacher teach the lessons of Watergate, whatever those lessons are, without running the risk of indoctrinating his or her students in a certain point of view — or incurring possible reprisal from outraged parents?

The educators could only agree that Watergate is an excellent device to interest students in the study of government, power and history. They disagreed about expressing their own opinions about the scandal.

Catherine Barrett, past president of the National Education Assn., touched on the heart of the problem:

"While we should present all points of view, we cannot be impartial in the end. Failure to choose a course is to choose one. Not to teach about this issue, and the democratic principles behind it, is, quite bluntly, to fail to teach and that is a betrayal of professional trust."

Campaign cash and pollution

WASHINGTON — There has been a lot of talk in Washington about keeping our rivers, lakes and beaches clean. Yet the law-and-order boys have shown a strange reluctance to enforce the laws against pollution. Sometimes, it seems that the flow of campaign cash more than the flow of pollutants determines whether the polluters are prosecuted.

We have just completed a detailed study of cases referred to the Justice Department by the Environmental Protection Agency in 1971-72. The agency used the old 1899 Refuse Act to restrain factories from fouling the waterways.

This hoary statute has not been replaced by a new law, but the pattern of prosecution hasn't improved.

The EPA asks Justice to prosecute only the worst polluters. They are given every chance to clean up their messes voluntarily. Only as a last resort are cases forwarded to the Justice Department.

Few trials

Yet a large percentage of these cases never reach the courts. Top EPA officials have told us, not for attribution, that it sometimes takes dynamite to blast a pollution case out of the pigeonholes of the prosecutors. Our own study shows that, of 168 pollution cases submitted for criminal prosecution, the Justice Department rejected 35 outright and sidetracked 34 more for one reason or another.

Almost invariably the companies with the most political clout seemed to go unpunished or to get off with light fines. We could not establish that campaign contributions resulted in overt intervention. But as one high official confided to us, "you just know who is to be prosecuted and who is not."

In October 1971, for example, the EPA referred a criminal case involving an oil spill on the Yazoo River in Mississippi. The spill had been caused by either Mobil or Pennzoil, said EPA, since both firms have facilities near the Yazoo. The U.S. attorney declined to prosecute because he lacked "evidence as to who caused the spill."

It may be merely a coincidence that Pennzoil's president, William Liedtke, was a fund raiser for the Nixon campaign last year. On one celebrated occasion, he stuffed $700,000 in cash and negotiable securities into a suitcase, sent it to Washington aboard a company plane and had it delivered in the dark of night to Nixon headquarters. No receipt was asked nor given.

Another time, the EPA asked Justice to file a civil suit against California Marine Packing for polluting the Los Angeles harbor with "fish processing wastes" which "resulted in fish kills." The U.S. Attorney declined.

Shadowy Nixon friend

The packing company, it develops, is a division of Westgate-California Corporation, whose board chairman is San Diego millionaire C. Arnholt Smith. The shadowy Smith is a personal friend of President Nixon and contributed $200,000 to the Nixon re-election effort. The donation was returned after the public learned Smith was under investigation by both the Internal Revenue Service and the Securities Exchange Commission.

Well over a year ago, the EPA wanted Justice to prosecute Getty Oil for dumping oil, grease, lead and chemicals into the Delaware River. The case, we have been informed, is tied up in "negotiation." The president of Getty Oil is billionaire J. Paul Getty; the record shows he contributed at least $75,000 to Nixon.

In June 1972, the EPA requested that suits be filed against Star-Kist Foods for discharging foul fish processing wastes into Los Angeles harbor. Prosecution was declined and the company agreed to work out an abatement program.

Star-Kist is a subsidiary of H.J. Heinz, whose officers gave Nixon over $60,000. The president of Star-Kist, Joseph Bogdanovich, contributed $30,000 out of his own pocket to Nixon.

Twice in 1971, Gulf Oil was accused of causing oil spills in the Houston ship channel. Criminal charges were finally filed in one case on January 5, 1973. There has been no legal action at all on the second spill. By another coincidence, Gulf Oil donated $100,000 to Nixon's campaign. The company later admitted the contribution was illegal and it was returned.

Met with EPA

In the course of our investigation, my associate Joseph Spear requested a meeting with Justice and EPA antipollution officials. He found eight officials waiting for him when he arrived for an appointment at EPA headquarters, overlooking the malodorous Potomac River.

One of them, Martin Green, chief of the Justice Department's pollution control section, insisted that politics plays no part in the decision whether to prosecute. "I assure you," he said, "that I here in this office do not know who donates what to whom."

The first aim of the Justice Department, he said, was to abate pollution rather than prosecute the polluters. Every effort is made, he said, to persuade a polluter to stop pouring gunk into the waterways. His willingness to cooperate determines whether he will be prosecuted. The final decision is made, he said, by the local U.S. attorney.

The big corporate bosses in many communities, EPA officials told us, have enormous influence with the local U.S. attorneys. Often, the pollution cases are dropped for the most frivolous reasons.

Failed to file

In at least eight cases, the federal attorneys simply failed to file suit before the deadline passed. Among corporations that got off the hook in this fashion were American Can, American Cyanamid, Georgia Pacific and four paper companies.

In February 1972, the EPA asked Justice to file suit against the Carnation Milk Company for dumping milk processing waste into Williams Creek in Mt. Vernon, Mo. The U.S. attorney declined prosecution because there was "insufficient evidence of discharge into navigable waters."

The Peabody Coal Co., in Columbia, Mo., was accused of dumping "coal mine acid wastes" into Hinksin Creek, a tributary of the Mississippi. The case was also dropped because the prosecutors claimed not to have sufficient proof that Hinksin Creek was navigable.

Now, weary EPA officials sometimes literally paddle their own canoes up creeks to prove the streams are "navigable." For it takes a full investigation to nail a big polluter.

Barbs

Considering all the criticism being aimed at the Administration in some quarters, perhaps they should change the name of the edifice to the "Why? House."

Minds are like parachutes — unless fully open, they do not function properly.

Gossip for today

In these troublesome times we are all too often overlooking the fact that in many ways this is still the best of all worlds.

For television pitchmen, the coming year holds the promise of a brand new sales opportunity — A doctor claims to have discovered a new vitamin.

Because of the fuel shortage the wood burning stove business is once again flourishing in the United States.

According to the results of a study recently released by three scientists, those who partake of alcohol may be doing themselves a favor. They should have fewer heart attacks the scientists say.

In the Los Angeles school district it has been found necessary to prohibit the use of school buses for field study trips but happily buses will still be available to transport the team to and from athletic events.

To cut down on the ever increasing cost of recreation, American inventive genius has come up with electronic golf balls that bleep when they are lost.

And right here in Pomona, to keep folks occupied and happy in spite of the gasoline shortage, our Parks and Recration Department is now sponsoring classes in belly dancing.

So what are we fretting about? After all, what more proof does one need that happy times are here again?

Valley men join races for state, U.S. seats

STATE ASSEMBLY

William McVittie, left, and Clyde Stephens have announced they'll seek election to the state Assembly from the 65th district, which serves a large portion of the Pomona Valley.

Salesman is first in line for Congress

POMONA — Carl Smith, a sales representative for Indisco, Inc., said he will seek the Democratic nomination in the newly-reapportioned 35th Congressional District.

Smith is the first person in either major party to declare his candidacy in the 35th District.

A resident of the Pomona Valley for the past 12 years, Smith is making his first bid for public office.

In declaring his candidacy, Smith called for more research and development of power sources with government support.

"We need the facilities and manpower now idle to resolve the energy crisis," Smith said in a prepared statement. "There is no greater crime than letting our resources go unused in this time of crisis."

Smith says he is a "middle class, non-politician," and feels he can better serve the people because "I live with your problems."

Smith has worked as deputy registrar of voters in Ontario, and was a member of the West End Democratic Club. He currently resides in Pomona.

The 35th Congressional District consists of the entire Pomona Valley with the exception of Diamond Bar, and the cities of Covina and West Covina.

Two more throw hats in 65th Assembly seat ring

Two more names were added to the 65th Assembly District race when Clyde R. Stephens and William McVittie announced their intentions to run for the office.

Stephens, a member of the Pomona Planning Commission, will seek the Republican nomination, which already has one announced candidate—Pete Vander Poel, a Chino businessman.

McVittie, meanwhile, becomes the first person to go after the Democratic nomination. He is presently serving as Chino's city attorney.

Under the newly adopted reapportionment, the 65th District includes the cities of Pomona, Ontario, Montclair, Chino, Upland and unincorporated areas of southwestern San Bernardino County.

"It is my contention that we've had enough of the high-powered, high-financed, machine-backed politician," said Stephens, who in the past has ran unsuccessfully for mayor and the City Council in Pomona. "In these times of crisis, this district needs a dedicated representative who will listen to his constituents and make their will known in Sacramento."

Stephens said some of the issues he will be discussing in the upcoming campaign are expansion of the Ontario International Airport, prison, welfare, tax reform, and the energy crisis with the proposed solutions.

He has been active in Republican circles in the area, and is employed at General Dynamics.

In announcing his candidacy, McVittie said he intends to run "an energetic campaign." He said "new blood is needed" in the state legislature.

"This requires creative leadership and a strong voice in Sacramento to establish realistic priorities in dealing with the problems of taxation, the rising cost of living, the energy crisis and responsible fiscal management," McVittie said.

A member of the California and Federal Bar Associations, McVittie has practiced law in the Chino area sisce 1965, serving as a tax attorney in the corporate tax staff of Kaiser Aluminum and Chemical Corp. before entering private practice.

TV producer shows films for MECHA

CLAREMONT — Jesus Trevino, producer of KCET's Accion Chicano program, will speak and show two of his films Tuesday at Oldenborg Center, Pomona College.

The program, which will start at 9 p.m., is open to the general public and is sponsored by the Claremont Colleges chapter of Movimiento Estudiantil Chicano de Aztlan (MECHA).

The two films are "Yo Soy Chicano," about the economic, political and social conditions of Mexican-Americans in the Southwest, and "Somos Uno," a dramatization about Mexican peasants and Chicano workers.

Apartment fire cause investigation opened

HACIENDA HEIGHTS — An investigation has been ordered to determine the cause of the fire Saturday which caused an estimated $24,000 damage to an apartment at the Cal-Temple Heights Apartments at 2401 Hacienda Blvd.

Arson was not suspected, firemen said.

The second-floor apartment, occupied by Francis McCall, sustained $20,000 structural damage, and $4,000 loss of contents.

Firemen arrived at 2:02 a.m. to find the apartment hallway burning. They reported heat and smoke damage throughout the second floor.

There were unconfirmed reports of two persons jumping from second-floor apartments during the fire, but there were no reports of anyone being injured, firemen said.

Arson said source of repeated house fire

SAN DIMAS — County fireman said a flamable liquid was used to start four separate firest which burned down the vacant house at 312 Silton Ave.

Loss was estimated at $12,000. The house was owned by Elijah Brown of Pomona.

Firemen received their first call to the house at 9:06 p.m. Friday. They put out three small fires, one in a closet and two in carpeting in two separate rooms. Damage was estimated at $75.

Then a second call came in at the same address at 1:26 a.m. Saturday. Firemen arrived to find the house fully involved in flames.

Capt. Bill Slead supervised men from Station 64 who had the fire out by 2 a.m. and remained on the scene another hour spraying water on debris.

An arson investigation is underway.

Small kitchen fire damages city apartment

POMONA — A small fire in the kitchen of a Pomona apartment caused about $1,800 damage Friday evening, but resulted in no injuries.

According to officials, the fire broke out about 7 p.m. in the ground-floor apartment at 2380 Angela St. The occupants of the apartment were not at home.

Most of the damage was due to heavy smoke. The cause of the fire was not immediately known and is under investigation.

Hawkins Co. adds to staff

POMONA — Maurice Carpenter and Lynne Renchard of Upland have joined the sales staff of Herbert Hawkins Realtors.

Carpenter has been active in Pomona area real estate for the past five years, while Miss Renchard is a former Los Angeles County social worker.

Special state Senate election . . .

"The Assembly is a considerably different house than the Senate," Lewis said. "In the Assembly, there is a great deal of concentration on partisanship, and frankly I'm not that comfortable with that process.

"In the Senate, I believe I'll be able to address myself to the issues in a different fashion than in a highly partisan House."

Lewis believes the district must have a "continuity of leadership" to face future problems brought on by population and economic growth, and that he can provide it with his experience in the Legislature.

As of Nov. 29, Lewis had received $56,827.50 in campaign contributions. Of that amount, a dozen contributors had made contributions of more than $500.

AYALA

Like Lewis, Ruben Ayala is an insuance man by profession. He is 50 years old and a native of Chino, where he first started in public office as a member of the school board.

Since then, he has served on the City Council, as mayor, and for the past seven years as a member of the County Board of Supervisors.

Ayala believes his lengthy experience in local and regional government make him more aware of the needs of his constituents.

"In order to represent the local people more effectively, I think there should be someone who has served in the local level of government," Ayala said.

"I would venture to say that many, many of these legislators have very little knowledge of how local government works. This is no reflection on their ability to perform, but they should understand how some of these bills or legislation will affect local government.

Ayala predicts the election will be decided in the city of San Bernardino, reasoning that Lewis will control the rural eastern part of the county and he taking the urban western section.

Unlike Lewis, Ayala does not appear to have his chief opponent's strong financial support. He has listed contributions totalling only $5,989.37, of which $2,000 came from Herb Hafif's gubernatorial campaign fund.

CARTER

If there is a darkhorse candidate in the race, Ralph Carter is it. Although he is well known in Democratic Party circles, he does not have the wide-ranging public exposure of either Lewis or Ayala.

He has secured the endorsements of the California Teachers Association, the United Steelworkers, and state Sen. George Moscone, a Democratic gubernatorial candidate.

Carter, 50, entered the Senate race because "we need a breath of fresh air in politics." He said that he has "no skeletons in the closet," and is not tied to any special interest groups.

He teaches at San Gorgonic High School, and has been on the Rialto City Council since 1970.

He is also a member of the San Bernardino County Democratic Committee, and has been a resident of the county for 26 years.

ALLENTHORP

The fourth candidate, Robert Allenthorp, describes himself as "the voice of the little people. I represent the small people in helping them 'tote that barge' and 'lift that bale'."

He has based his campaign on the need for tax relief for the homeowner. The plan, which has been in the making for 10 years, would roll back the market value on houses for tax assessment purposes only, he said.

Recently, questions have been raised about Allenthorp's official residency. He now lists his home as Big Bear, but as late as March 1973, court records show his residence was Riverside County, a newspaper reported.

Allenthorp said Friday that Big Bear is his legal residence, and that he will continue in the race.

Accion para proteger nuestras escuelas

POMONA — En reciente anos cuatro actos de incendio premeditado en el Distrito Escolar Unido de Pomona han agotado mas de $90,000 del presupuesto.

Solamente en tres anos — 1968 a 1971 — $60,000 se gastaron para restaurar ventanas quebradas, y otros $64,000 fueron tomados del program educacional solamente en dos anos — 1972 a 1973 — para reponer el dano causado por los vandalos.

"Movimiento Para Proteger Nuestras Escuelas" se llevara a cabo del 9 de Diciembere al 3 de Enero cubriendo el periodo cuando las escuelas estan cerrados por las vacaciones de Navidad.

Miles de rotulos de parachoques, cienes de cartelones y banderas en las calles mostraran a los vandalos que estamos protegiendo nuestras escuelas, y que llamaremos a la policia a cualquier tiempo que veamos a alguien escondiendose cerca de nuestras escuelas.

Al ver una persona sospechosa cerca de la escuela, se le pide que llame al agente de policia al numero 620-2155 y oficiales de seguridad de la escuela o policias investigaran.

Navidad es el tiempo para Posadas

En Mexico las fiestas de Navidad son del 16 de Diciembre al 6 de Enero. Cada familia espera con anticipacion las Posadas que se tienen cada noche por nueve dias antes de la Navidad.

Los miembros de familia tienen las Posadas en memoria de Maria y Jose buscando posada en la primer Noche Buena. Forman una procesion de cuarto a cuarto o de casa en casa, al frente van dos ninos con las figuras de Maria y Jose en sus manos. A la puerta de cada cuarto o casa, los ninos piden posada pero son rehusados.

Cuando llegan al cuarto o casa que contiene el altar, los viajeros son admitidos. Ponen la figura de Maria y Jose en el pesebre. No ponen la figura del Nino Jesus hasta la Noche Buena, la ultima noche de las Posadas.

Cada Posada termina con una fiesta. El hospedero invita a todos a su casa para la fiest y Pinata. La Pinata esta hecha de papel o un jarro casi siempre en figura de animal.

Esta esta llena de jugetes y dulces para los ninos. La cuelgan del techo o de un arbol. Se les vendan los ojos a los ninos y toman su turno para quebrar la pinata con un palo. Cuando se quiebra la pinata, los jugetes y dulces caen al suelo y los ninos corren a recogerlos.

'Operacion Navidad'

"Operacion Navidad" es la celebracion del nacimiento de JesuCristo. Es un concepto tradicional y cultural como las "posadas" y "La Misa de Gallo." "Operacion Navidad" es un esfuerzo total de la comunidad de los barrios, familias y personas interesadas. Esta actividad no se concierne solamente con dar jugetes sino en la creencia actual de la frase biblica que "es mejor dar que recibir."

"Operacion Navidad" da la oportunidad a nuestros chicanitos de participar contribuyendo sus talentos, ayudando a entregar, envolviendo paquetes y ver que sus padres tambien participen. "Operacion Navidad" es lo que la Navidad deberia de ser; lo que era antes.

"Operacion Navidad" da la oportunidad al espectador de television de ver el talento de los barrios, de ver nuestro mundo, el mundo de nuestros ninos. Este programa sera transmitido por television por varias horas.

"Operacion Navidad" tendra lugar el 9 de diciembre de 1973 de las 12:00 p.m. a las 6:00 p.m. en el canal 34. Para mas informacion, communiquese con Mexican-American Community Relations llamando al telefono 629-1633.

Informacion para los consumidores

SACRAMENTO — John T. Kehoe, director del Departamento de "Consumer Affairs" en California, anuncia que el Centro de Informacion para el consumidor, ha puesto a la disposicion del publico un indice de publicaciones escritas en espanol.

El indice, "Informacion para el Consumido," tiene una lista de mas de 60 folletos, que son gratuitos o baratos.

Estos folletos fueron desarrollados por 16 agencias Federales. Previo a esta nueva indice ser disponible en espanol, las publicaciones Federales estaban apuntadas en las ediciones del indice de Informacion para el consumidor, escritas en Ingles.

La mayoria de los folletos explican como comprar, usar y cuidar diferentes productos. Los otros cubren una variedad de topicos como salud, proteccion y seguridad, presupuestos y cuidados del nino.

Algunos de los folletos descritos en el indice le da informacion de como comprar y cuidar la bateria de su carro, informacion acerca de los prestamos de dinero, acerca de los pagos a plazos cuando compra algo y la cantidad de porcentage annual.

El indice lo puede conseguir gratis en el Centro de Informacion ubicado en Sacramento, San Francisco, Los Angeles y San Diego. Para obtener copias individuales del indice, mande un sobre con su direccion y una estampilla a: Spanish Index, Box 310, Sacramento, Calif. 95802.

Cantidades en bulto de 25 copias o mas de "Informacion para el Consumidor" pueden ser obtenidos gratis por profesores y organizaciones privadas que trabajan con consumidores de habla espanola. Pueden pedirlos a: Consumer Information, Pueblo, Colo., 81009.

Mom leads living Yule tree program

LITTLETON, Colo. (UPI) — One of Mrs. Jackie Lembke's greatest delights is simply to walk around her yard in suburban Littleton pointing out to friends the evergreens she and her family have planted.

"In our yard, there is nothing sweeter than to go around and look at the trees and remember the times when they were planted," the mother of three said. "We have five trees now, for five Christmases. With a little bit of luck, we will have a lot more."

Mrs. Lemke is head of the environmental group called Provide for People which wants homeowners across the nation to celebrate Christmas in a different way. They want people to buy living, growing Christmas trees—not trees that have been cut—and then replant them when they have served their holiday decorative purpose.

"There is no more wonderful way to celebrate Christmas," Mrs. Lembke says. "I have three fine sons and they're all enthusiastic about it. They help decorate the tree and then after Christmas, plant it."

Mrs. Lembke, whose group kicked off a nationwide campaign on Thanksgiving Day, said she has been working for three years now to convince people to buy living trees. She thinks the idea is spreading.

"Good Support"

"We were very effective last year," she said. "The first year there were over 1,000 live trees planted in Colorado alone and last year it jumped to 7,000. And we've heard that there has been a lot of good support across the nation."

Mrs. Lembke said she found it amazing the number of people who have jumped on the bandwagon to support the idea.

"It seems like an idea whose time has come," she said. "All you have to do is mention it to people and they either latch onto it and say this is a great idea or else they poo-hoo the idea and just forget it."

Mrs. Lembke said she can't accept the argument that the task is too difficult and that most of the trees planted in wintertime will die.

"We say if you get a dead tree, you know it's dead," she said. "But at least this way you take a chance. Even if only 50 per cent of the trees that are planted live, that's 50 per cent more live trees than we had to start off with."

How To Do It

Mrs. Lembke provides a few hints for persons buying living trees. They should never be kept in the home for more than 10 days, keep the roots moist and then leave the tree in the garage for a couple of days to get it used to the shock of moving outdoors.

"Keep your dirt in the garage, too, or some other protected area so it won't shock the roots at the time you transplant it," she said.

Mrs. Lembke, who has been sidelined much of the past year as the result of injuries suffered when struck by a car, said she felt her group was instrumental in the decision this year by the White House to have a living national Christmas tree. Her organization set up a cry last year when a tree was cut in Wyoming and then shipped to the White House as the national tree.

Originator unknown

Mrs. Lembke said the originator of the live Christmas tree program was a woman whose name she doesn't even know. She heard the elderly woman speaking to a councilman at a political meeting and telling him how nice it would be to have evergreens up and down the main street in Littleton.

Mrs. Lembke told her organization about it and the members decided to take it on as a project.

"The first year we tried to find her," Mrs. Lembke said. "She never did step forward, so I don't know whether she died or if she just hasn't become aware. But it was really she who was the originator of this."

Erma Bombeck

You know what the most beautiful word in the English language is? Preassembled.

Few things come that way anymore. In fact, the only two I can think of are babies and sweet potatoes.

For the past two weeks I've been holed up in the hall closet (we have no basement) putting together a lawn sweeper for my husband for Christmas.

I should have become suspicious when the truck from the department store pulled up and slid an envelop the size of Good Housekeeping magazine inside my storm door marked, Lawn Sweeper. This Side Up.

Naturally I called the store. "I don't wish to complain" I said, "but I am not a mechanical person. Let me put it another way. I iron in a fetal position because I cannot figure out how the ironing board locks itself into place."

The store manager laughed. "Surely you do not think a store has the space to keep 19 fully assembled lawn sweepers in stock. Actually, there is nothing to it. The directions are simple enough to be assembled by anyone who can read."

He was right. Anyone who could read Japanese fluently could have put the thing together in ten minutes because that's what the instructions were written in.

As I sat under the naked bulb in the closet, I read and reread the directions. Finally, I yelled out the door to my son, "What does TORA! TORA! TORA! mean?"

"I don't think you should try to put it together by yourself," he warned.

"Why?"

"Because you and Dad put a tricycle together for me once and I was the only kid on the block with pedals under the seat."

I snatched him into the closet and shut the door. "I need your help. Now, if you were wing nut E, where would you hide?"

The two of us worked halfway through the night; he, trying to attach the brush to the handle, and me trying to put together a wheel. Finally, it was finished. We cracked the closet door to make sure no one was about for the unveiling. Then we started to wheel it out. It stopped stubbornly at the door frame. No way could that lawn sweeper fit through the door.

"What are you going to do?" asked my son. "Take it apart and start all over again?"

"Are you crazy?" I snapped. "Tomorrow I'm putting in a lawn and planting a maple tree in the hall closet!"

Skylab 3 gets first-day covers

To commemorate the final Skylab mission, the Space City Cover Society is offering a matching set of four commemorative covers.

The set will have one each for (1) Crew launch, (2) Docking with workshop, (3) Undocking and (4) Splashdown.

As in the other sets of Skylab covers issued by the space organization, this set will have cancels made at the Houston (Tex.) Post Office on the proper dates. And not only will the Houston Post Office cancel appear on each cover, but each will also have the NASA Local Post label and commemorative cancel.

In addition to the covers, the SCCS will make available to collectors the souvenir sheets of the NASA Local Post labels. The set will consist of two different sheets, printed in bicolor, perforated, and with marginal inscriptions.

The covers are priced at $2.50 per set of four, and the souvenir sheets are priced at $1.00 per set. Orders should be sent to Space City Cover Society, P.O. Box 53545, Houston, Tex. 77052 and should be accompanied by a 25 cent postage and handling charge. An addressed gummed label would be appreciated.

Carrier pigeons, a postman and various mechanical means of transporting the mails are featured on three commemoratives that Surinam will issue on December 12, to marke the 100th anniversary of her first postage stamps.

The values and designs are: 15 cents — (printed in green and blue) — two carrier pigeons with letters; 25 cents (pink, blue, grey and black) — postman carrying letter; 30 cents (blue, red, green and black) — outline map of Surinam with a plane, truck, ship and train shown in silhouette.

In addition to the country name and value, each stamp has the text: "100 Jaar Surinaamse Postzegls" (100 Years of Surinam Postage Stamps.) Mint sets may be ordered at face from the Netherlands Post Office Philatelic Service, Prinses Beatrixlaan, The Hague, The Netherlands.

Because of present monetary situation, information on the dollar value of the set (which is Dfl.1.26) may be obtained from local post offices.

On December 5 Luxembourg released a set of five semi-postals as their 1973 Caritas stamps, featuring like the 1972 stamps, scenes of the Nativity.

The series comprises the following values: 1 franc, 25 cents — Joachim and St. Anne, parents of the Virgin; 3 F 25 c — Mary meets Elisabeth under gilt porch; 4 F 50 c — One of three Magi near the Holy Virgin with Jesus; 8 F plus 1 F — Shepherds at the manger; 15 F plus 7 F — St. Joseph holding a light to little Jesus.

James A. Mackay, former Keeper of Stamps at the British Museum, author of many articles and books on various aspects of Philately, is the author of "The Dictionary of Stamps in Color" which would make a desirable holiday present for any stamp collector.

It is actually a short history of philately, illustrated with over 3000 stamps from every country that has ever issued stamps in 296 pages with a 5-page index, with all stamps in full color.

Every stamp shown is described with some background information and the book is, therefore, not only educational and informative, but also entertaining. The price is $19.95, but orders placed by December 31 will be filled at the pre-publication price of only $17.50. Order from Macmillan Publishing Co., Inc., 866-D Third Ave., N.Y. City 10022.

Collectors of covers may want to start 1974 right by joining the national American First Day Cover Society, the first international society devoted to first day cover collecting, both U.S. and foreign. Membership includes "First Days," a bi-monthly publication. Dues are $5 per year.

Applications should be sent to Elizabeth Bayless, 112-D S. Symington Ave., Catonsville, Md. 21228.

Another society devoted to the collecting of covers is the Universal Philatelic Cover Society, Donald D. Lawton, P.O. Box 505-D, Ferndale, CA 95536. Write for information.

Stamps Information Associates, Inc., 675 Massachusetts Ave., Cambridge, MA 02139, will hold a Mail Sale on December 17. Offered are world-wide stamps, covers, and philatelic literature.

Energy crisis to have effect on 'blue laws'

ATLANTA (UPI) — One side effect of the energy crisis may be a cease-fire in the war to liberalize "blue laws" in Georgia.

It is not likely, capitol sources said, that any new moves will be started to liberalize the Sunday closing laws, which some consider archaic. It also was doubtful the House and Senate would want to open up more Sunday business, especially now that most gas stations are closed on that day by presidential request.

Lt. Gov. Lester Maddox said he wanted all discount stores and many other businesses closed on Sunday during the energy crisis.

America and the future of man

As human rights expand, society's security rocks

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the 11th of 20 essays by leading men in the world's academic community. The writer of this essay is the Richard Clarke Cabot professor of social ethics at Harvard University. Herein he discusses the impact of change on cultural patterns and values.)

By HERBERT KELMAN

Copyright, 1973, Regents of the University of California

The concept of individual rights is central to a democratic society. Yet a society's definition of individual rights is never static. Moreover, at any given time, the application of the principles that govern individual rights is usually imperfect.

Throughout American history, we can observe organized efforts to close the gap between principle and practice — to broaden the definition of individual rights and to extend such rights to segments of the population, to institutional contexts and to areas of life in which they had not been firmly established in the past.

One of the marked changes in mood that has characterized American society in recent years is that these efforts have become increasingly vigorous and widespread. More and more groups within the population are insisting on rights that they feel have been systematically denied to them.

Groups that have long been struggling for their rights have become more militant. Groups that have in the past accepted curtailments of their right have begun to challenge these restrictions.

Increasing numbers of individuals are now claiming rights that were only dimly recognized in the past.

Across wide segments of the society, there is less willingness to accept second-class status, restrictions on personal freedoms, and violations of personal interests.

We can identify three distinct — though clearly related — ways in which this heightened insistence on individual rights manifests itself in our society.

—1 There are some segments of our population — notably blacks and other non-white minorities — that have been systematically excluded for generations from effective participation in the society.

They have been locked into a self-perpetuating pattern of poverty, substandard living conditions, inadequate education, lack of skills and unequal protection of the law, all mutually reinforcing one another.

Their efforts to break out of this vicious cycle have been frustrated by subtle and not-so-subtle biases that have denied them access to educational opportunities, to jobs, to unions, to housing, to loans — in short, to all potential points of entry into the system.

Members of these groups have now gone beyond the earlier civil rights movement in insisting that their right to full participation in the society implies not merely the removal of legal barriers, but active affirmative efforts to open up opportunities to them and to assure that they will be in a position to take advantage of these opportunities.

Moreover, they are insisting on the right to their own identity — the right to be included in the system on their terms, without having to adopt the values, life-styles and other cultural trappings of the white middle-class majority.

—2 Apart from ethnic minorities, various groups in our society have been deprived, as a matter of public policy, of certain rights and opportunities available to the average citizen. These groups are characterized by some variety and degree of dependence, deviance or captivity

Among such groups one might include minors, senior citizens, homosexuals, welfare recipients, mental patients, prison inmates, enlisted men in the armed forces and women.

Although women constitute more than half of the population and enjoy some power within our society, law and tradition define them as "dependents" and restrict their exercise of certain important rights — such as the right to make contracts, to pursue desired careers and to control their own bodies.

The rationale for restricting members of these groups in the exercise of some of their rights has been either that they are incapable of exercising these rights, so that it would be in their own and in society's interest to impose restrictions; or that they have forfeited their rights by their own actions; or that they are living in institutional settings in which the public interest and safety demand the curtailment of certain individual rights.

Widely-shared assumptions which have long supported these restrictions are now being challenged, both by members of these groups themselves and by professional and action groups that identify with their cause.

—3 Individual rights have always been subject to certain limitations for all groups in the society, not just those groups that have been singled out for discriminatory treatment.

Thus, the right to refuse military service, to engage in certain forms of protest, to practice birth control or to establish a household with unmarried partners — to mention just a few examples — has been severely restricted through a combination of law and custom.

With some exceptions, people have in the past accepted the right of society and its duly constituted authorities to impose these limitations on them.

In recent years many of these traditional restrictions are increasingly being challenged, most often by the well-established upper middle class but with growing frequency by other elements of society. More individuals are now insisting on constitutional rights that in the past were only rarely claimed.

For example, the marked increase in the number of conscientious objectors during the Vietnam War and in efforts to broaden the legal definition of conscientious objection (to include selective objection to a particular war) suggests a greater insistence on the individual's right to evaluate for himself the adequacy of the reasons for which authorities order him to kill and die.

Furthermore, there has been a tendency to push the limits of certain rights that have always been recognized but interpreted more narrowly.

For example, individuals are insisting that the right of dissent extends to dramatic forms of protest or that the right of privacy extends to unorthodox life-styles, even though many people may find the exercise of these rights offensive or objectionable.

Finally, citizens are increasingly claiming new rights that have not been explicitly recognized before: Witness the growth of citizen lobbies, of the consumer rights movement, and of the ecology movement. While these are largely middle-class issues, the increasing emphasis of young blue-collar workers on the right to meaningful work suggests that the push toward a broader definition of human rights suffuses our entire society.

These various manifestations of a heightened insistence on individual rights in our society are part of a worldwide process that can be traced to many sources.

The diffusion of a democratic ideology and its associated principle of national self-determination have spurred on the movements for political independence and social reform throughout the old colonial empires; the emergence of Africa and the rest of the Third World, in turn, has strengthened the sense of ethnic identity and the struggle for equal rights among Black Americans.

Industrialization, along with the growth of science and technology, has encouraged efforts to extend individual rights, both by fostering attitudes of rationality and pragmatism capable of challenging traditional patterns, and by broadening the range of possible living conditions to which people could aspire.

Urbanization has not only undermined traditional authority relationships but has also created some of the conditions for political organizing and for mobilizing disaffected groups to take collective action.

The mass media have greatly accelerated the dissemination of information, both about living conditions that prevail elsewhere, thus raising people's levels of aspiration, and about collective actions that have been taken elsewhere, thus inviting imitation.

Whatever their sources, the different manifestations of the movement for individual rights have certain important common features. A basic feature is the unwillingness of people to accept any longer the status to which they have been assigned. Changes in self-attitudes—development of group pride, openness about deviant life-styles or political preferences, refusal to be apologetic or subservient about one's claims—reinforce unwillingness to accept restrictions.

A second and closely related feature of the new movements is their challenge to established authority.

Yet, wide segments of the population—especially but not exclusively among the working class and the lower middle class—feel profoundly threatened by these manifestations of change. They see them as concrete threats to their own economic positions and mobility aspirations, as attacks on important symbols of order and authority, and as disruptions of the traditional relationship between citizen and authorities.

By and large, members of these groups are integrated in the American system but their hold on the system is tenuous; to maintain it, they feel obligated to do what the authorities expect of them. Their sense of security basically rests on the knowledge that they are playing by the rules.

Any change in the rules and expectations is, therefore, particularly threatening to them since it disturbs the basis of their integration in the society.

Essentially, the new insistence on individual rights represents a call for a redefinition of the bases of legitimacy in the society. Various groups are refusing to accept the legitimacy of the leadership until the system adequately represents their interests and includes them in the process of defining national goals and deciding on their means of implementation.

The new movements represent, in my view, constructive and exciting steps in the direction of a society that is more open, more just and more free.

They call for a system that is responsive to the needs of all segments of the population, that offers maximal opportunity for self-fulfillment to all of its members and that gives each individual the right and the responsibility to assess official actions in terms of their consistency with basic societal values.

Without a sensitive understanding of what the heightened insistence on individual rights means to these segments of our society, the efforts at change are unlikely to succeed, nor would they be conducive to the highest degree of justice.

The changes implied in extending individual rights are not designed to do away with authority—without which, in my opinion, no organized social system could survive—but to question long-established authority patterns that are no longer consistent with democratic values as they have historically evolved and to build the habit of questioning authority into the political process.

In the long run, such changes would strengthen the legitimacy and the integrity of the system, by making it more congruent with its underlying values and deepening the public support for it.

(Next Sunday: The late Professor Herbert Packer, Jackson Eli Reynolds professor of law, Stanford University.)

Villages share same name but refuse change

FLIXTON, England (UPI) — Villagers in two villages called Flixton must decide which of their towns keeps the name and which will be called something else, the British government has ruled.

But nobody in the hamlets only 20 miles apart wants to budge.

In Flixton near Lowesoft (pop. 54) Council Chairman Patrick Paul said "some faceless bureaucrat has decided it will be complicated to have two Flixtons in the new borough of Waveney."

Over in the other Flixton (pop. 51) postmistress Jutta Peterson said, "the ministry will face great resistance if they try to change us. Although we have had a few wrongly addresses letters and parcels, there is not much confusion over the names.

Nicaraguan dictator wasn't a deadbeat

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Nicaraguan dictator Anastasio Somoza is no deadbeat.

Last Friday, his party of nine, accompanied by two dozen U. S. security agents, paid a surprise visit to the Condor nightclub to watch famed topless-bottomless dancer Carol Doda perform.

The management picked up the tab and nobody left a tip.

Somoza apologized recently and said "the Secret Service people told me 'everything was taken care of'." He promised to send $100 in tips to the club.

Williams-Finley dilemma haunts A.L.

HOUSTON (UPI) — The San Diego Padres were sent East, but Dick Williams was not.

Ron Santo said he wanted to stay in Chicago, but Willie Davis and Claude Osteen said they did not mind moving to Montreal and Houston.

Major league umpires were given a new weapon to combat the spitball and were told to use it, and the ball clubs were told to look into the use of commercial air travel.

Those actions, and in one case inaction, highlighted the week-long winter meetings of baseball's heirarchy which ended Friday night.

Baseball officials came to Houston with two major problems to solve —one in each league.

The National League solved its difficulty by sending the San Diego franchise to Washington, returning the nation's capital to baseball following a two-year absence. Legal entanglements, however, threaten to follow the league's decision for months to come.

The American League bosses left Houston without having come close to ending the controversy over Dick Williams.

"The whole thing could be settled while walking across the courtyard," said American League President Joe Cronin, in about as close to a tone of disgust as he can achieve.

In a two-hour meeting at midweek Cronin could not bring a compromise between blustery Oakland owner Charles Finley and New York Yankees President Gabe Paul in Paul's attempt to hire Williams as his manager for next season. Williams' Oakland contract has two years to run. Finley asked for two specific Yankee players as compensation for Williams' potential move to New York, but Paul balked.

For two more days all parties concerned still were within a few hundred feet of each other, but no further attempt was made to settle the issue.

Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn said he thought Cronin would work things out before Cronin retires Jan. 1, but Cronin did not seem as positive and before leaving town Finley said he did not think Cronin had any right to interfere.

The city of San Diego, however, plans to interfere with the move of its franchise to Washington.

San Diego City Attorney John Witt already has filed a $12 million breach of contract suit against the National League (the Padres had 15 years to run on a 20-year lease on San Diego Stadium) and after the move of the club was announced Thursday he indicated an anti-trust suit would be filed as well.

As President Nixon was sending a congratulatory telegram to Washington owner Joseph Danzansky, Witt was saying:

"I'm as confident as I can be in an anti-trust suit we will file against the National League. I was shocked when I heard of the league's action."

With all of that going on, trading action was overshadowed.

The Dodgers were involved in the two biggest trades. Osteen went to the Houston Astros for centerfielder Jim Wynn and Davis was sent to the Montreal Expos for ace reliever Mike Marshall.

Both Osteen and Davis had enough seniority (it takes 10 years in the majors, including the last five with the same club) to veto the deals if they wanted to, but neither did.

However, Ron Santo, who has been with the Chicago Cubs since 1960, rejected all trades proposed to him during the meetings. A final attempt to talk Santo into a move as late as Friday night fell through, although Santo said he would be willing to move across town to the White Sox.

There were 25 trades made during the week for 57 players, including 30 pitchers. All but six deals involved pitchers. Among the trades which fell through was one which would have sent Cleveland pitcher Gaylord Perry to Boston.

Kuhn, in his final briefing before heading home, said he had urged all teams to consult airlines to determine if they could fly around the country commercially instead of depending on charters.

He indicated that was the most baseball could do to save fuel during the energy pinch.

And the Rules Committee got into the act by changing the by-law concerning the spitball.

Umpires no longer have to find any liquid or goo or anything on a baseball to call it a spitter, and officials of both leagues say they are informing umpires to strictly enforce the new guideline.

ULCA collects 78th straight against SMU

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — UCLA, behind Bill Walton's 25 points and 16 rebounds, made it 78 games in a row by coasting to a 77-60 victory over Southern Methodist Saturday night.

The Bruins, coming off a one-point win over Maryland last weekend, settled the issue in the first half when they out-scored the Mustangs 16-0 over a six-minute stretch to build up a 35-12 lead.

SMU, now even on the year at 2-2, was paced by senior forward Sammy Hervey's 22 points and 16 points from sophomore center Ira Terrell.

Walton got 18 points and 14 rebounds in the first half, hitting eight of his first 11 shots to give UCLA a 40-20 intermission margin.

The Bruins also got 12 points from senior forward Keith Wilkes and 11 from junior forward Pete Trgovich.

The game was the first basketball meeting between the two schools. SMU plays at UC Santa Barbara Monday night.

UCLA, which has won seven straight NCAA titles and nine in the past 10 years, faces second-ranked North Carolina State next Saturday in St. Louis. North Carolina State was 27-0 last season, but was ineligible for post-season play.

Standing room for UCLA-'Pack

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — St. Louis University announced Saturday that 750 standing room tickets will go on sale Wednesday for $5 each for the basketball doubleheader next Saturday featuring seven-time national chtmpion UCLA and North Carolina State at the St. Louis Arena.

The Arena has been sold out of seats for the match between the two top-ranked college squads in the country.

Rams' title formula: 'Don't look ahead'

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Rookie coach Chuck Knox has a formula for winning with the Los Angeles Rams and it is simply, "Don't look too far ahead."

Knox, 41, an obscure assistant coach with the Detroit Lions when he was picked by owner Carroll Rosenbloom to take over the Rams, fears all teams equally.

The Rams meet the New York Giants Monday night in the weekly televised game and are favored by 17 points to improve their 10-2 record with which they've clinched the title in the NFC West. The Giants have a sad 2-9-1 record.

"We're not doing anything different to prepare for the Giants," said Knox. "They are a good football beam. They almost beat the Washington Redskins last Sunday. They have a super athlete in Ron Johnson. He carried the ball 26 out of the 37 times they ran it. He gained 191 yards including pass receptions."

Knox has surrounded himself with assistants whom he gives full credit and he always uses the pronoun "we" in speaking of coaching methods.

"The little things make the difference between winning and losing," he says. "You must cover every phase of the game, for example like how to give up a safety the way Miami did against Pittsburgh Monday night, getting down under punts or rushing on the extra point. Our special teams have been very good."

On the subject of looking ahead, he says, "We never have done that. We never set any goals. In the first day of practice we began preparing for our first preseason opponent, Kansas City. Then we prepared for the next one and the next one and so on.

"We do everything we can to make our players as successful as we can. We work with them and we demonstrate and we repeat. It's most important for the players to try to improve as individuals and then you improve as a team. This is what we've done all year."

Knox and his assistants have fashioned their winning record with an aging quarterback, John Hadl, 33, who had to learn a new system, and a not very highly rated secondary defenders.

Dave Elmendorf is the only holdover in the secondary, Eddie McMillan is a rookie from Florida State. Charlie Stukes and Steve Preece are castoffs from other NFL clubs.

Last season the Rams' secondary saw 20 touchdown passes go by them. This year the new crew has given up only nine scoring passes in 12 games.

"They are coordinated," says Knox by way of explanation. "We drill them on coordination so they don't leave any big holes in the secondary. Of course, the linebackers figure in this too. As a matter of fact, all 11 men have to coordinate."

Knox says the veteran Ram players have demonstrated great leadership qualities. He named offensive tackle Charlie Cowan, guard Joe Scibelli and defensive tackle Merlin Olsen in this category.

"We don't look for a letdown against the Giants," he says. "We prepared for them just the way we've done with other teams on the schedule. When you prepare for one game you concentrate your energies and you don't waste your time thinking about divisional tities or the Super Bowl.

Warriors 'Barry' Lakers, take over NBA West lead

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — Rick Barry scored an NBA season high of 50 points and the Golden State Warriors took first place in the Pacific Division with a 135-111 rout of the Los Angeles Lakers Saturday night.

Barry, who connected on 21 of 37 field goal attempts, reached the 50-point mark for the tenth time in his NBA career. The star forward also led the Warriors with nine assists and grabbed nine rebounds.

The victory gave the Warriors a 15-9 record and a .018 edge over the Lakers (17-11) for the lead in the Pacific Division.

Barry scored 29 of his points in the first half as Golden State vaulted to a 68-57 lead. He added 15 in the third and left the game after scoring his 50th point with 4:38 remaining.

Connie Hawkins paced the ailing Lakers with 23 points. Nate Thurmond was the rebound leader with 18. Laker center Elmore Smith blocked six shots.

Chaffey duo teams up to stop MSAC

ALTA LOMA — Veterans Pierre Rankin and Bob Kovach combined for 36 points Saturday night to lead Chaffey College to a 67-49 victory over Mt. San Antonio in a tune-up game for next week's 33rd annual Chaffey Invitational Basketball Tournament.

Rankin led the Panthers into a 29-27 halftime lead and then Kovach, an All-State forward last season, applied the coup de grace.

It was Chaffey's fourth victory in six games while the Mounties dipped to 2-7 for the year.

Rankin scored eight of his 18 points in an exciting first half which saw the Mounties close a 19-9 gap on the shooting of freshman forward Gary Melugin.

The 6-foot-6 former Ganesha High standout hit four jump shots in a row from the corner to pep MSAC's rally in the late stages of the first half. In his first start of the season he led the Mounties with 16 points.

The Mounties kept the rally alive in the opening minutes of the second half and tied the score briefly at 33-all before Kovach caught fire, scoring 12 of his 18 points in the final 20 minutes.

In a seven minute span that lasted until only 6:30 remained in the contest, the Panthers outscored the Mounties 16-0 to turn the contest into a rout.

NLV defeats Buffs, 86-81

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI) — Bob Florence tallied 39 points Saturday night to lead the University of Nevada-Las Vegas to an 86-81 victory over the University of Colorado.

Nevada-Las Vegas led most of the game, paced by Florence, Louis Brown who added 13 for the Rebels and Ricky Sobers who had 12. Dave Logan led Colorado with 20 points, followed by Scott Wedman with 16, Lee Haven 15 and Tony Lawrence 13. Nevada-Las Vegas, which upped its record to 2-1, led 37-32 at the half. The Buffaloes dropped to 2-2 on the season.

Broncos snowed under by Arizona, 87-54

ByBILL LANGLEY

P-B Sports Editor

TUCSON, Ariz.—Cal Poly's Don Hogan and Arizona's Fred Snowden could form a mutual admiration society.

They are both black head basketball coaches, breaking into the collegiate ranks and their friendship dating back from a national convention is apparent.

It's also obvious Snowden has the talent. Nationally-ranked Arizona had no trouble in taking an 87-54 victory over Poly here Saturday night before more than 11,000 fans at the beautiful new McKale Memorial Center, which will be the site of the NCAA West Regionals in March.

Despite the one-sided win, Snowden had some kind words for his buddy.

"Poly is a well-coached basketball team," Fred the Fox commented. "Poly is still adapting to Hogan's coaching philosophy. They'll be all-right."

Snowden is happy Hogan got the Poly job.

"I'm very pleased the university hired him," the man who has created basketball fever in the desert said. "He's a great developer of young men and I am proud he's a part of our profession."

Of course, Hogan had his own kind words to say.

"Snowden has done a heck-of-a-job here," the rookie mentor said. "The team believes in him and the people in Tucson believe in him.

"I also must add Fred was very generous for not running up the score on us."

It could have been much worse as Arizona jumped out to a 34-9 lead, expanding it to 46-19 at halftime as the Arizona statisticians were busy looking through the record books to see when a team last scored under 20 in one half.

It's still a mystery, but the net result is the same anyway.

Lee Roy Williams was the only Bronco able to accomplish much as he scored 15 points and grabbed nine rebounds despite playing only 26 minutes as he fouled out with 10 minutes left in the contest. Outside of Lee Roy, Poly's indiividual highlight was freshman Frank Prince, a Pomona High product, who scored five points in a relief role for his first collegiate points.

Arizona, rated ninth by Sports Illustrated, is 3-1 now as Snowden, in his second year here, has collected young, talented players with three sophomores and one freshman starting.

Sophomore Coniel Norman, last year's Most Valuable Player in the rugged West Athletic Conference, and freshman guard Herman Harris, an outstanding prepster from Pennsylvania, shared scoring honors with 16 points apiece to lead the attack.

Arizona, a team shooting at a 56.7 per cent clip from the floor in the first three games, was hot again Saturday in making 38 of 73 for 52.1 per cent while Poly was cold in making only 25 of 79 for 31.6 per cent.

Hogan will be an expert on Western powerhouses as Poly still must play Long Beach St. and Nevada Las Vegas in the next two weeks.

"I think we'll fare better against those teams," Hogan said, "because they don't run like Arizona. Arizona is very impressive offensively as it has great floor sense. The key to Arizona's success is its unselfish play."

The Wildcats' one loss was to USC last week in Los Angeles.

"USC outplayed us," Snowden said. "They were the better team that night. As a team we're not at the top of our game yet. We're just playing adequate basketball at this time. Hopefully, we'll reach our peak when WAC play begins in January."

Poly, 1-3, returns to its own class next Saturday when touring Wheaton College (Ill.) visits Kellogg Gym.

Giants peddle Juan Marichal

BOSTON (UPI) — Juan Marichal, the winningest active pitcher in baseball, has been sold to the Boston Red Sox by the San Francisco Giants for an undisclosed amount of cash, the Red Sox announced Saturday.

A club spokesman said "all necessary paper transfers" were completed before the 1 a.m. EST Saturday deadline for an interleague trade.

Marichal, who has spent all 14 years of his major league career with the Giants, agreed to the trade Saturday, the spokesman said. Under a new rule agreed to by club owners last spring, any player with more than 10 years in the league or more than five years with any one team, must agree to move before he can be traded.

Marichal, who won 11 and lost 15 with the Giants last season, has won 238 games overall, one more than Bob Gibson of St. Louis. He has won 20 or more games six different years.

Red Sox Spokesman Bill Crowley said the team "will assign a player within the next day or two to make room for Marichal"

Baseball trades

HOUSTON (UPI) — Twenty-four trades involving 55 players on 21 clubs —all teams except the New York Mets, San Francisco Giants and San Diego-Washington —were completed at the winter baseball meetings. The trades were:

The Philadelphia Phils traded pitcher Barry Lersch and shortstop Craig Robinson to the Atlanta Braves for pitcher Ron Schueler.

The Chicago Cubs traded pitcher Bob Locker to the Oakland A's for pitcher Horacio Pina.

The Detroit Tigers traded pitcher Fred Scherman to the Houston Astros for pitcher Jim Ray and infielder Gary Sutherland.

The Houston Astros traded pitcher Cecil Upshaw to the Cleveland Indians for pitcher Jerry Johnson.

The Pittsburgh Pirates traded pitcher Nelson Briles and infielder Fernando Gonzalez to the Kansas City Royals for catcher outfielder Ed Kirkpatrick, infielder Kurt Bevacqua and first baseman Winston Cole.

The Baltimore Orioles traded outfielder Merv Rettenmund, shortstop Junior Kennedy and catcher Bill Woods to the Cincinnati Reds for pitcher Ross Grimsley and catcher Wallace Williams.

The Chicago White Sox sent pitcher Dan Neumeier to the Houston Astros to complete the trade for shortstop Hector Torres, which was announced in October.

The Montreal Expos traded relief pitcher Mike Marshall to the Los Angeles Dodgers for outfielder Willie Davis.

The Pittsburgh Pirates sold pitcher Luke Walker to the Detroit Tigers.

The Los Angeles Dodgers traded relief pitcher Pete Richert to the St. Louis Cardinals for outfielder Tommy Agee.

The Texas Rangers purchased outfielder-first baseman Terry Crowley from the Baltimore Orioles.

The New York Yankees purchased shortstop Jim Mason from the Texas Rangers.

The Philadelphia Phillies traded second baseman Denny Doyle to the California Angels for pitcher Aurelio Monteagudo and minor league outfielder Chris Coletta to complete the deal of last August in which Philadelphia acquired infielder Billy Grabarkewitz from California.

The Houston Astros traded outfielder Jimmy Wynn to the Los Angeles Dodgers for pitcher Claude Osteen and minor league pitcher David Culpepper.

The Detroit Tigers traded pitcher Mike Strahler to the Milwaukee Brewers for pitcher Ray Newman.

The California Angels traded catcher Jeff Torborg to the St. Louis Cardinals for pitcher John Andrews.

The Minnesota Twins traded catcher George Mitterwald to the Chicago Cubs for catcher Randy Handley.

The Texas Rangers purchased infielder Cesar Tovar from the Philadelphia Phillies.

The Philadelphia Phillies purchased pitcher Eddie Watt from the Baltimore Orioles.

The New York Yankees traded pitcher Lindy McDaniel to the Kansas City Royals for outfielder Lou Piniella and pitcher Ken Wright.

The New York Yankees obtained catcher Bill Sudakis from the Texas Rangers for a player to be named later or cash.

The Boston Red Sox traded pitchers John Curtis, Lynn McGlothen and Mike Garman to the St. Louis Cardinals for pitchers Reggie Cleveland and Diego Segui and minor league infielder Terry Hughes.

The Pittsburgh Pirates traded pitcher Bob Johnson to the Cleveland Indians for outfielder Bill Flowers.

The Montreal Expos sold outfielder Felipe Alou to the Milwaukee Brewers.

USC stars visit Garey

POMONA — Four University of Southern California football stars, including Allen Carter and Anthony Davis, will be the guest speakers at Garey High's football and cross country sports banquet Monday night at 7:30 p.m.

Carter, a former Bonita High running back, and Davis will be joined by teammates Ray Rodriguez and Charles Antrony at the banquet, which will be held in the Garey cafeteria.

Admission price for the banquet is $3.50, and tickets may be purchased at the Garey student store.

The banquet will honor the varsity and sophomore football teams from Garey and the cross country teams.

Sports news in brief

HANS "HANSI" HINTERSEER of Austria won the men's giant slalom Saturday at Val Disere, France and put his country further ahead at the opening of the new World Cup Ski Racing Season. Italians Helmut Schmalzi and Pero Gros placed second and third.

THIRD RANKED INDIANA has been tabbed the overwhelming favorite to repeat as Big Ten Basketball champion. Purdue was runnerup, as voted by 46 writers and broadcasters around the conference and Wisconsin third.

WOODY HAYES said he plans to hold six of his alloted 16 practices in Columbus before bringing his third-ranked Buckeyes to the west coast for the Rose Bowl game. The team will arrive in Los Angeles Dec. 20.

HENRY BIBBY, bidding to replace Dean Meminger as a starting guard for the New York Knicks, scored an NBA high 22 points and Walt Frazier added 25 as the Knicks defeatted Atlanta 117-100.

PERRY THOMPSON of Mammoth Lakes, Calif. won the first professional ski race in the giant slalom competition of the Benson and Hedges Grand Prix Saturday in Vail, Colo.

THE ST. LOUIS CARDINALS announced Saturday that they had traded pitcher Tom Murphy to the Milwaukee Brewers for infielder Bob Heise in a deal completed Friday before the midnight deadline for inter-league trades. Murphy is a former Angel hurler.

OFFICIALS of the waterlogged Shrine National Pro-Am Golf Tournament in Largo, Fla. Saturday slashed the prize money from $125,000 to $92,500 and cut the tourney back to 36 holes.

AMY ALCOTT, 17, Los Angeles, the 1973 USGA junior girls' champion, defeated Debbie Skinner, 19, Chula Vista, 2 and 1, Saturday to win the California Women's Amateur Golf Championship.

COLUMBIA, on the verge of clinching its North American Zone preliminary Davis Cup clash against Mexico, was forced to wait at least another day when rain halted play after the first two sets of Saturday's doubles match.

AL PAUL, Associate Director of Athletics at Columbia University since 1968, Saturday was named the Ivy League school's Athletic Director succeeding Kenneth Germann who is leaving to become Commissioner of the Southern Conference.

DUFFY DAUGHERTY, former Michigan St. football coach, Saturday was named 1973 recipient of the Walter Camp Football Foundation Award. Daugherty stepped down in 1972 after 19 years as head coach.

JOHN CAPPELLETTI, Penn State's Heisman Trophy winner, Saturday was named College Back of the Year and his coach, Joe Paterno, College Coach of the Year by the Washington Touchdown Club in Washington, D. C.

BILLY CASPER had a seven-stroke lead Saturday after 54 holes of the Hassan 11 Pro-Am Golf Tournament at the par-73 Dar Es Salam course in Rabat, Morocco.

MICHIGAN'S FOOTBALL SEASON is over legally and officially. Judge Fred W. Kaess ruled that Gerald Pye, a fan who field a class action law suit against the Big Ten vote which sends Ohio St. to the Rose Bowl, failed to show enough evidence to support his case. Pye withdrew his suit.

HUBERT "SHUCKS" PRUETT, a pitcher who held a rare mastery over Babe Ruth in the slugger's heyday, will receive an award from the St. Louis chapter of the Baseball Writers Association of America next month.

CLINT LONGLEY, a junior quarterback, passed for 341 yards and four touchdowns Saturday to lead Abilene Christian College to a 42-14 victory over previously unbeaten Elon (N.C.) in the 18th annual NAIA Champion Bowl in Shreveport, La.

Chaffey duo too much for MSAC

Chaffey controlled the boards at both ends of the court, taking a 47-25 advantage with Kovach pulling down 19. Center Randy Nickolei grabbed 10.

Besides Melugin, two other Mounties were in double figures as center Gary Nash popped for 13 and forward Carl William hit 10. Nash took only nine rebounds and Melugin and Williams combined for 11 more.

Forward Russ Williams, a freshman from San Gorgonio, was the only other Panther in double figures with 12 points.

Both teams return to action Wednesday in the first round of the Invitational.

The Panthers face L. A. Valley in the 9 p.m. feature and the Mounties play L. A. Harbor in an early game at 5:50 p.m. Cross-valley rival Citrus College opens the tournament with Fullerton at 9:30 a.m.

Mounties fourth

FULLERTON — Mt. San Antonio College finished fourth in the Fullerton State College Wrestling Tournament Saturday afternoon.

El Camino won with 108 points, Fullerton was second with 77.5, Golden West placed third with 62.5 points, MSAC 56.5 points, and Palomar was fifth with 50 points.

Steve Pivac (118 pound class) was the Mounties' top grappler placing second while winning three of four matches. The loss was his first of the year. Mike Castillo (126) Richard Haden (167) and Carl Ciarfalio (heavyweight) all placed third winning four of five matches.

APC, C-M lose, P-P wins

Azusa Pacific came up with its worst game of the season against the tallest team it had faced Saturday night.

The result was a 96-59 thumping at the hands of St. Mary's as the Gaels won the Aggie Invitational basketball tournament at San Luis Obispo.

In other games, Pomona-Pitzer won an 81-64 game from Cal Lutheran at Thousand Oaks, and Claremont-Mudd was edged, 81-80 by Pt. Loma College in San Diego.

At San Luis Obispo, St. Mary's jumped off to a 17-4 lead over APC and then coasted as the Cougars never did get going. The Gaels started a lineup that was 6-9, 6-8, 6-8, 6-6 and 6-0 and for once the Cougars were at a considerable height disadvantage.

"We just didn't play well as a team," coach Cliff Hamlow said. "We didn't shoot well or rebound well." The loss was the worst since Cal Poly walloped the Cougars 101-62 in the 1965-66 season.

APC hit on only 24 of 74 field goals (32 per cent) while the Gaels connected on 42 of 79 (53 per cent). St. Mary's also held a 57-35 edge in rebounding.

Forward Mike Rozenski scored 18 points and grabbed 14 rebounds and earned MVP recognition. Dennis Vanzant scored 19 points for APC and was named to the all-tournament team. Others selected were Maurice Harper of St. Mary's (22 points), John Parker of Cal Poly SLO, and Bill Belander of Sonoma St.

Down in San Diego, Ted Ducey's Stags suffered their second loss of the week in a last-second heartbreaker. Three turnovers in the waning minutes spelled the difference.

C-M, down by as many as 10 points in the first half, came back to knot the score, 40-40 at halftime. In the second half, the Stags led by as many as 12 points until Pt. Loma got hot. That and a couple of turnovers at the end cut the Stag lead to 80-79 with 18 seconds left.

At this juncture, C-M made its most critical turnover. Inbounding the ball, they turned it over. Pt. Loma took the ball and Steve Williams started to shoot and was fouled with two seconds left in the game. He sank both free throws to pull it out.

"I thought we played well overall," a disappointed Ducey remarked. "We rebounded well and did a good job overall, but we made the turnovers at critical times on which our inexperience showed up."

George Glonka led the Stags with 19 points and Norm Richards had 17. Four of the five Stag starters were in double figures. Mark Endresen, a 6-5 forward, led Pt. Loma with 25.

The Stags now are 2-3 for the season.

Pomona-Pitzer also found itself in a 40-40 tie at the half in its game with Cal Lutheran. But the Sagehens came back to outscore the Kingsmen 41-24 in the second period. Freshman center Geoff Northrup led the 'Hens with 23 points and 15 rebounds, his finest effort yet. Norm Carter, moved back to guard, and 22 points. Playmaker Scott Peze scored 14 points and 5-8 guard grabbed nine rebounds.

The Sagehens now are 2-2 for the season and host Southern Calif. College Tuesday.

Aztecs' Freitas is best

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jesse Freitas of San Diego State was the nation's leader in passing and total offense this year, according to statistics released by the NCAA, but he had to share honors with two other senior quarterbacks.

Danny White of Arizona State, the leader in yards per play, smashed seven NCAA records while David Jaynes of Kansas wound up the season as No. 3 on the list for avoiding interceptions.

In passing, Freitas finished on top with an average of 20.6 completions per game, hitting 227 of 347 passes for the season (65.4 per cent) for 2,993 yards and 21 touchdowns. Gary Sheide of Brigham Young was second, David Harper of Davidson third and Jaynes fourth.

Freitas led in total offense with 263.7 yards a game compared to 260.2 for White, who was second, with Sheide third at 234.3.

White, however, set NCAA major college records for season and career for yards per pass (9.85 this season, 9.14 for career—surpassing Jim Plunkett's old record by more than a yard) and yards per play (8.81 this season, 7.94 for career). He also set career marks for touchdowns running and passing, points responsible for, and yards per pass completion.

STATELINE, Nev. (UPI) — Ohio State has been made a one-point favorite over the University of Southern California for their Jan. 1 meeting in the Rose Bowl.

In odds released by Harrah's Tahoe Racebook, National Champion Alabama was listed as a seven-point pick over fourth-ranked Notre dame in the Sugar Bowl, while fifth-ranked Penn State was a five-point choice over Louisiana State in the Orange Bowl.

For the other post-season games, Kansas was picked by two points over North Carolina State in the Liberty Bowl, Texas three over Nebraska in the Cotton, Arizona State 12 over Pittsburgh in the Fiesta, Florida seven over Miami of Ohio in the Tangerine, Georgia one over Maryland in the Peach, Missouri seven over Auburn in the Sun, Houston eight over Tulane in the Astro and Texas Tech two over Tennessee in the Gator.

Giants honor grid players

POMONA — Ganesha Hill football players will be honored at their annual football awards banquet Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Lair, Ganesha's student center.

Roland Ortmayer, head football coach of La Verne College, will be guest speaker for the evening. Ganesha head coach Garry Norvell will be presenting the awards.

Student Council is sponsoring the banquet under the supervision of Jim Lacey, Athletic Commissioner, with Zonta Club, a girls' service organization on campus, preparing and serving desserts.

Sophomore and junior varsity teams are also included in the presentation. Among the awards presented will be the offensive and defensive most valuable players and outstanding offensive and defensive linemen.

UCLA soccer team wins, 3-2

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The UCLA soccer team defeated the University of San Francisco, 3-2, Saturday to win the western regional NCAA intercollegiate championship.

Firooz Fowzi scored the winning goal with 14 minutes left to send UCLA to the national finals in Miami Jan. 24.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (UPI) — Junior guard Gus Williams, playing the entire second half with four fouls, scored 16 points in the final 20 minutes Saturday to rally Southern California from 15 points behind to a 71-60 victory over Illinois.

Pacific Eight power USC trailed 42-27 with 16:44 remaining and 44-30 with 15:04 left on the clock. But the Trojans outscored Illinois 21-6 in a six-minute stretch, including eight points by the speedy Williams, to take a 51-50 lead.

Illinois led again at 58-57 with 4:22 remaining, but USC reeled off 10 straight points, six by Williams, to put the game away.

Illinois guard Jeff Dawson led all scorers with 26 points and junior forward Rick Schmidt scored 20 for the Illini.

ILTF gets nay vote on world events

BOSTON (UPI) — The Committee of Management for the International Lawn Tennis Federation voted Saturday against sanctioning World Team Tennis events in 1974.

The decision, reached by four committee members in Boston to attend the windup of the Commercial Union Masters tournament, makes it illegal for players governed by the ILTF to participate in the infant league which is due to start next May.

Allan Heyman, ILTF president, said the decision will stand until "an extraordinary general meeting of the ILTF" can be held Jan. 26 in London. Heyman said all 99 member countries will be allowed to vote on the final decision.

Heyman told a news conference the ruling was based "on the information provided to date by WTT to the ILTF" and added that the new league still could change plans, making an agreement between the two groups possible.

"If they come tomorrow and say they're moving their season to right after the European season...you can't tie your hands," said Heyman in stressing that the ruling is not final.

ILTF officials contend WWT, a 16-city league, will cut the heart out of the European summer circuit, which includes Wimbledon.

Behind the issue is the running fued between ILTF and the Association of Tennis Professionals. ATP members refused to participate at Wimbledon last summer in support of suspended Yugoslav Nikki Pilic, who was ousted from the tournament after refusing to play on his country's Davis Cup squad.

A tentative settlement between the ATP and ILTF reached before the U.S. Open never was ratified because the pros maintained they wanted equal representation with the official body on any committee set up to guide the future of tennis.

Heyman refused to discuss the vote by the members present saying any conversation on the matter would be unfair at this time.

Heyman said if the general meeting rules against WTT sanction, those players participating in team events would be unable to play in national and international tournaments.

Goring, Vachon lead Kings, 3-0

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Butch Goring returned from an injury to score two goals and Rogie Vachon posted his second shutout of the year Saturday night as the Los Angeles Kings blanked the Atlanta Flames 3-0 in an NHL contest.

It took Goring only 2:32 into the game to get back in the flow after being out of the lineup for eight games with a separated shoulder. He added his sixth goal of the year with 1:12 left in the match.

On his first period score, Goring took a pass from Bob Nevin on a two-on-one breakaway to beat netminder Dan Bouchard from six feet out.

Although that was the only goal Vachon needed in registering his 19th career shutout, Mike Corrigan fired in an insurance goal late in the second period.

On Corrigan's fifth goal of the year, Frank St. Marseille picked up an assist for his 16th point in the last 11 contests. The closest Atlanta came to scoring was on a breakaway effort by Leon Rochfort 2:30 minutes in the middle period.

But Vachon smothered that effort along with 19 other Atlanta shot attempts. The Kings' defense contained an Atlanta team that had taken 77 shots in their previous two matches.

The victory marked the first time this season Los Angeles, now fifth in the West, has won three games in a row.

Big Eight to consider lifting Sooner TV ban

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The Big Eight Conference concluded a three-day meeting Friday with a promise that the question of lifting the two-year ban on televising Oklahoma University football games will be considered at its next session.

Conference Commissioner Charles Neinas said the faculty representatives and athletic directors will study the Oklahoma matter at its meeting Jan. 6 in conjunction with the NCAA convention in San Francisco.

Oklahoma Governor David Hall made a personal appeal before the conference officials Thursday.

Hall said he did not question the conference's right to discipline OU or to ban it from bowl appearances, but that "no group of individuals has the right to deny the citizens of Oklahoma to see their football team on television."

Four no-hitters

HOUSTON (UPI) — Houston pitchers have hurled four no-hitters since the Astros entered the National League in 1962. Don Wilson pitched two masterpieces and one each was turned in by Ken Johnson and Don Nottebart.

Hicks wins Outland Award, chosen nation's best tackle

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. (UPI) — John Hicks, Ohio State University's All-America offensive tackle and runner-up in the voting for the Heisman Trophy, has been named winner of the Outland Award.

The trophy is awarded annually by the Football Writers Association to the nation's best guard or tackle.

Hicks, one of two Ohio State players on the writers' All-America football team, finished in front of Oklahoma guard Lucious Selmon in the voting for the Outland Award.

Hicks said it was the "greatest honor" he had ever received.

"It was something I've dreamed about all my life," he said. "It has been my goal to win it, but you never really think something like that can happen to you.

"I tried not to put personal goals ahead of team goals this year, but the Outland was always in the back of my mind. Hicks said.

"I'm delighted to hear he has won the Outland Trophy. I know of no athlete since I've been at Ohio State who deserves it more than John Hicks.

Hayes said Hicks, a 6-foot, 3-inch 258 pound senior from Cleveland, "is the best lineman I've ever coached, including Jim Parker (formerly of the Baltimore Colts and now in professional football's Hall of Fame)."

Parker won the Outland Award in 1956.

Hicks was Ohio State's top offensive lineman in nine of its 10 games this season, based on blocking efficiency. He missed the entire 1971 season because of knee surgery and was granted another year of eligibility.

Hicks will be the only player in Big Ten history to play in three Rose Bowl games when he takes the field against Southern California on New Year's Day.

RIDE 'EM CHIEF! — Nate Allen (48), Kansas City Chiefs defensive back rides Oakland's Fred Biletnikoff into ground after 12-yard gain. Raiders went on to whip Chiefs, 37-7.

Raiders rout Chiefs, 37-7

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — Marv Hubbard and Charlie Smith ran for 200 yards between them, including a touchdown apiece, in leading the Oakland Raiders to a 37-7 rout of the Kansas City Chiefs Saturday and a step closer to the AFC West title.

The victory gave the Raiders an 8-4-1 record and put them a game ahead of the Denver Broncos, who meet the San Diego Chargers Sunday and then play Oakland next week. The Chiefs suffered their fifth loss compared to six victories and two ties and thus were eliminated from any chance for post-season play.

Hubbard, who usually plays his best against the Chiefs, ran for more than 100 yards and scored on a 31-yard dash up the middle in the first half when the Raiders opened a 20-0 lead.

Smith tallied on a 10-yard run in the fourth quarter when the Raiders converted two pass interceptions into 14 points to make it a rout.

The other Oakland scores came on a pair of passes by Ken Stabler—a nine-yarder to Fred Biletnikoff and a three-yarder to Cliff Branch—and George Blanda added field goals of 20, 28 and 27 yards.

The Oakland defense, which had allowed only three touchdowns in five previous games, shut out the Chiefs for 38 minutes and 43 seconds before Mike Livingston ran 17 yards on a broken play for Kansas City's only score.

The Raiders got their first break in the third minute of the game when Ed Podolak fumbled on a punt return and Pete Banaszak fell on the ball at the Kansas City 46.

Hubbard churned out 25 yards in four carries and Biletnikoff grabbed a 12-yard pass before taking a nineyarder from Stabler for a 7-0 lead.

Hubbard then ran for his touchdown and Blanda added two field goals for the 20-0 halftime edge.

The Raiders took the opening kickoff of the second half 70 yards with Blanda adding his 23rd field goal of the season to make it 23-0. Livingston followed with his score and then George Atkinson and Nehemiah Wilson picked off pass before taking a nine-yar- Pete Beathard respectively to set up Smith and Branch's fourth quarter touchdowns and complete the scoring.

Nastase tops Okker during tournament

BOSTON (UPI) — Ilie Nastase of Romania completed a hat trick of victories in the Masters Tennis Tournmanet Saturday when he beat Holland's Tom Okker in four sets in the 1973 renewal of the event.

Nastase won the two-hour match, 6-3, 7-5, 4-6, 6-3, but at no time did the standard of tennis rise above the mediocre because of a series of unforced errors committed by both men.

Nastase is now 3-4 for the year against the Dutchman and trails him 4-8 lifetime.

The Romanian, noted for his bouts of temperament, was a model of court manners Saturday, but the 27-year-old Dutchman became "Tom the Terrible," by questioning nearly every call made against him.

Okker got into the final by default Friday when John Newcombe of Australia, the reigning U.S. and Australian Open champion, had to withdraw when he held match point against the Dutchman. He injured ligaments below the right knee when getting up for an overhead.

The $15,000 prize brought the 27-year-old Nastase's earnings for the year to $228,750. Okker, 29, picked up $10,000 to bring his 1973 aggregate to $173,500.

Okker started very shakily and for the first two sets he struggled to stay in contention because of an errant first service. His second ball was so shallow and weak that it enabled Nastase to dictate the tactics and force the Dutchman to press. But midway throgh the third set Okker's first ball began to find the corners and then the match was really joined.

Nastase raced to a 4-0 lead in the first set but was broken in the eighth game to 30 when he served for the set. But he hit straight back in the ninth game to break Okker at 15 for the set.

Vikings crush Packers

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI) — The playoff-bound Minnesota Vikings, led by two Fran Tarkenton touchdown passes and the running of rookie Chuck Foreman, showed no mercy for numerous Green Bay mistakes Saturday, crushing the Packers 31-7.

The Vikings, rebounding from the first shutout loss in 11 years a week earlier, scored touchdowns following a fumble recovery, an interception, a short punt and a blocked field goal and then added a field goal after another interception.

John Brockington provided the only real cause for joy among the Packers by rushing for 124 yards in 27 carries to climb over the 1,000-yard mark for the third time in as many years as a pro—a feat never before accomplished in the National Football League.

Brockington, who received a standing ovation when it was announced, has 1,002 yards with one game to go.

But the hero of the game as far as the Vikings were concerned was cornerback Bobby Bryant who intercepted three Jerry Tagge passes and returned one of them 46 yards for a touchdown.

Bryant's runback came in the first quarter less than a minute after the Vikes took a 7-0 lead on a 21-yard TD pass from Tarkenton to Stu Voigt. That score came after Brockington fumbled the ball on his first carry of the game and Jeff Siemon recovered on the Packer 46 midway through the first period.

The Vikings made it 21-0 with 4:50 gone in the second period when Foreman bolted 50 yards for a TD on the first play following a 23-yard Green Bay punt. Foreman, a leading candidate for rookie of the year honors, finished the day with 100 yards in 19 carries to give him 785 for the season.

Minnesota increased its margin to 28-0 when Tarkenton connected with John Gilliam on a 20-yard scoring strike with 26 seconds left in the half. The score capped a 59-yard drive after Alan Page blocked a 42-yard field goal attempt by Chester Marcol.

The Vikings finished their scoing midway through the third period when Fred Cox booted a 15-yard field goal, while the Packers finally got on the scoreboard when Jim Del Gaizo, replacing Tagge, passed 17 yards to rookie Barry Smith with less than two minutes left in the game.

Tarkenton, who didn't play the second half, completed 8 of 12 passes for 79 yards.

CS Fullerton soccer team falls in finals, 3-1

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (UPI) — Kevin Missey scored two goals Saturday as the University of Missouri at St. Louis defeated California State at Fullerton, 3-1, to win the NCAA college division soccer championship.

Missey opened the scoring at 4:46 of the first half and scored the final goal of the game with 10:10 remaining. Mark Le Grand scored the other Missouri goal.

Missouri, the only undefeated team in the two-day, four-team tourney, finished the season with an 11-0-3 record. The loss was Fullerton's third against 15 victories.

In a game for third place, Adelphia University defeated the University of Baltimore, 10. The victory was the fourth shutout and set a new tournament record of .2 goals allowed per game.

Bruin 'Bible' on sale

LOS ANGELES — UCLA's award-winning basketball news media guide again is being offered to fans this season.

For past two years it has been voted "Best in the Nation" by the United States Basketball Writers' Assn. and the Bruins' new 1973-74 edition again figures to be one of the finest publications of its kind in the country.

It is the "Bible" of Bruin basketball and contains all the facts, figures and features about the NCAA champions, the teams that have won the National Collegiate titles for seven straight seasons and nine of the last 10 years.

The 1973 Bob Hope Desert Classic distributed a record-breaking $545,000 to 22 desert area charities.

Mrs. Bob Hope, president of Eisenhower Medical Center in Palm Desert, accepted the largest allotment, a check for $380,000. Other large awards went to United Way and United Fund, $61,000; Desert Hospital (gastro - intestinal lab), $25,000; Foundation for Retarded Children of the Desert, $12,500; and Desert Museum, $10,000.

Topping last year's distribution by more than $65,000, the 1973 total brought to more than $3.1 million the amount raised by the Classic since 1960. Over the years the funds, distributed under the auspices of the Palm Desert Foundation, Inc., have been dividied among 34 area charities.

The Bob Hope Desert Classic for the last several years has topped all other charity tournaments on the Professional Golf Association tour. The 15th annual Hope Classic will be played Feb. 6-10 at Bermuda Dunes, Eldorado, Indian Wells and La Quinta Country Clubs. NBC will televise the finals at Indian Wells.

INTERNATIONAL GOODwill matches between American and Japanese collegiate players will take place Dec. 21-22 at Massacre Canyon Country Club in Gillman Hot Springs.
country will compete in the Forty players from each 54-hole matches. The first round on Friday, Dec. 21, will be four-ball (partner best ball) competition and the final two rounds on Saturday will be singles, or individual head-to-head matches.

USC golf coach Stan Wood, president of the Golf Coaches Assn. of America, will be the nonplaying captain of the United States team.

The 40 American players will be chosen from about 20 colleges and universities, including Claremont-Mudd USC, UCLA, Stanford, Cal, UC Riverside, Cal State Long Beach, Cal State Northridge, Cal State L. A., Cal State Fullerton, UC Irvine, Redlands, El Camino College, San Diego State, U. S. International and College of The Desert.

IRENE MCINTOSH of Pomona dropped her first ace recently at Western Hills Country Club in Carbon Canyon. Irene used a seven iron on the 112-yard No. 6 hole to get her hole-in-one.

JOAN EGGINGTON turned in a best low gross score of 223 recently to win the Palm Lake Women's Club President's Cup Tournament. Low net honors went to Emily Miller with a 175.

In the recent turkey shoot, Marie Muchmore turned in a low gross 73, and Mrs. Egginton carded a low net 33.

Phyllis Base had the fewest putts for the month of November with 30.

Dallas, Redskins watch points closely

By United Press International

If you thought the Big Ten had a strange method for picking its Rose Bowl representative, wait'll you see how the National Football League may wind up choosing its NFC Eastern Division champion.

In the good ol' days, when two teams tied for first place, they met on the field in a playoff game to snap the tie.

But that was before the NFL was divided into six diviisions by the merger in 1970. Now there's no room on the schedule for a playoff game if two teams are deadlocked for first place. So, some other methods had to be dreamed up for breaking ties.

And that's why the Sunday's nationally televised Dallas-Washington game could have one of the strangest endings ever if it's close.

To put it as simply as possible, Dallas and Washington will end up in a tie with 10-4 records in the NFC East if Dallas beats Washington and both teams win their final games next week.

Since the clubs would have the same records against each other and the same records in the division and in the conference, it would come down to the number of points the two teams scored against each other.

Since Washington won the first game 14-7, Dallas must try to win this one by eight or more points.

That could lead to such things as Washington trailing by six points and killing the clock. Teams have been accused of settling for ties before but Washington could "settle" for a close loss and win the title.

Tom Landry, the Dallas coach, said, "I'm really not even thinking about the point difference. It could dictate some decision late in the game but if we worry about the point spread, that's the worst thing we could do. We just hope to win and be ahead by seven or more when it's all over."

George Allen, the Washington coach, said, "to me, all that talk about points is he worst thing you can get involved in. If you go into a game that way, you won't play aggressive football."

The oddsmakers are listing Dallas a 4½ point favorite, probably because of the Redskins' shaky quarterback situation. Both Sonny Jurgensen and Billy Kilmer are limping and Kilmer was hospitalized with stomach cramps earlier in the week. Jurgensen came off the bench in the final seven minutes to beat the N.Y. Giants last week after Kilmer limped off but Jurgy's ankle is ailing, too.

Allen has indicated he'll be happy to kick a field goal and lose by six if he trails by nine in the last minute but he adds, "we're going into this game to win. That would solve all our problems."

Things will even be more complicated if Dallas wins by exactly seven points.

If that happens, the crown will be decided by something called "point differential"—the respective places the two teams stand in the di-

Six schools dominate Writers' grid team

CHICAGO (UPI) — Six universities headed by national champion Alabama placed two players each among the 25 collegians named All Americans Saturday by the Football Writers of America.

The No. 1 rated Crimson Tide landed offensive tackle Buddy Brown and linebacker Woodrow Lowe.

Other schools with two players were Michigan, with defensive lineman Dave Gallagher and defensive back Dave Brown; Southern California, with wide receiver Lynn Swann and offensive lineman Booker Brown; No. 4 ranked Notre Dame with tight end Dave Casper and defensive back Mike Townsend; Texas with center Bill Wyman and running back Roosevelt Leaks, and Ohio State with offensive tackle John Hicks and linebacker Randy Gradishar.

The team, announced by Tom McEewen of the Tampa Tribune, president of the FWA. was picked by an eight-man selection committee after preliminary voting by 1,100 members.

Only one sophomore was on the team, Alabama's Lowe. Three juniors were named, Leaks, placekicker Ricky Townsend of Tennessee, and Brown of Michigan.

The offensive team: WR-Lynn Swann, Southern California TE-Dave Casper, Notre Dame OL-Buddy Brown, Alabama OL-Booker Brown, Southern California OL-John Hicks, Ohio state OL-Bill Yoest, North Carolina State C-Bill Wyman, Texas QB-Danny White, Arizona State RB-John Cappelletti, Penn State RB-Kermit Johnson, UCLA RB-Roosevelt Leaks, Texas PK-Ricky Townsend, Tennessee PT-Chuck Ramsey, Wake Forest

The defensive team: D-Tony Cristiani, Miami, Fla. Publicist, Wilt can't get along

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Ans Dilley, publicist for the American Basketball Association's San Diego Conquistadors, has resigned effective Dec. 31, general manager Alex Groza said Thursday.

Dilley said he was unable to get along with coach Wilt Chamberlain.

"He's going around the country saying how lousy the San Diego media is," Dilley said. "When I try to make an appointment for someone, Wilt's always too busy. The guy is just impossible to work with, and since I'm not having any success at doing my job, there's no point in taking money under false pretenses.

Dallas must beat 'Skins by 8 points

vision in points scored and points allowed.

What that would mean is that in the final games (Washington hosts Philadelphia and Dallas is at St. Louis) both teams would be trying to run up the score.

Allen has been criticized in the past for calling time out in the final minute to score a rub-it-in touchdown but no one could fault him for doing it in that situation because it could mean the title. Imagine a team leading 28-0 and calling time out to score again.

At the present time, Dallas is first in points scored and Washington is fourth while Washington is first in points allowed and Dallas is second— so Dallas has a slight edge.

Incidentally, if the teams should tie in the points category in both the division and all the league games, then it would finally come down to a coin flip.

Also, there's the wild card possibility, too. Atlanta is 8-4 now and could wind up tied with the second place team in the NFC East. Then that "point differential" system in the conference would decide things —and Atlanta has a slight edge.

Confused? If you're not, you're probably weren't paying close enough attention.

And we haven't even bothered to mention the infamous AFC Central division where three teams—Pittsburgh, Cleveland and Cincinnati—are tied for first place with two weeks left.

The Cleveland at Cincinnati contest will help clear up the muddled situation in that division. Cleveland can eliminate the Bengals with a victory since they beat Cincinnati in the first game. The Browns, though, will be still alive if they lose—but just barely.

Five of the eight playoff berths are still up for grabs. Only Minnesota, Miami and Los Angeles have already clinched. While Washington, Dallas and Atlanta are the three teams in contention for the last two NFC berths, seven AFC teams are still alive in the battle for the final three AFC berths.

In Sunday's other games involving teams with a shot at the playoffs, St. Louis is at Atlanta, Houston is at Pittsburgh, New England is at Buffalo and Denver is at San Diego. Miami will attempt to set a two-year record with its 26th victory in that span when it goes to Baltimore.

In the meaningless games involving teams already eliminated, the New York Jets are at Philadelphia, San Francisco is at New Orleans and Chicago is at Detroit.

Denver can break jinx in San Diego

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — The Denver Broncos face their first "must" game in history Sunday when they meet the San Diego Chargers with two things going against them.

A Bronco loss would eliminate the team from the American Football Conference Western Division race no matter who wins Saturday's Oakland-Kansas City game.

Quarterback Charley Johnson, who leads the conference in touchdown passes and passing yardage, suffered a bruised thigh against Dallas last week and was listed as questionable for the Chargers game. Steve Ramsey, who has completed four of nine passes on the season, is in reserve.

The second problem facing the Broncos is they have not won in San Diego since 1962, the only year they had a .500 season, until this year.

The Chargers, with a 2-9-1 record, have appeared to be just playing out the season, but coach Ron Waller wants a victory to improve his chances for employment next season.

John Unitas, beset by arm and knee problems, could start at quarterback if he feels ready. Otherwise, Waller said he was considering starting rookie Dan Fouts. Wayne Clark has been directing the razzle-dazzle, but punchless offense since Waller took over for Harland Svare.

MARC TARDIFF
. . . Sharks' star

Marc Tardif has it tough in California

LOS ANGELES — His name is on tthe Stanley Cup, not once but twice. He speaks French better than English but now finds himself in a place where the natives hardly speak either, and the closest thing to a popular French restaurant is Jacques en le Box on the corner.

He plays hockey for a living but he don't need mukluks to get to the arena, only a freeway map.

"This is very tough," says Marc Tardif, the Los Angeles Shark's left-winger. "We don't know many people here. I've got troubles with my English too, but I think in a couple of months I'll be all right."

For Tardif, the move from Montreal to Los Angeles might cause linguistic, but certainly not financial problems. The Sharks signed Tardif to a three-year contract that is estimated to call for $100,000 per year.

"You have to go where the money is," he says. "I was underpaid in Montreal. If they offer you so much money and you don't take it, you can just leave it."

Lacking a big name, the Sharks have billed Tardif as a superstar who would score 50 goals in his first WHA season.

In three full seasons and part of a fourth with the Candiens, Marc scored 3, 19, 31 and 25 goals. The Canadiens won the Stanley Cup last season and two years before that, so his name is engraved forever on that glorious silver birdbath.

While Los Angeles fans waited expectantly for the smooth-skating Frenchman to ring the red-light, Tardif had to settle for a handful of assists and no goals. It wasn't until his tenth contest that Tardif tallied his first goal for the Sharks. In the meantime, the Los Angeles entry was 3-7 and going nowhere fast.

Slowly Tardif, who didn't report to camp until Oct. 1 when his Montreal contract ended, started ringing the bell. After 26 games he had 11 goals including two in Chicago and another pair against Winnipeg at the Sports Arena.

Passenger Tire Guarantee

If you do not receive the number of miles specified because of your tire becoming unserviceable due to (1) defects. (2) normal road hazards. or (3) tread wear-out.

We will: At our option, exchange it for a new tire or give you a refund charging in either case only the proportion of the then current selling price plus Federal Excise tax that represents mileage used. If the tire is unserviceable due to any of the above causes before 10% of the guaranteed mileage is received, the replacement or refund will be made with no charge for mileage received.

Nail punctures will be repaired at no charge. Guarantee applies to tires on vehicles used for private family purposes.

Two steel belts combined with two plies of polyester cord puts the tread flat against the road to help reduce tire squirm and wiggle . . . resulting in good traction and long mileage. And polyester means a smooth, comfortable ride, too.

Ralston says U.S. netters will be back

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Dennis Ralston has already forgotten the massacre of Cleveland.

The U.S. Davis Cup team, he says confidently, will be back in 1974.

"I'm very enthused about our chances," said the captain and coach of America's Davis Cup contingent. "I think we have a darn good chance to win it all next year."

Strong words after what happened to Stan Smith and company against the rackets of Rod Laver and John Newcombe at Cleveland last weekend. Australia shut out the United States 5-0.

"I don't think the defeat was really as bad as it looked," insisted Ralston. "If we could have won those close matches on the first day, I definitely think the final results would have been different.

"But we got way down after losing on the opening day and you just can't do that against a tremendous team like the Australians we faced."

Ralston, 31, named a nine-man squad during the past week for 1974 and it included Jimmy Conners, who did not play on the team this year.

In the past, Ralston and Connors haven't been exactly the best of friends

"I hope we'll have Jimmy next year," the U.S. captain declared, "and I understand he wants to play for us. I don't have any animosity toward him and I don't think he has any toward me He would be a very sttrong addition."

Against the veteran team of Laver and Newcombe, Ralston needs all the help he can get.

"I know people think time is on our side because of the Australians' age," the American coach said, "but this is a great Australian team and one more year isn't going to make much ifference. They won't be that much older. They'll be just as tough"

Ralston took over the U.S. team in 1968 and guided it to five consecutive Davis Cup triumphs—before Cleveland.

Of course, old pros Laver and Newcombe weren't available to the Austtrailians until tthis year.

"You don't like to lose," admitted the former University of Southern California tennis star, "but I think the Davis Cup is more meaningful now that Australia can use its best players.

"The Australians don't want to lose the Cup either They want to keep it to revitalize tennis in their counttry."

Ralston was asked who he considered the best tennis player in the world.

"That's a hard question," he replied, "because there's really no one dominant player any more But I think if I had to answer the question going on this year, I'd say either Stan Smith, John Newcombe or Ilie Nastase.

"If I had to pick one player to win one match, though, I'd pick Stan Smith."

Ralston has sold his home in Bakersfield, Calif., and moved his family to Palm Springs, Calif., where he is director of tennis for the new Sunrise Country Club, a $40 million, 768-unit condominium community now under construction.

Sunrise Country Club will be the site of Davis Cup competition Jan 11-13 between America and either Mexico or Colombia, which will meet next weekend.

Gambling a sure thing in nationwide interest

By DAVID SMOTHERS
UPI Senior Editor

More Americans are betting more money on more gambles today than ever before.

The total amount being wagered is an elusive one but authoritative estimates range from a low of $30-$40 billion to the area of $100 billion annually. In one five-month period in 1972 investigated by the Justice Department it projected $30 billion to $60 billion bet illegally during those months alone.

Legal betting also has soared, with millions of people taking legal flyers in seven state lotteries, at the race tracks, at 112 Off Track Betting parlors in New York, at gambling enclaves such as Las Vegas, and right down to church bingo suppers. Some $3 million a day is bet in this fashion in New York alone. In New York City the illegal "numbers" game runs to $1 billion a year or more on top of that, and no one knows how much New Yorkers bet under the counter with bookies.

To people who bet it probably will come as no surprise that football is where the heaviest illegal action is—pro football, college football, high school football. The action is hot. Some fear gambling could ruin the sport.

These are the general conclusions of a United Press International survey of government agencies, policemen, prosecutors, state and federal agents, gamblers and bookies in major cities across the nation.

These sources reported:

—Legalization has dangled the betting lure before untold numbers of people who would not have known how to get a bet down a few years ago.

Gambling is becoming a way of life in some parts of the country.

Take New York. Gamblers Anonymous there reports a Brooklyn postal worker had never laid a bet in his life until an Off Track Betting (OTB) shop opened in his neighborhood. He got $5,000 into debt, but still rushed past an empty refrigerator and two hungry kids to bet the last $16 in his pocket at the OTB.

There are "Las Vegas nights," with blackjack, poker and dice, at Roman Catholic churches and at synagogues in New York City. Housewives worked as bookies for a $3-million-a-year gambling ring there. A $5 million-a-year gambling and loan shark operation catered primarily to Wall Street brokers and executives.

High rollers

A man who should know, Shannon L. Bybee of the Nevada Gaming Control Board, said, "People are certainly betting more money than they ever have before. I think there are more middle income people who are betting now. The (Las Vegas) Strip used to operate mostly for the high rollers. That is shifting now. More people generally are willing to gamble than they used to be."

GARDENA POKER PARLOR — A loophole in California law allows communities to license poker parlors. In such towns as Gardena, men and women play draw poker (no stud allowed by law).

—Legalized gambling is also a constant bait to cities and states in search of fast cash and yearning to get a piece of presently illegal action.

It has not, with exceptions, altogether proved the bonanza many had hoped. Nevertheless, even Washington, D.C., is considering legalizing the numbers game, which ranks behind football and ahead of horses as the second most lucrative gambling activity.

In New Jersey, there is a push on to install gambling casinos in Atlantic City.

The temptation to make some or all forms of gambling legal has gone national. A federal gambling commission is currently assessing the pros and cons of lawful betting.

A familiar argument for legalization is that if a state or city gets in on gambling, its take will go to a good cause and the crime syndicate emperors of illegal betting will suffer.

Yet, in New York. which must rank as one of the most gambling cities in the nation, Police Sgt. Edward Dee said OTB merely "takes the nuisance bettor away from the bookmaker. Maybe 10 or 20 per cent of his action."

"No tax" lure

Lt. Ray Sommerhoff, vice squad chief of the Dade County (Miami) Public Safety Department, concurred: "People will always bet with the illegal guys —they give better odds and there are no taxes."

Besides your friendly neighborhood bookie will let you have credit.

—The federal government and local agencies, through wide use of wiretaps authorized by the Uniform Crime Act of 1970, is managing to shut down most of the old fashioned betting parlors and interstate layoff headquarters.

In many big cities, bookies are so afraid of the telephone they tell their customers, "Don't call us, we'll call you.'' Federal prosecutors feel confident they are making life increasingly tough for the old line mobsters who get the top skim off practically all the nation's illegal gambling.

Perhaps. But they haven't stopped it.

A spokesman for the Massachusetts attorney general's office said "Most of our raids are the result of months of wiretapping. We knock them off, but the penalties aren't that big and they're back in business."

Rich bookies

Detective George Andrew of the Baltimore, M.D., vice squad said, "A good bookie can make, and probably does, upward of $20,000 a year easy.

"The guys we arrest are mostly top level men and about 98 per cent are convicted. "But, too often, they're slapped with only a $1,000 fine which to them is nothing. They make at least that in a day. The best we can do is keep 'em scared, keep 'em moving, and arrest as many as possible."

—The popular notion that the high rollers go for the horses is false. Football's season may be a relatively short one, but it is the game people bet big on, whether it is played by professionals in their 30s, collegians, or teen-age boys.

Sgt. David Green of the Dade County sheriff's police, said, "Football betting—the country has gone crazy with it. It gets the most money. About one third goes to horses."

A St. Louis bookie confided, "The top sport is football. There's some baseball, but not much. More people know about football and it's only once a week."

Lt. Wayne Posey of the Dallas police estimated $350 million of the $390 million bet in the Dallas-Fort Worth area during the last football season went to football.

$100,000 plungers

"A large number bet a couple of hundred a week," he said. "Some in excess of $100,000 a week. There must be thousands of bettors—everybody from executives to office workers who might go into a bar and put down a few dollars. Better bookies set a minimum of $200 on bets.

"Every bookmaker has to have a line source and there is no line source (for betting odds) in Texas. But at least five line sources come into Dallas — Las Vegas, Minneapolis, Chicago, New Orleans, sometimes Miami and Louisville.

"People who make up the lines have an intelligence network among college and pro football teams. They know when Roger Staubach gets a hangnail and when Calvin Hill and his wife have a fuss.

"One thing we saw during last year's high school playoffs was lines coming out on

Firms must gamble for gambling

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UPI) — Earl Rowen and his three buddies spent six weeks in Europe this fall visiting 11 countries, expenses paid.

It seems like a dream. But Rowen and his friends aren't members of the jet set. They are investigators-auditors for the state Gaming Control Board now conducting the largest background inquiry ever involving Nevada gambling.

Agents are poring over the financial records and business dealings of Bally Distributing Co., of Chicago, Ill. Bally, which wants a Nevada gambling license, is going to pay more than $80,000 to have itself investigated for clearances that there are no ties with the underworld.

Under the somewhat unusual Nevada law, Bally must foot the full bill. Right now it includes paying for the hotel, meals and transportation of the four agents. In addition, the company is paying $400 a day to reimburse the state for the services of the agents.

There are several reasons the Bally investigation is so large. It is the i7th largest company in over-the-counter stock trading; it has a worldwide network of slot machine operations, and there have been allegations some of its officers have unsavory backgrounds.

The background and financial checking will take six months to complete and then, Bally isn't assured it will get a state license.

"You put your money down and take your chances," is the way one state official describes the process. In the past many individuals and companies who have paid thousands of dollars to finance the investigation have come up empty-handed. They didn't get their license because of little secrets the investigators turned up.

The Bally inquiry points up two things—it's costly to get a Nevada gaming license and the checking is thorough.

"I don't think there is a more thorough investigation any place on the background integrity, finances and business associates," says Shannon Bybee, one of the three members of the Gaming Control Board.

"But we don't go around asking neighbors if the person goes to rock concerts or bathes nude in the back yard," says Bybee. "It isn't that kind of an investigation."

Information is sought from police agencies both in this country and in foreign lands. Checks are made with financial institutions, friends, associates, journalists and informers or "tipsters."

Individuals applying for licenses sometimes "don't remember" to list on the application their arrests, financial ventures, questionable friends or hidden bank accounts.

There have been cases where the prospective Nevada gamblers forgot to include their children, marriages, divorces or name changes. One applicant couldn't find his naturalized citizenship papers and state agents turned them up in the investigation. Another complained state investigators found information that had been missed in four audits by the Internal Revenue Service.

When the final report is ready, The Control Board votes. They are full-time state employes who manage the day-today activities of the agency.

The board's recommendation then goes to the five-member Nevada Gaming Commission, a lay board, which makes the final decision whether a license is issued.

Comedian sues, charges pirating

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Bud Abbott, of the popular comedy team of Abbott and Costello, accused an author and publisher Wednesday of pirating the team's best known routine, "Who's On First."

Abbott and three heirs of Lou Costello, who died in 1959, filed suit in Superior Court against Richard Anobile, Darien House publishers and W.W. Norton and Co. to stop the sale of Anobile's book of photos and dialogue titled "Who's On First."

The classic comedy routine was used without his permission, Abbott maintained. It revolves around the confusion engendered by baseball players with names such as Who and What.

Lydia Bach has fast, pleasant way to use brain, firm up body

By JOHN M. LEIGHTY

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Pretty Lydia Bach uses music, yoga and orthopedic principles for revitalizing the body.

She makes firming the flab fun, fast and functional for the elite in New York, where she has "taken over the exercise scene" with a studio opened only two years ago.

"Most people use their brains and not their bodies. They don't really know what's going on with their bodies," says the slim Miss Bach, who looks much younger than her 33 years.

Rather than moaning and groaning with "antiquated exercise" methods, the women in Miss Bach's studio do positional stretches that give immediate benefits.

Music, anything from a chant to rock and roll, is played to help the mind relax while the muscles get a needed workout.

The movements and stretches are also good for men and can improve a person's sex life, says Miss Bach, who has vividly illustrated the exercises in a book, "Awake! Aware! Alive!" (Random House).

"When you care about your body, when it's in shape and you like it, you're much less inhibited," she said of the section on sex exercises. "You know someone else is caring about it."

Some women, Miss Bach says, come to her classes without even knowing how to move the pelvis after 15 years of marriage.

"They don't know it's independent of the body."

She says that in just one exercise, such women can learn what muscles are used to move the pelvis and then all that is needed is a few minutes practice a day.

The exercises also energize and cleanse the body, thus having the effect of making a person want to eat better and avoid junk foods.

A lot of women, especially working ones, Miss Bach says, become tired, flabby, drink a lot of coffee or smoke too many cigarettes and so separate themselves from their body that "the last thing she's going to think about is sex."

"If the body doesn't look good, a woman doesn't want to be seen. It's turn the lights out and get it over with."

Miss Bach says she has a lot of honest talks with the women who frequent her studio, many of whom hold prestige positions in the business world.

"I know for a fact that all of their sex lives have changed."

One husband, said Miss Bach, arrived at her studio to say that his wife's attitude had changed, along with her body, and that it saved their 17-year marriage.

"Their whole thing was energy because she was a tired, tired woman before coming to the studio," said Miss Bach. "The body does become a drain on the brain. They've got to work together."

Miss Bach says her Lotte Berk Studio, named after her teacher, has grown from one to three floors and that men are "begging to get in" but there is no space. She has 12 teachers that give the $10-an-hour sessions to students ranging from age 6 to 63.

The book, says Miss Bach, introduces the method to

RESTORING VITALITY

Three pleasurable exercises to restore vitality are illustrated by Lydia Bach, who uses music, yoga and orthopedic principles for revitalizing the body. Americans across the country who want to get in shape and feel better by only exercising a few minutes a day.

The secret of the fast results, she says, is that each position puts the muscles immediately to work. After learning a position "you just get stronger and stronger with it."

"If you do 30 sit-ups, it takes about 20 to get a feeling of tightness," she explained. "Try the first stomach section in the book and you'll feel the tightness in about 15 seconds.

"The positioning is so good that the stomach muscles have to work immediately. You don't do something to work up to it. You get in the position and the muscles start working right away."

Some of the exercises she says, are "incredible" for conditioning skiers and remove the drudgery of getting in shape.

"What I'm after is to get people in tune with their bodies," Miss Bach says.

Women executives

NEW YORK (UPI) — Women at last are breaking into the open in competition for top executive posts in American business, Handy Associates, Inc., reports. Handy publishes a statistical barometer called the National Executive Mibility Index. Until now female executives have been too few to measure statistically in the index. But in the latest edition, women comprised 4 per cent of the top executive candidates.

Waste worst food problem for India

By M. G. SRINATH

NEW DELHI (UPI) — In food-short India—whose government has had to go shopping in the United States and the Soviet Union to help out—millions of tons of food a year literally go down the rathole.

Experts figure more than 10 million tons a year are lost to pests, poor storage and bad transportation — enough to feed 50 million people for one year.

India so far this year has bought nearly three million tons of food from the United States and accepted a $2 million "food loan" from Russia.

Industrial development Minister Chidambaram Subramaniam said recently, "India is losing a minimum of 10 per cent of foodgrains during storage, and by depredation of insects, rodents, fungi and fire each year. This works out to a minimum of about 10 million tons—a little more than the amount by which we fall short of our needs."

"In other words," Subramaniam said, "some people go hungry, or precious foreign exchange is used to import foodgrains, not because we have not produced enough, but because we have not taken adequate care of the output."

Vast money loss

An official of the Food Corporation of India, which looks after the procurement and distribution of food in the country, said "this 10 per cent loss is not very high in comparison to world standards. But, for a country like India, this food wasted can easily feed 50 million people annually. In terms of hard cash it means a loss of 1,063 million U.S. dollars a year."

India's annual food production has varied from 94 million to 108.4 million tons in the past five years. An estimated 96 million tons is expected this year. This works out to about 1.1 pound per person per day for India's 560 million people.

Nearly 70 per cent of the grain produced in India is kept by the farmers for personal consumption and for next year's sowing. The rest enters organized trade channels for marketing, either private or governmental.

Though India has made important strides in food production, it still is using antiquated post-harvest techniques. It is a common sight to see farmers cutting their crop with sickle and drying them on the roads.

Poor storage

An agricultural scientist said that the storage techniques in rural areas are so old-fashioned nearly 25 per cent of certain grains are lost because of high humidity and temperature which are conducive to rapid multiplication of insects and rodents.

He said the actual loss is greater since insects consume the most nutritious portion of the grains and contaminate them with body fragments and excreta such as uric acid. Moulds which grow on badly stored foodgrains also become active under high moisture and temperature conditions and produce poisonous toxins, he said.

Gambling craze spreads across the nation . . .

United Press photo

GAMBLING IN EAST — Hundreds of Jerseyites turn out to play in the state's first legalized bingo game April 4, 1954. A temptation to make some or all forms of gambling legal has gone national.

high schools. This is terrible."

At least one major college football coach said this season he has had it with the line makers.

Football threatened

Coach Earle Bruce of Iowa State said he got calls at his motel up until a few hours before kickoff trying to find out if he had suspended his starting quarterback for a game with Brigham Young.

"If one thing is going to kill college football, it's the gamblers and I'm not going to help them one bit," Bruce said.

"It has to be dangerous when so much money changes hands on these games. The gamblers are going to ruin college football and they're going to ruin pro football, too, if they're not careful. Maybe they won't ruin the college game, because it's bigger than they are, but they sure aren't helping it."

In 1969, a Senate subcommittee estimated from $20 to $50 billion was being bet illegally each year on horse races, lotteries and sports events. This compared to $5 billion bet legally at the horse tracks.

But more recently the Justice Department provided substantially higher figures. Its organized crime and racketeering section is still analyzing alleged stakes involved in all illegal gambling cases it investigated in a selected five-month period in 1972. William S. Lynch, head of the section, said prosecuted cases dealt with $1.2 billion. He estimated this at between 2 and 4 per cent of the actual total, which projects to $30 to $60 billion for that short period alone. Lynch said of the $1.2 billion that it was "a hard figure... I think it is the best figure ever."

Up, up, up

And each year the gambling total seems to go up. Affluent, uneasy America appears to have an itch to bet, and bet some more.

Gambling U.S. - style takes a multitude of forms.

There is numbers, the ghetto game, bloated by nickels, dimes and dreams. It is estimated some 2 million New Yorkers bet between $1 and $4 million on the numbers. Lottery every day. In Chicago, where numbers is called policy and the game is played somewhat differently, the official police guess is that $100 million changes hands a year.

A loophole in California law allows communities to license poker parlors. So, in such towns as Gardena, elderly men and women ring the tables, playing cautious draw poker (no stud allowed by law) and the take for the six sanctioned clubs in Gardena is $15 million a year. Business is best when the Social Security checks come in.

Even bingo, the sport of nice little old ladies and kindly pastors, is rich action and, authorities say, sometimes syndicate-controlled.

In Florida, the secretary of state's office figures there are 10 million people playing bingo each year in the state, betting an average of $9 a night for an annual total of $90 to $110 million.

Bingo

A bingo industry source said, "My happy guess is that there are 10,000 bingo games operating in Florida." Dade County's Lt. Sommerhoff said, "We have five big bingo halls in this area locally owned, operated and run by elements of organized crime. Each of the five are skimming up to $2,000 a night. And we have a lot of legitimate bingo operations, too. We have a total of 150 bingo halls working."

That gambling is big business is demonstrably an understated cliche. It is a business hundreds of thousands depend on.

In New York City, more than 100,000 men and women are believed to earn part or all of their incomes in the numbers game alone. The parimutuels in Florida provide at least 30,338 jobs. And such figures don't begin to take in the police.

President Nixon has said, "For most large - scale illegal gambling enterprises to continue operations over any extended period of time, the cooperation of corrupt police or local officials is necessary."

To illustrate, the New York State Gambling Commission estimated that, while the net profit on illegal gambling there is $50 million a year, the overhead includes $30 million paid out annually in bribes, payoffs and political contributions.

The Senate subcommittee report said federal prosecutors "uncovered evidence that local numbers operators had almost every member of the vice squad of a major midwestern city on their payroll."

Legal lotteries

Still, the urge continues to make gambling "clean" and presumably in the public interest through legalization. There are some sardonic views of such a prospect.

In Maryland, where they are both legal and illegal lotteries, Assistant Attorney General Nirman Polovy said:

"If anything, the illegal lottery has actually grown because of the legal lottery. It's whetted the appetite of new gamblers who have turned to the illegal game because it's played every day and is generally more fun."

Peter Vaira, head of the Justice Department strike force in Chicago, was bemused by the proposals to install casino gambling in New Jersey.

"If you do that, who do you get to run it" he said. "How do you keep people from stealing? If they brought in you or me to run it, they'd steal us blind. They need pros and where do you get pros?

"You know, if they catch you stealing in Las Vegas they break both your arms."

The Greek

The world of Jimmy "The Greek" Snyder, the Las Vegas-based odds-maker, is close to gospel to many gamblers throughout the country. Take it from Jimmy the Greek, America isn't ready for widespread legalized gambling.

"I'm against legalizing gambling anywhere else (but Nevada), although I'm sure there'll be a state somewhere that's going to want to try it," he said. "It'll be a mistake. A heavily populated community would go crazy."

'We really need a man around here'

PALO ALTO, Calif. (UPI) — Did you know that the president of a fast growing chain of language schools is a woman?

That's not such a big deal these days.

But all the district representatives and the 37 directors of the individual schools are also women. And that, surely, must make the Sullivan Language Schools unique.

"It really just happened by accident," says Karen Mitler, 31, the chain's president.

When the schools first opened in 1970 the president was a man and "we had many men apply for jobs," she said.

"But most of the men wanted to sit behind desks and this is a very people-oriented job," she added.

The men, she said, "didn't work out" because they weren't used to competition from women or didn't want to work for them.

"We also found women were more aggressive because they had to prove themselves," she said while sitting behind a big desk in the firm's headquarters in this university town south of San Francisco.

Mrs. Mitler, married to a psychologist at nearby Stanford University, has a masters degree in language from Michigan State.

"A larger proportion of women get language degrees, and applications for jobs are now running about 3-1 in favor of women," she said.

Mrs. Mitler insists she wouldn't discriminate against a man and "would love to have a man around here" but contends women are better suited for the job.

"Working with our students is really more of a female job. People need to be treated nicely."

The students come from all walks of life and some study language for travel abroad and others in conjunction with their work.

Bing Crosby's wife, Kathryn, a newswoman as well as an actress, studied German so she could cover the Olympic Games. Actor Richard Crenna was taught French in a matter of weeks for his part in the movie, "The Cop," filmed in France with Catherine DeNeuve.

The schools use a system based on the one devised by linguist Marurice Sullivan—at last, a man—when he was charged with training American officers in German for the Nuremberg trials.

The technique breaks each language down to its simplest components and then systematically introduces and reinforces its sounds and structures.

There is no homework and no rote memorization of vocabulary.

The schools' parent company is Behavioral Research Laboratories, Inc.

"Three of the presidents of the five divisions in the corporation are women," .rs. M

"Three of the presidents of the five divisions in the corporation are women," Mrs. Mitler said and repeated: "We really would like to have a man around here."

World of animals

Christmas gift list for favorite pets

By DR. FRANK MILLER

Picking presents for pets presents problems, particularly if the animal "already has everything." Here are some suggestions concerning gifts animals are most likely to apprecite:

Fish: Fin-flexing freedom via a new, larger tank.

Reptilians (as a group): A sun lamp, judiciously used, of course.

Anole chameleon: A broad-leafed plant.

Certain snakes (or other larger reptilians): A large tree branch to clamber on or den-retreat facilities.

Turtles: Dining room facilities — a separate feeding station.

Rodents: AMAZEing additions to their apartments where they can run, roam, snoop, hide and nest. A rat, for example, is likely to become quickly bored with a one room apartment.

Birds: The priority here for most is — space. Cage birds generally are healthiest and happiest with a large flight cage which provides adequate room to exercise. A muchly valued smaller gift for the birds is a natural perch, like a plain, barkless branch of proper diameter.

Parrots and parrot-like birds are especially appreciateive of this — but be prepared to provide such perches on a continuing basis as they will be standing on and chewing on them simultaneously. (The wood here should be the sapless varieties.)

Cats: Tunnel-type toys or even a long, narrow sack are appreciated as, of course, are cat trees, lightweight balls for batting and other toys, including some varieties with catnip.

Dogs: Being oral-oriented animals, they do appreciate a variety of chew toys. For some, the world is a ball and they might even be willing to give up their old favorite for a new offering. Some who don't insist on sleeping on people beds might appreciate a new bed of their own or leather goods, or, lastly, apparel can be considered. Aside from a few poodles who have large wardrobes already, function is more important than fashion.

For all animals who need them: Water and food containers are a practical gift. Keeping your pet fed and watered is a daily essential as is love and attention in whatever degree is appropraite for that particular animal.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Regarding that column the end of last month when you mentioned paprika for brightening up the colors of tropical fish. Perhaps it would be well to specify "SWEET" and "PAPRIKA" . . . Some dummies might inadvertantly use "HOT" paprika! —M.N.

COMMENT: Thank you for your consideration for those fish. My sources indicate paprika is the MILD product of sweet red peppers — the COOL kind. The cayenne, hot type could, indeed, prove too hot for our finny friends to handle.

Bartender convicted of extortion

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A bartender with alleged Mafia connections was convicted of extortion Wednesday for trying to force a rock music group to perform in a Hollywood nightclub.

Mario S. Giamio, 32, was ordered held in county jail pending his sentencing Dec. 26. A companion, Richard Karpel, 32, was acquitted of a similar charge.

The prosecutor said Giamio threatened the rock music group "Lava" with bodily harm if they refused to perform for a week at PJ's, a nightclub on Santa Monica Boulevard.

The leader of the band, Edward Guitierrez, testified Giamio grew quite irritated that the group refused the booking.

"Man, if you don't play," Guitierrez said he was warned, "You are going to be messing with some really heavy people, like from New York or Connecticut."

Take auto home for visit

By MURRAY J. BROWN
UPI Travel Editor

Why not include Detroit in your itinerary if you're planning to tour the United States. Scores of thousands of visitors from abroad to.

Most of Detroit's estimated half million foreign visitors annually are Germans and Japanese, according to Ron Steffan of the Detroit Convention and Visitors Bureau.

"Industrialization apparently turns these people on the same way the Grand Canyon turns on most Americans," he said in a recent interview.

Tops on their agendas are tours of the Big Three automobile plants in the Detroit area where they can watch cars being assembled on the production lines which revolutionized the industry.

Particularly popular with both foreign and American visitors is the GM Tech center which provides an inside look at how the company designs, develops and tests new models.

General Motors, Ford and Chrysler welcome visitors and offer free guided tours of their plants on week days. But, Steffan cautioned, check first since tours are subject to change and sometimes suspended during certain periods.

Open all year, except for New Year's Day, Thanksgiving and Christmas is the Greenfield Village and Henry Ford Museum in nearby Dearborn. One of the major tourist attractions in the United States, it offers an unusual collection of Americana, including about 100 restored centuries-old historic homes, workshops and other buildings from throughout the country. There's no charge.

"Detroit has many attractions," Steffan said. "And we are developing more."

From the cultural standpoint, he said, the world-famous Detroit Institute of Arts "usually has some major event or exhibition on tap."

"For example, the Institute in co-sponsorship with the city of Florence, Italy, this spring will have a Medici art exhibit which will include many works never before seen in this country.

"The exhibition, 'Twilight of the Medici 1670-1743', will includ 450 works from the final years of the Florentine family's reign—paintings, sculpture, drawings, tapestries, furniture and jewelry."

There are museums, including the Fort Wayne Military Museum which is considered the best-preserved pre-Civil War fort in the Midwest; one of the world's outstanding zoos; theater; concerts; recreational areas; horse racing and professional baseball, football, basketball and hockey in season, Steffan said.

For the children, there's the Detroit Science Center, a "storefront" museum that includes 35 exhibits that can be manually operated by visitors; the Children's Zoo on Belle Island where they can feed baby animals in a Mother Goose setting; and boat excursions to an amusement park on Bob-Lo island among other small-fry activities, he said.

"Detroit will have even more to offer via a new Renaissance Center expected to be completed within the next eight-to-ten years," Steffan said. "When finished the center will be one-third larger than Rockefeller Center in New York and four times the size of Peachtree Center in Atlanta."

The center, being built on a 33-acre site along the Detroit River and adjoining the Ford Auditorium and the Cobo Hall Convention Center, will include a 70-story hotel. It will be the tallest building in the state of Michigan when completed in 1976 and will add 1,500 guest rooms to the 4,500 hotel rooms downtown and the 23,000 hotel rooms in the Detroit metropolitan area, Steffan said.

Construction of the hotel and four office towers—the project also includes apartment and other buildings—is already underway.

"A striking feature of the towers will be a massive landscaped podium that will form a pedestrian island over the streets that cross the 14-acre site," Steffan said. "The podium will be two stores high and contain shops, restaurants and entertainment facilities."

Detroit is easily reachable via major highways, including Interstate I-75, I-94 and I-96. More than a dozen U. S. and foreign airlines provide regular air services.

Spassky alive, playing brightly

By SHELBY LYMAN

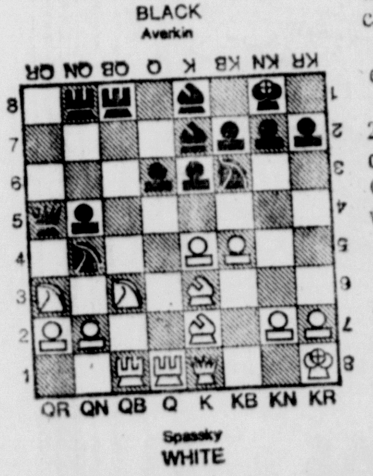
After lulling his followers into despair and sleep by his hymdrum play since his Reykjavik fiasco, Boris Spassky is suddenly playing like his old self, if not better.

He has just won one of the strongest tournaments in the history of chess, the 1973 U.S.S.R. Championship. Three ex-world champions — Smyslov, Tal, and Petrosian — participated, plus Korchnoi, Polugaevsky, and Karpov, who are official candidates for the role of challenger to the world title as well as Petrosian and Spassky. Apparently Bobby Fischer himself is jubilant at Spassky's performance and has expressed his desire for a rematch.

Not since the heyday of Michael Tal has the chess world seen a player with the white pieces so crushingly deal with the Sicilian Defense (1. P-Kr, P-QB4) as has Spassky in this Russian championship.

The clearest example of his powerful play is his game with Averkin early in the tournament.

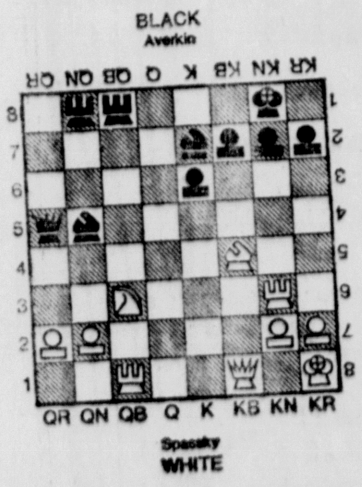
(Diagram 1)



Spassky initiates favorable exchanges.

Our first diagram shows the crucial position after black's 18th move. Spassky now initiated a series of exchanges with his 19th move, P-K5. After 25) R-N3, the position in our second diagram was reached.

(Diagram 2)

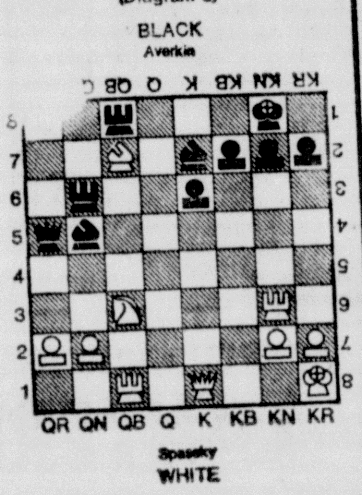


All rook moves lose material for black.

Black, who is vulnerable on the king side, will lose material wherever he moves his attacked rook, which is on the queen-side.

Averkin elected to play 25 . . . . R-N3 and Spassky artfully refuted that move with 26. B-B7, as in our third diagram.

(Diagram 3)



Black must lose the exchange.

Whatever black does, he must lose a rook for his opponent's bishop. The point is, of course, that 26 . . . . RxB is refuted by 27. Q-K5, which threatens the loose rook and checkmate.

Other rook moves are equally futile.

I.e., I. 25 . . . . R-R1, and 26. Q-K5 will win the knight; or II. 25 . . . R-N2, and 26. Q-K5 followed by P-QR4 will win the pinned bishop.

Once white has won the "exchange", the rest of the game is mop-up action.

This game is a lesson in combining mating threats with threats on undefended pieces.

Bravo, Boris Spassky!

Lower auto insurance fees sought

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (UPI) — Auto insurance rates should be lowered because of safer speed limits and the reduction in weekend traffic brought on by the energy crisis, two Connecticut consumer groups said Sunday.

The Connecticut Citizen Research Group (CCRG) and its parent organization, the Connecticut Citizen Action Group, said the gasoline shortage should reduce both the frequency and severity of highway accidents. They estimated the savings to consumers at several billions of dollars.

"It is vital that insurance commissioners act so that the impact of the energy crisis on auto accidents becomes an important break for the consumer rather than a boondoggle for the insurance industry," said Marc Caplan, CCRG director.

Man has town up for sale

CANTWELL, Alaska (UPI) — For the person who has everything, how about an Alaskan town situated on 242 acres?

The entire town of Cantwell, with the exception of the railroad station and post office plus a few homes, is for sale. Situated in the shadow of Mt. McKinley, the highest peak in North America, Cantwell comes complete with a restaurant, motel, two gas stations and a ready made population of 200.

Herman Cotter Jr. put the town on the market because he wants to move 205 miles south to Anchorage. He's asking $750,000.

Men's wear

Options open up on fashion front

By WALTER LOGAN

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mort Gordon is a big strapping man who might wear an Ivy League suit one day, an elegant Italian suit the next, something far out the next and blue jeans on weekends. He's exercising his options and thinks more men should do the same.

Gordon is vice president and publisher of Men's Wear, a magazine oriented chiefly to the clothing trade, and more recently of Men's Wear (MR), a quarterly oriented chiefly to the people who buy the clothes. MR will come out only twice in 1974 but after that is four times a year.

He moves in exalted clothing circles, back slapping manufacturers and vice versa, hobnobbing with leading designers and galloping around the country from one clothing convention to another. And so naturally he knows quite a lot about clothes.

MR is his brainchild and the first issue hit the stands recently. The purpose, he explains, is not to tell men what to wear but to show them their options. A man doesn't have to be anything definite any more—Brooks Brothers, Seventh Avenue or even Avant Garde. He can be one or all or mix things up to suit his fancy.

"As far as suits are concerned, there are not major silhouette changes this year," he said. "It is the wide lapel, two button, notched lapel, single vent. The interest is in fabrication, and while you have the classic feeling of flannels, tweeds, pinstripes, you have in addition fabrications that are influenced by sports and leisure wear.

"It depends on the age and life style. There are denims, corduroys, knits to a certain extent, gabardine, converts, unusual colors such as salmon, with some green coming in, the rust shades. Not too traditional. Even the gray flannel is different it is lighter in shade.

"There are details as in sports clothing—stitches on the lapel, for example, for snap and sparkle. The emphasis is on color, pattern, detail. Certainly men have a growing tendency to wear more sports jackets to the office and this is showing in the suits themselves, the sports details.

"As a matter of fact sports jackets in America outsold suits in 1973 for the first time in history, something like 18.2 million sport jackets and 18.1 million suits. Some people even think the suit is in jeopardy, but I don't think so. There is no substitute for a suit.

"If we ever go on a four day week a man is going to carry that leisure influence to the office. Which is why there is a strong tendency toward a semi-constructed suit these days—a suit with has padding and the like so a man will be as comfortable at the office as he was on the weekend."

Gordon made a few other points on fall and winter trends:

Dress shirts are neater, with more white grounds and less gaudy jump out and sock 'em patterns. There is a feeling for the button down, oxford shirt, and for shirt with a barrel cuff rather than French cuffs since a lot of guys go home at night and slip into a sweater and don't want to struggle with complicated cuffs.

The design of neckties is dictated by the clothing and shirts, and as the others get neater, a man uses his tie to make a bold fashion statement. Prints are getting to be the most popular thing in ties.

As for pants, there is a definite tendency toward a slimmer slilhouette, with a narrower knee and smaller bottoms. Even the youth market is getting back to the narrow leg. Flare isn't dead but pants are narrower and less gaudy. There is more emphasis on detail—watch pockets, D-rings, elastic waistbands. Something to call attention to the waist.

As for shoes, the excessive high heel has had it and there is a return to classics, no more of the huge clunky thing. Hosiery is showing bolder patterns with plainer suits. Underwear? The colorful European brief is doing very, very well. The underwear explosion is very real

Silver lining in dark clouds is worth more now

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — There may be a silver lining worth as much as half a billion dollars behind the current economic dark clouds, according to a coin dealer.

James A. Mulgrew, president of the American Coin Exchange, admits to being "a little startled at the growth" of trading in silver coins of the United States, coins containing real silver.

These were the coins minted before 1964, now available in bagsful with a face value of $1,000 and purchased by investors as a hedge against devaluation or monetary collapse.

Mulgrew estimates a quarter-billion dollars worth of coins were traded last year. This year, he said at his Beverly Hills office, the total easily could reach half a billion dollars.

"And if the trend continues— and we don't see it slowing— we'll be looking at about two-thirds of a billion dollars in coin sales next year."

The idea of investing in bags of silver coins began in California but since has spread nationwide and become a trickle in international trading as well, according to Mulgrew.

Mulgrew's exchange was one of the first and now has offices in Atlanta, Miami and Cleveland in addition to the trading floor at his headquarters.

Though the face value of the coins in a bag is a thousand dollars—and the bag therefore will never be worth less than this—the silver content makes it considerably more valuable. A bag of coins contains about 55 pounds of real silver.

"Silver has tracked gold in rising value in recent years and today the bags trade for around $2,000 each depending upon market conditions," Mulgrew said. His exchange makes a price "fixing" for a bag twice daily.

Many customers buy on margin, putting up only part of the purchase price and leaving their bags on storage at the exchange.

The exchange recently announced it also would offer silver bullion but Mulgrew feels this is not as good an investment as the coins because you can always use the coins as a buying measure.

In addition to the silver coins, the exchange also sells gold coins to collectors including the Double Eagle U.S. $20 gold piece and coins of Mexico, Russia, Peru and the United Kingdom.

Reagan: energy crisis blessing in disguise?

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The energy shortage is a great opportunity and may be good for the United States, Gov. Ronald Reagan said recently.

Reagan spoke to newsmen on his return from a tour of Asian nations as President Nixon's special trade representative.

"I think this energy crisis can be one of the greatest opportunities we've ever had," he said. "I'm an eternal optimist on this.

"I think this can force us into new technology that so far we have neglected. We knew it was there, but we neglected it because there was no pressure for it," Reagan said.

The result, he said, could be "more self sufficiency for the United States.

Reagan's Asian tour, in a presidential jet, was criticized by his political opponents as a waste of fuel at this time. Reagan has defended it as a necessary step to more profitable trade with Asia, much of which flows through California.

TRADING TALENTS — Retired furniture mover Kenneth Barfield does gardening work as part of an exchange program in San Diego where senior citizens trade their talents, both to keep active and to hold down the cost of living.

Senior citizens share time, talent

By RAY MEANS

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI) — Senior citizens in San Diego are trading their talents, both to keep active and to hold down the cost of living.

The system, coordinated by the city's human resources department, is called the "Help Bank." A senior citizen in need of someone with a special skill contacts the department, and in place of paying, offers his own skill to help someone else.

"With its heavy retirement population, San Diego is in great need of a service like this," said Alan Kaplan, a social services graduate of San Diego State University who started the program last year.

"Many elderly people on fixed income just need a little help to get them over an illness and can't afford the $30 a day for professional help. I, a retired nurse, may need help with some quilting."

About 40 different skills are now offered through the Help Bank.

Another example is retired furniture mover Kenneth Barfield, 71. Until a year ago he was still active in his trade, but he decided to retire and was in good condition financially.

Nevertheless, when Mrs. Pat Moffitt called for gardening help he responded. She, in turn, will help someone else, and that's fine with Barfield and his wife.

"We don't need any help ourselves," Mrs. Barfield said. "But we like to do for others who need it."

Usually a person will exchange his services for those of another, such as household repairs for typing, or bridge lessons for bookkeeping.

Mrs. Elizabeth D'Aura, despite her 71 years, is another volunteer expecting nothing in return.

"It seems like a good way to help and to meet congenial people," she said, "so I signed up to give help with transportation and to read to people."

Because of legal problems, coordination of the program has been tightened, taking away some of the personalization. Mrs. Evelyn Herrmann, chief of senior citizens assistance section of the Human Resources Department, said they now have to recommend three or four qualified persons for exchanges instead of just one as in the past.

"This limits the city's liability," she said.

After a year and a half the program's success is still debatable. For the most part, when a person gets the job done, that's it. New people and new problems are needed constantly for an ongoing effort.

Kaplan started at San Diego State and involved the students as well as senior citizens and sees no reason it should stop there.

"We could go through the whole community with a huge let's help each other program," he said.

"Lots of students need some typing done, and many retired secretaries need their screen door fixed. There are many senior citizens who are natives of foreign countries and can really help a student in a foreign language in return for a few shopping trips."

Friendship, usefulness and a job done with no money involved are the ingredients. The idea is almost as old as time, but in a modern world it still has its place.

Fines help schools

Money collected as fines for violations of fish and game laws in Nebraska goes to county school funds of the county in which the violations occur.

Kissinger still using limousine

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a minor revolution resulting from the energy crisis only one of 11 cabinet officers—Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger—is still using a Cadillac limousine.

Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger stopped using his limousine Friday and now rides to work in smaller chauffeur driven cars from the Pentagon motor pool.

When UPI tried to quiz Labor Secretary Peter J. Brennan's secretary about her boss' limousine, Brennan came on the telephone himself and said he now drives to work in his own car and sometimes makes the trip by carpool. "Do you want to buy a limousine?" he asked.

Hawaii gets workers from welfare rolls

HONOLULU (UPI) — Welfare recipients in Hawaii are disproving the idea that all persons on welfare are lazy freeloaders.

Hundreds of volunteers from the state welfare rolls have answered a plea for help from the Hawaiian Department of Social Services and Housing (DSSH) through its public welfare division.

Though welfare costs have risen more than seven times in the past 10 years, from $12.2 million a year to $102.6 million, the DSSH has come up with a program to expand services, save money and help clients escape from welfare dependency.

And it is assistance from persons on welfare that's making it possible. They are people who responded to a flyer from Elaine Tamshiro, volunteer services program administrator for the DSSH's Welfare Division, enclosed with mailed food stamp certification cards.

"The flyer told welfare clients that if they found time hanging heavy and would like to get involved in something, the DSSH needed them," Mrs. Tamashior said.

"We always had some clients helping the department on a voluntary basis," she said, "but the program didn't really snowball until those flyers went out in March."

The response to Mrs. Tamashiro's appeal was overwhelming.

"I didn't know what to expect when I sent them out," she said, "but then the phones started ringing and haven't stopped since. I got 50 calls a day and immediately put some volunteers to work fielding and directing the calls."

No Pay

The volunteers, who receive reimbursement only for transportation costs, are used as clerical aides, receptionists, child care aides, translators, interpreters and groundkeepers. They visit senior citizens and act as big brothers or sisters to children who need them.

"Soon we had more volunteers than we had positions," Mrs. Tamashiro said. "In the past five months, they have given more than 13,000 hours to public welfare service.

"If we had to pay for this, it would cost the state more than $32,000 in salaries alone."

Mrs. Tamashiro emphasizes that while the volunteers have in fact saved the state money, the worth of their own efforts for themselves cannot be measured in dollar signs. She has found that the volunteer experience gives the much criticized welfare recipient a "sense of self worth."

"Many of them have a failure syndrome," she said. "They have never succeeded in anything and are often the victims of community hostility. Then they have this opportunity to help someone else. They see that they can do something of value. Their success here spurs them on to the next step, which may be further training or an actual job."

The paid staff employes of the DSSH have been delighted with the help to relieve their work load, and have made extra efforts to help train the volunteers.

"The volunteer does not replace the staff member," Mrs. Tamashiro said, "but supplements and complements the services of the paid staff."

Although the program has attracted men and women of all ages, the bulk of volunteers are women in their 30s and 40s who want to get a job while their growing children are in school.

"With their confidence restored and with some training behind them, many welfare clients are ready to go out into the community for jobs and are eager to do so," Mrs. Tamashiro said.

DSSH director Myron Thompson refers to the volunteers as "history makers." The "growth of public welfare to massive numbers has often produced a vacuum between the deliverer and the needy," Thompson said. "Volunteer help has emerged as that special bridge between the troubled and the restored."

Butz gives farmers assurance

CHICAGO (UPI) — Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz has assured farmers the Nixon administration is doing everything possible to make sure that no farmer runs out of fuel for his tractor and other agriculture implements.

"We're doing our best to see that farmers have enough fuel to plant and harvest without interruption," Butz told a news conference recently before addressing a luncheon audience at the Nation 4-H Congress.

Butz said the nation's farmers have been assigned a top priority, coming immediately after the first two priorities of "fuel needed to manufacture fuel" and fuel for public transportation.

He said that during last summer's gasoline shortage, his department heard of only one man who was unable to get fuel for his farm equipment.

"That was a man in Iowa, and when we sent a man down there to talk to his supplier, we found out it was because he didn't pay his bill for last year's gas," Butz said.

Butz praised most farmers as being "basically conservative," and said the "erosion of confidence" in the President was not as great among farmers as among urban voters.

"Farmers are basically conservative," Butz said. "Seventy-one per cent voted for Nixon and I think they believe his strength is still here."

Bar's reviving hitchin' post and free oats

MOAB, Utah (UPI) — The Silver Dollar Bar, because of the energy crisis, is reviving the old hitchin' post with free oats for horses.

Bar owner Frank A. Woodruff, noting it's "been a whole long time" since a western saloon had provisions for horses, said he expected customers would take to the saddle weekends when gasoline stations shut down.

"You'd be surprised how many people around here feed them old hay burners," he said.

'New city' beckons local musician

NO HOMECOMING—Oregon Symphony Orchestra conductor Lawrence Smith and his wife, Joh, who often appear and record together, practice a piano duet at their home in Portland. Smith, who as a young piano student won prizes and praise with the Portland Junior Symphony before leaving the city 14 years ago, is happy to be back in Portland but doesn't view his return as a homecoming. He said the city has changed so much "it's like moving to a new city."

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — When Lawrence Smith came back to his home town of Portland as conductor of the Oregon Symphony Orchestra it could have been a classic tale of the struggling young artist discouraged at home, making it big and returning in triumph.

There are a couple of things in the classic story that don't quite fit Larry Smith, however,

For one, when Smith, now 37, left Portland 14 years ago he had won nearly every major music prize in the area and was being encouraged toward a music career by most knowledgeable local musicians. For another, he planned a career in mathematics.

Smith did come home to triumph this September.

Through last season, the Oregon Symphony was in some disarray. Controversial conductor Jacques Singer had been fired the previous season and the orchestra struggled through 1972-73 with guest conductors— including Smith twice—and uncertain finances.

This year the off-stage discord has turned to harmony both off stage and on and every seat for every concert of the regular season had been sold by early fall.

Smith's road home was a circuitous one.

As a young piano student in Portland he played with the Portland Junior Symphony, winning prizes and praise.

He didn't consider music as a career, however, and was graduated from Portland State University with a degree in mathematics. He then went to New York to do graduate work in mathematics at New York University.

He continued to study piano and his teacher began referring him to musical jobs—"accompanying violinists and playing for Bar Mitzvahs and I began to realize that it was possible to make a living in New York as a musician," Smith said.

About that time, at a concert at Carnegie Hall, Smith met Joy Pottle, a child prodigy and concert pianist from Los Angeles. They were soon married.

Smith got his mathematics degree, then joined his wife at Mannes College of Music. While both earned music degrees there, he continued work as a freelance pianist.

In 1963 he went to Boston University to teach and it was there he first thought of conducting. Accompanying a violinist for a Boston Symphony audition, Smith was invited to become assistant to conductor Erich Leinsdorf. "Being around a major symphony orchestra stimulated my desire to conduct," Smith said.

He later spent three years as assistant conductor of the Metropolitan Opera and was con ductor of the Austin, Tex., Symphony before moving here.

Meanwhile, Smith continued his concert career as did his wife. They often appear and record together.

Smith said he is happy to be back in Portland but, "It's not like coming home." He said the city had changed so much "it's like moving to a new city."

Smith described work with the Portland musicians—who are only part time symphony musicians and mostly full time music teachers—as rewarding.

The symphony has 102 practices and concerts in its 32-week season. "It's tough on them," Smith said. "If they had the time to practice they would be of the same quality as any of the major symphonies. They're not playing for the money but for the love of music and they play fantastically well."

He hopes to see the Portland orchestra through to major symphony status—meaning a budget of more than $1 million a year—which he expects to come within the next five years. "If we can have a major league basketball team (Portland is a National Basketball Association member), we can have a major league symphony," he said.

Smith also hopes to continue his career as a concert pianist. "I feel it is necessary to keep playing the piano," he said. "When you're playing you're producing the music yourself.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Someone you'll be in contact with today has it in for you. It will take a cool head and sound judgment to handle this guy effectively.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You could have some problems today about money matters — or who owes what to whom. If you have an old obligation, try to work it out amicably.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) What you have planned for today and what your mate would like to do will have you pulling in opposite directions. Try to reach an agreement.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you permit it, someone is going to try to pawn off some responsibilities on you today. Be firm in your refusal to be used.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You may find yourself involved socially today with acquaintances who'll give you a pain the neck. Screen commitments before accepting.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Someone you have an obligation to is wondering why you haven't met it. If you want to keep this relationship intact, talk things over face-to-face.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Though you enjoy a good discussion now and then, be careful whom you debate today. It could easily get out of hand.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) This is not a good day for you and your mate to work on your budget. Each will feel money is being spent foolishly by the other.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't try to make important decisions today. You'll be too easily influenced by factors that don't reveal the true picture.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) It will not be a wise move today to try to do something around the house a skillled professinal should be doing.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You have a tendency today to overindulge yourself, particularly if you're having a good time. Be temperate — think of tomorrow.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) For the next few days it would be wise not to overspend on household or family needs. Your budget can't handle the strain.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You get along with people better earlier in the day. Toward later afternoon patience. Don't schedule anything for then.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Don't discuss confidential family matters too freely. A prying friend will tell of the skeletons in your closet.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Evaluate new projects considered today from the standpoint of added obligations. Know what you're getting into.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Don't be overly generous in lending money or possessions to one you don't know too well at this time.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Try not to be indecisive regarding important issues. If you are, one of stronger will is going to do your thinking for you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) More responsibility will fall on your shoulders today than the other guy's, in an area where you share a joint interest.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) A friend that you have quite a bit of faith in is likely to be a source of disappointment for you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your problems at work will get more frustrating as the day wears on. Expect some setbacks; then you won't be caught off-guard.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) It's not a day to treat responsibilities lightly. If you think you can, you'll later learn you used very poor judgment.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be a little more security-minded about your possessions than usual. Don't deal with these you can't trust completely.

What a way to be taken

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — When Howard Glassman, a dental student, woke up at 3 a.m. Thursday he saw a beautiful young Oriental woman standing near his bed.

"Shh," she whispered, putting her finger to her lips. "I've just been with your roommate. Where's the front door?"

Glassman smiled and gestured towards the front door.

The girl, dressed in leotards and a gray coat, tiptoed to his bedside, gave him a friendly kiss and left.

Later, Glassman checked with his roommate, Fred Lamb 23, and found that Lamb knew nothing about the beautiful visitor. He also found that a checkbook and $15 in cash were missing.

More like history class than court

BECKLEY, W. Va. (UPI) — When a Beckley man stood to plead guilty to a forgery charge here this week it sounded more like a history class than a session of court.

The suspect was Jesse James John Henry Poindexter.

There was no indication whether Poindexter was related to either the Missouri outlaw or the famed steel-driver.

Nader unit warns of lead poisoning from candles

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Americans planning to burn candles at Christmas or in place of electricity during the energy pinch may run the risk of lead poisoning, according to a Ralph Nader research team.

Nader's Health Research Group asked the government's Consumer Product Safety Commission to ban from production and remove from store shelves millions of candles which it said spew lead fumes and particles when burned.

Dr. Sidney Wolfe, director of the research group, said the lead comes from a wire around which the wick is wound. The soft lead burns along with the wick, he said, presenting a particular danger to children who are especially susceptible to lead poisoning.

The commission said it would assign investigators to check out the candles and begin an immediate testing program.

Wolfe said many brands are involved, but his test centered on five candles, all of which contain "dangerous concentrations of lead." He identified the five as a small yellow candle and a large round white candle in a decorated container, both made by the Hallmark Card Co.; a flat shaped candle for food warming made by Corning Ware; a red decorative candle in glass sold under the name "Scent a Lite Pine" and made by Emkay; and a small blue candle for food warming made by Lenox.

Wolfe said there is danger both from lead fumes in the air-particularly in small rooms or apartments— and from lead particles "which form into tiny flecks which are easily transferable from hand to mouth by adults or children."

Wolfe urged consumers to check candles for the lead wire, which is easily visible at the top of the wick, and to discard any which fit the description.

Variety of choices

Bibles ideal Christmas gifts

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

It's hard to think of a more appropriate Christmas gift—for a relative, a friend, or yourself — than a new Bible in a modern English translation.

To be sure, nearly everyone "already has a Bible" of some sort, even if it's just an old King James or Douai-Rheims version that's been old King James or Douai-Rheims version that's been gathering dust for years.

To read the Scriptures in any of these translations—which speak in our kind of English rather than that spoken in the 16th Century—is an exciting experience. For the first time, you may feel that Moses or Isaiah or Paul or Jesus is speaking directly to you, about your problems, in clear, straightforward terms that are relevant to life here and now.

Readability counts

In some of the new versions, this clarity of meaning is achieved with some sacrifice of literary beauty. No one would contend that "Good News for Modern Man," the Today's English Version of the New Testament produced by the American Bible Society, is any match, purely as literature, for the majestic cadences of the old King James Version.

But "Good News" is immensely readable—as attested by the fact that it has become the best-selling book of all time, with 35 million copies purchased since it appeared in 1966.

Another easy-to-read translation, which is long on clarity though short on literary style, is "The Living Bible," which also has sold millions of copies since first published in 1971. Prepared by a layman, Kenneth N. Taylor, who found his children could not understand family devotions conducted with the King James Bible, The Living Bible really is a paraphrase rather than an exact translation of the original Hebrew and Greek of the scriptures. Although Taylor's paraphrasing often succeeds in rendering an obscure Biblical text clear and meaningful to contemporary readers, there are times when it also reflects his own theological views, which he has defined as those of a "rigidly evangelical" Protestant.

The New American Bible, published in 1970 under the auspices of the Catholic Biblical Association, also is easy to read and understand, and based on impeccable scholarship. Unfortunately, its English is plodding.

Latest updating

The New International Version, just out, is the work of about 100 Protestant translators of conservative bent and no great literary skill. It might be described as an updating of the King James for persons who fear that other modern translations may subvert fundamentalist theology.

The best-known and most widely-accepted modern English translation is the Revised Standard Version, produced by American Protestant scholars and in use for more than 20 years. It tries to maintain the sentence structure—and therefore the beauty—of the King James, while substituting contemporary for archaic English words. Its principal disadvantage, as a Christmas gift, is that it is the one new Bible that a person is most likely to have already.

My personal nominations as the best choices for Christmas giving—or for reading—are the Jerusalem Bible and the New English Bible.

The Jerusalem Bible is an English re-translation of a text produced in the 1960s by French Catholic scholars. It is held in high esteem by Biblical experts of all faiths, and its literary style, while somewhat uneven, is for the most part very good. This is due in part to the fact that the late J.R.R. Tolkien, the great English author of the "Lord of the Ring" series, was one of the stylists who polished the language of the Jerusalem Bible.

Grace and accuracy

Still better—in my opinion the best of all modern translations —is the New English Bible, published in 1970 by scholars of Oxford and Cambridge Universities. Not only is it impeccably accurate in its rendition of the original texts, it also has a grace of language which befits the transmission of sublime thoughts and eternal truths. Not since the King James has there been an English Bible of such superb literary quality. Again, its elegance of style is due to polishing by a committee of poets, including the late W.H. Auden, after the translators had done their work.

One shopping tip: whatever translation you choose, buy in the standard hardcover edition, not in a jazzed up, morocco-bound edition with illustrations and "reference aids." The latter will cost you several times as much as the former, but contain exactly the same words of Holy Writ.

The Bible is meant to be read, not placed on a coffee table. It is a great shame that — in this of all fields — publishers make a hard pitch, especially at Christmas for the sucker trade—people who judge a Bible by its price rather than the quality of the translation.

Quick thinking wasn't enough

GLASGOW, Scotland (UPI) — Thomas Barnett backed into another car and then tried to bluff his way out of trouble.

He ran home, shaved off his mustache, returned to the scene and told police his car had been stolen. But the other motorist recognized him even without his mustache, and the policeman spotted flecks of shaving soap under his nose, according to court testimony Monday.

Children may bring on abuse

NEW YORK (UPI) —Child abuse may as likely be brought about by the child, even a newborn infant, as his parents, a University of Rochester psychologist reported at a meeting at the University of Michigan.

"There is increasing evidence that aggravating behavior or abnormalities in the child, such as overactiveness, colic or a particularly grating cry, can provoke an already anxious aggressive parent to assault him," Dr. Arnold Sameroff said.

Fuel crisis spurs study

Non-gas autos come back

By EDWARD S. LECHTZIN
UPI Auto Writer

DETROIT (UPI) — Could it be back to "the good old days" for automobiles in this gasoline shore era?

At the start of the 20th Century, the gasoline-powered car started out a poor third to its steam and electric counterparts. That didn't last long and soon the steam and electric autos were left far behind and nearly forgotten.

Now there's renewed interest in these power sources, the gasoline and oil situation being what it is.

In 1900, when 4,195 vehicles were manufactured in this country, 1,681 of them were powered by steam, 1,575 by electricity and only 939 by gasoline engines. The steamers lasted until the 1930's and they attracted a loyal and vocal following.

"There was an instantaneous leap in response to the throttle, unmatchable by any gasoline car," remembers an aging owner of a steam car.

Oldtimers

At one time in the first 20 years of the century, more than 125 different makes of steam cars were on U.S. roads, bearing such names as the White, Mobile, Locomobile, Lane, Clark, Grout, Gearless, Delling and Doble.

By 1920, just a few remained and in 1925, the Stanley Steamer—the greatest of them all—had disappeared.

The Stanley brothers—twins Francis E. and Freeland O.—built their first steamer in 1897 although, they admitted later, "We knew but little about steam engines and less of oilers." Before the final Stanley Steamer was built in 1925, the company produced 18,000 cars.

"It is graceful and rakish in outline and unlike any gasoline car that can attain an equal speed, it has no odor, noise or vibration," an advertisement for a 1916 Stanley Steamer Roadster said. "It can be run through city streets without attracting the least attention except for its neat appearance."

But the Stanley brothers adhered to an old tradition of craftsmanship and refused to mass produce their cars, relying instead on hand-built bodies to bear their name. They always were behind in their orders and couldn't hope to compete with the innovative methods of Henry Ford.

Fuel economy problem

There has been renewed interest in the steam or Rankine cycle engine, but fuel economy remains a problem. In a recent California bus experiment, steam power plants consumed about three times the fuel of a diesel-powered bus.

Other problems include large weight and size, cost, water consumption, water freezing and lubrication.

Another engine being studied, especially by the Ford Motor Co., in this country, is the Stirling engine. An external burner heats a gas — usually hydrogen — sealed inside the engine and the expanding gas drives the pistons.

The experimental engines have proved to be clean, quiet and economical, but the engine still presents some packaging problems, primarily because of the need for a very large radiator.

From the standpoint of a gasless car, the electric car probably is receiving the most attention. It emits no exhaust fumes and is virtually noiseless.

But it can't travel very far without being recharged, weighs much more than a comparable gasoline-fueled car and would be ore expensive to produce until it could be built under mass-production methods.

Battery power

In discussing the battery electric power plants recently, General Motors President Edward N. Cole said they "simply transfer the problems from the tailpipe of the automobile to the smokestack of the central electric generating station."

Until there is a breakthrough in battery technology, the electric car has a very restricted role in the transportation system, Cole said.

All the major U.S. automakers took part in the electric car resurgence of the mid-1960's, but admitted in a few years that they had been a little "overenthusiastic" about the potential of major battery breakthrough.

There are a number of electric cars on U.S. roads now, some conversions of regular gas-powered cars and others specially designed as electrics.

The electrics are most often considered as urban vehicles where only short distances are traveled and as the only serious means of shifting part of the energy burden away from the auto's present almost-total dependence on petroleum fuels.

The city of Birmingham,

(Please turn to E-6, Col. 3)

MAKING A COMEBACK — At the turn of the century the steam auto was the most popular vehicle on the road. But eventually it was passed by the gasoline car and faded into oblivion. With the gasoline shortage in the offing, however, it soon may be revived as the family auto. Here a Stanley Steamer is given a push at a New Hampshire celebration.

Prosperous Poles must 'capture' their furniture

WARSAW (UPI) — When a Warsaw woman recently decided to buy a new couch for her apartment, she did what anyone would do—who lives in Poland.

She arose at 5 a.m., lined up in the frosty morning air with other hopeful customers at Warsaw's main furniture store and waited until the 9 o'clock opening time to see if she could get one of the dozen or so couches delivered there each day.

Five mornings she went, five mornings she was too far down the line to make her purchase. Finally she hired the son of a neighbor to stand in her place and he got the couch—but not before queueing up every morning for another week.

That sort of experience can be the rule rather than the exception in Poland, where home furnishings are almost as hard to buy today as meat was 10 years ago.

As the newspaper Zycie Warszawy said, "You don't buy furniture, you capture it."

Three months' wait

Tables, chairs and sofas sometimes take three months or longer to obtain. Lamps are all but impossible to find.

Dawn-to-dusk queues are frequent outside furniture stores and quarrels among those waiting are not uncommon.

Ironically, the shortage is largely a product of Poland's new-found prosperity. It's a perfect example of the growing pains that are hobbling this country's two-year-old economic boom.

"The explanation (for the lack of furniture) is really very simple. "It stems from growth of the population's incomes, a faster tempo of housing construction and the desire to have more comfortable and modern furnishings at home."

Take wages, for instance. They've gone up 20 per cent in three years as part of the government's drive to raise living standards. Yet many prices have remained frozen and day-to-day expenses have risen no more than 10 or 15 per cent.

Therefore millions of Poles have extra income. What do they do with it? Buy furniture, among other things. Shops here sell out as fast as new supplies arrive.

Housing boom

Then there's housing. Previous governments neglected the national building program, which even today remains vitally important considering three-fourths of Poland's urban dwellings were destroyed during World War II.

Anxious not to repeat mistakes of the past, present leaders stepped up construction to the point that 250,000 apartments now are being built every year.

But new homes need new furniture—lots of it. And that puts even more pressure on the home furnishing market.

"We could sell 50 of these every day," a willowy blonde salesgirl at Warsaw's cavernous Dom Meblowy ("House of Furniture") told UPI. She gestured towards a neat row of green folding daybeds—each tagged "sold"—lined up in front of her.

The girl said when she came to work that morning 37 people were waiting outside the store in hopes of buying one of the 16 daybeds delivered during the night.

"These are the lucky ones," she said, holding out a sheet of paper with 16 signatures scrawled across it.

Neglected industry

No short-term solution to the problem presents itself, although the demand for furniture is expected to double in the next five years. According to journalist Jozef Kusmierek of Zycie Warszawy:

"Nobody likes to work for the (furniture) industry and, what's worse, no one takes it seriously. Too many people think of it as some kind of handicraft."

What most experts recommend is a thorough reorganization of the industry, introduction of production incentives, improved training of skilled personnel and better coordination with related industries.

One big step, they say, would be to remove responsibility for furniture production away from the Ministry of Forestry which, as one official said, "seems more interested in trees than tables and chairs."

Yet journalist Kusmierek remains doubtful. "From a social, cultural and economic point of view, there are few phenoména as useful as having people interested in their apartments," he wrote. "The fact this phenomena exists in Poland should please us.

UCLA economists predict poor start, but late rally

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — UCLA economists have predicted rocky going in 1974 for the U.S. economy with a rally later in the year if the flow of oil from the Middle East is renewed.

At their 22nd annual business forecasting conference, the economists predicted:

—A substantial decline in residential construction.

—Increased unemployment.

—Worsening inflation and rising consumer prices.

—A decline in interest rates and corporate profits.

—An increase in the Gross National Product by $99 billion or 7.7 per cent.

—A decline in industrial production by 0.4 per cent, in private housing construction by 18 per cent.

—An increase in wholesale prices by 6 per cent (a drop of 7.4 per cent from 1973). And an increase in consumer prices by 7.5 per cent compared with 6.1 per cent this year.

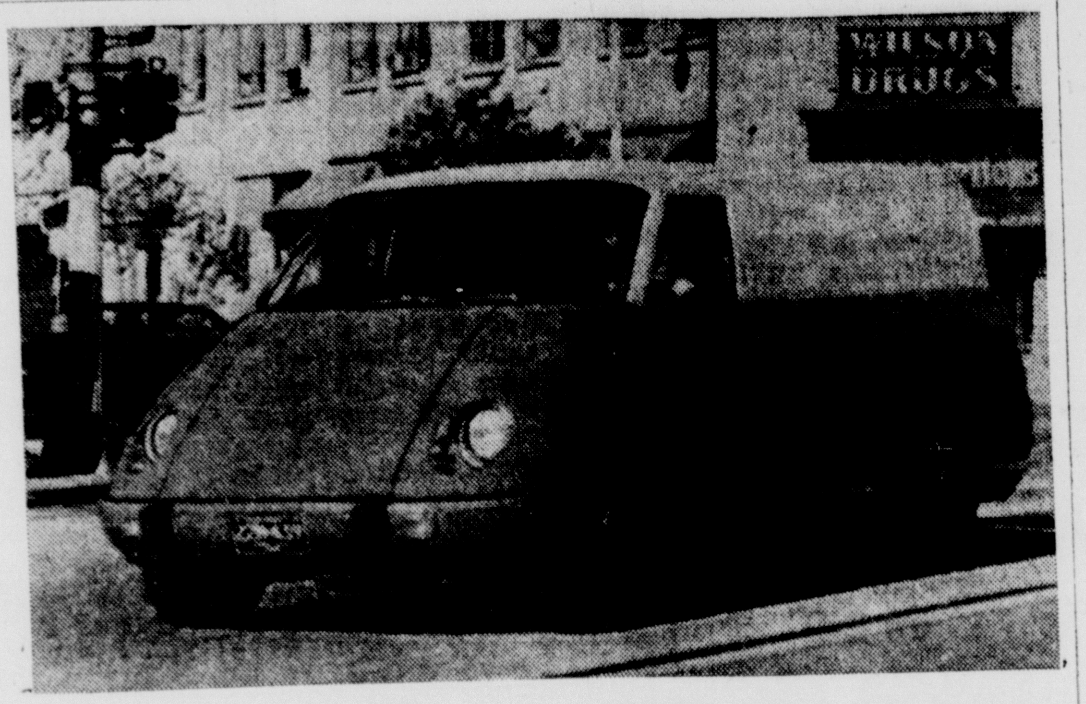
—Stock market prices will rise late next year.

—The Dow Jones Industrial average will fluctuate in a range of 750 to 1050.

Old phrase turned to a new use

NEW YORK (UPI) — Wilma Scott Heide, president of the National Organization for Women (NOW), always gets a laugh and applause on the circuit when she cites "old husband's tales."

That is the feminist's way of putting a stop to the circulation of "old wives tales" a sexist phrase.



ELECTRIC VEHICLE—The Copper Electric Van IIIB was put into operation in Birmingham, Mich., by the Water Meter Department, where it will operate with other gasoline-powered vans. The electric car, once popular at the start of the century, may soon make a comeback.

Non-gas autos . . .

Mich., a Detroit suburb, recently began testing a new electric van developed by the Copper Development Association (CDA). Know as the Copper Electric Van IIIB, it was put into service with the Birmingham Water Meter Department where it will operate with other gasoline-powered vans.

"With the cost of gasoline going up rapidly and the supply situation for the future somewhat uncertain, we are pleased to have the opportunity to test an electric van," said Mayor Ralph W. Moxley.

The vehicle was built specifically for the stop-and-go driving found in suburban use.

Preliminary data showed its top speed was 52 miles per hour with a 95-mile range at a constant speed of 40 m.p.h. In typical metropolitan traffic requiring two stops per mile, the range drops to 53 miles.

It's powered by 36, six-volt, lead-acid storage batteries similar to the batteries used in golf carts.

The low-range and high initial cost is a good example of the reasons the electric vehicle is not ready to displace the gasoline-powered car. The present internal combustion engine may have strong competition in the near future, but not from the steam and electric cars.

Modern tapestries from 13 countries on exhibit

LOS ANGELES — "Contemporary Tapestries in Many Lands," an exhibit of 23 tapestries from 13 countries, is now on display at the California Museum of Science and Industry, Exposition Park. It runs through Jan. 27.

The tapestries were selected from the collection of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Hurschler of Pasadena, who in the last decade have been actively collecting, exhibiting and distributing contemporary tapestries from all over the world.

A number of the works on display have been woven in the traditional manner, mainly in Aubusson, France, and Portalegre, Portugal. Many others are unique wall hangings by innovative artist-weavers who explore techniques and materials. Woven with cotton, wool, jute, hemp, sisal, silk, hair, metal thread and other fibers, the compositions frequently have more the quality of sculptures than of traditional tapestries.

By showing artist-designed and workshop-woven tapestries, as well as an increasing number of unique pieces by artist-weavers, the Hurschlers hope to stimulate an appreciation for the contemporary manifestations of an age-old art form.

The museum is open daily from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., except Christmas.

Islamic art collection on view at museum

LOS ANGELES — A major collection of Islamic art will go on exhibition at the county Museum of Art Dec. 20. The exhibit will continue to March 3.

The collection of 650 objects, formed by the late Nasli M. Heeramaneck, was recently purchased for the museum by Mrs. Joan Palevsky, a member of the board of trustees. It is one of the most comprehensive collections in the United States, covering the entire range of Islamic art produced between 700 and 1900 A.D., in the area bounded by Turkey in the West and Afghanistan in the East.

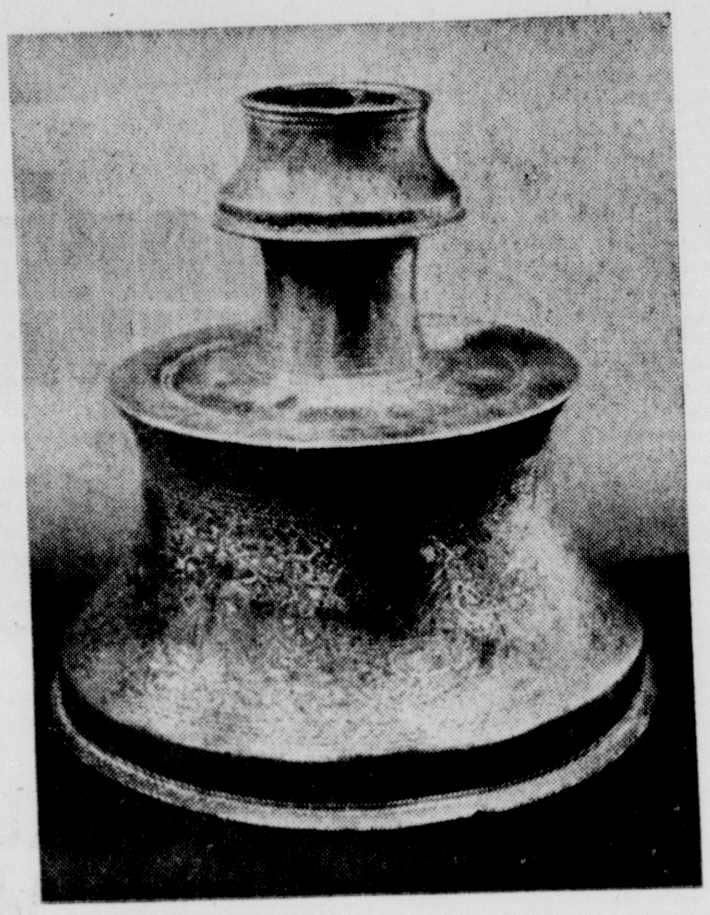
The exhibition, composed of approximately 500 of the most important works from the collection, includes: paintings and calligraphy, glass, bronzes, ceramics and textiles from Middle Eastern countries such as Turkey, Syria, Egypt, Persia and Iraq, where Islam has been the driving religious and cultural force since the 7th Century.

Persian aesthetics and taste greatly influenced the art of Islam, and it was Persian literature that inspired the great Islamic miniatures. The miniature paintings in the exhibition illustrate the brilliant calligraphy characteristic of Islamic art, as well as the rich and colorful figurative imagery developed after the 10th Century. Of particular interest are the Shiraz miniatures of the 15th and 16th centuries, a period when Persian painting reached its apogee, as well as works by 17th Century masters such as Riza-i-Abbasi, famous for his paintings of elegant youths and ladies, and his pupil Mu'in Mussawir, whose work dominated the second half of the century.

Apart from painting, perhaps the most renowned Islamic art works are the ceramics. The exhibition includes superb examples of every major type of pottery produced in the Islamic world. Of special importance are the monumental objects such as a 15th Century Mihrab (prayer nich), a large section of a 17th Century Safavid palace tile, and a calligraphic tile from Isnik, famous Turkish center for ceramic art during the Ottoman Empire.

Also on view fill be a collection of Islamic metal work, including examples from the Seljuk period which was particularly renowned for its extravagant designs. For the most part Islamic metalwork consists of items of everyday use such as candlesticks, jugs and drinking cups, as well as highly stylized sculpture of birds and animals used either as incense burners or finials. Highlighting this portion of the exhibition and attesting to the sumptuous and luxurious quality of Islamic art, are glittering gold objects such as a 10th Century bracelet and a 16th century royal sword from Persia.

The exhibition includes a large and important selection of Islamic textiles. Of special interest are the Persian floral fabrics which depict refined sensibility and the Turkish velvets of the 16th and 17th centuries, which are the most visually dramatic of all Islamic textiles and were a great influence on Western textiles, particularly Italian Renaissance velvets.



ANCIENT ART — This 13th Century Iraqi candlestick of brass, silver and copper is one of the works in an exhibition of Islamic art which will open at the county Museum of Art Dec. 20. Some 650 objects cover the art of Islam from 700 to 1900 A.D.

College players taking show about on a wagon

CLAREMONT — The Four Colleges Players of Claremont will present their annual production of "The First Shepherd's Play" on the colorful pageant wagon at various locations in Claremont this week.

Performances are Thursday at 1:15 p.m. at Pilgrim Place and at 3 p.m. in Memorial Park; Friday, at 1:30 p.m. at the Claremont School of Tenology and at 3 p.m. on the Bowling Green at Scripps College; and Saturday at 1 p.m. in front of Garrison Theater and at 3 p.m. by the Coop at Pomona College.

The presentation is free of charge.

Directed by Linda M. Grinstead, the shepherds are portrayed by Ken Sturm, Jeremiah Barry, and Pat Costello. Others in the cast are Steven Cotten, Ruth Fisher, who is also stage manager, and Ardele Leavelle.

The play is under the general supervision of Jesse Swan, professor of drama at the four colleges.

"The Second Shepherd's Play" is an Interlude of the 32 plays in the Wakefield Cycle first presented in England during the 14th and 15th centuries.

CGS students show work in Libra Gallery

CLAREMONT — An art show in clay opens next Wednesday night at Claremont Graduate School's Libra Gallery.

Two CGS students, Don Huffman and Steve Nagler, will show their work. Huffman constructs rough earthenware and stoneware forms, Nagler does earthenware landscapes. Both artists are residents of Claremont.

The show will open at 7:30 Wednesday night and continue through Dec. 17. After the opening, show hours are 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Libra Gallery is at 12th Street and Dartmouth Avenue.

Farmer needs raft for work in flooded fields

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Timothy Mulcahy watched his ranch foreman float by on a sail-equipped raft over what used to be his pastureland and reminisced about last winter's flood that looks like it will never go away.

"We lost 50 per cent of our crop;" said the 31-year-old rancher, "and it cost four times as much as normal to harvest what was left."

Buenos Aires Province, which by itself is larger than Italy, was hit during the southern hemisphere winter with more than 60 inches of rainfall, most of it in two months. The average annual rainfall is 30 inches. The land is flat and the water has nowhere to go. Six months later it is still there.

Increasing Mulcahy's harvesting expense was the need to buy a huge four-wheel drive tractor that could maneuver on the muddy ground that was not fully flooded.

He also bought 1,100 pigs to eat the corn that the tractors couldn't get and that would have gone to waste.

"We couldn't sell it as grain," said Mulcahy's wife Marianne, a native of Cornwall, England, "so we sold it in the stomachs of pigs."

Had to sell

Mulcahy, his father, and his two brothers who run the farm that has been in the family since 1865, were forced to sell more than 10 per cent of the 5,600 acre spread.

But they could not offer for sale the acreage remaining under water.

"It may take as much as four or five years for the water to drain," Mulcahy said, "since it is already at the water table (or level of the underground water)."

A British economic writer said "it is as if there were a long constant rainfall in Holland. Holland would disappear."

At its height in May the flood covered somewhere between 2.4 million and 5 million acres, or an area that would cover much of Holland.

It is perhaps a measure of the size of Argentina's fertile farmland that despite the floods there were no wheat or corn shortages. But some government miscalculation of the size of the pending crop, and some advance sales of what that was later flooded caused the country to import some grain at the end of the season.

Mulcahy found one silver lining in the storm clouds that inundated his land. He discovered a family of black neck swans, a breed which he said was nearing extinction, apparently thriving on the flooded conditions near his home.

He raised them from a few weeks of age, and a few weeks ago brought them to his pastureland which is a lovely place for swans who like floods.

Ranch hands on Timothy Mulcahy's 5,000-acre spread at Nueve de Julio, left, a cattle town in Argentina, have to be pretty good sailors. They use raft to travel over some of the pasture and corn fields still under water after last winter's flood. More than 60 inches of rain fell in two months, inundating somewhere between 2.4 million and 5 million acres.

State's geologic dangers outlined in unique study

By DONALD THORNTON

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Devastating earthquakes from San Francisco to Los Angeles, lava spewing volcanoes in the north and tidal waves the length of the coast could lay waste to populous California at any time.

In fact, those three potential dangers and the seven others making up the Golden State's top 10 geological hazards, could cause a staggering $55 billion damage between 1970 and the year 2000, according to official state estimates.

Plagued historically by such deadly events, the state isn't waiting for another disaster— such as the 1971 San Fernando earthquake—before taking action.

The California Division of Mines and Geology has prepared a comprehensive, 112-page report, titled Urban Geology Master Plan for California, estimating the losses from the 10 hazards—and giving detailed action to take to reduce them.

The report, which took three years to prepare, is designed to help state and local agencies plan for safe and orderly growth in relation to geological hazards.

"It's the first report of its kind made anywhere by anyone," said State Geologist Wesley G. Bruer.

"Our main thrust was to examine the nature of these hazards, their magnitude and to try to come up with some thoughts on how they can be reduced," he said.

Although the report details catastrophic life and monetary losses which can be expected from 1970 to the year 2000, Bruer said, "We think it's a matter-of-fact report and in most respects a conservative report." But he admitted the final figures "sort of alarmed us."

An example of such figures are those listed for earthquakes. According to the report, quakes during 1970-2000 could kill more than 50,000 persons, injure tens of thousands of others and cause an estimated $21 million damage in California.

But the report also states that if its recommendations are followed, quake life loss could be reduced by 90 per cent and dollar damage cut by 50 per cent.

The recommendations, costing an estimated $2 billion, include better quake prediction and vigorous enforcement of improved building codes, such as the tearing down of old buildings.

"The most important thing is that as well as being in the interest of public safety and protection of property from damage, the geological loss reduction measures also make very good economic sense— they're good business," Bruer said.

At a cost of $6 billion, Bruer said, the state could reduce the $55 billion damage total by 69 per cent. The overall recommendations include, in addition to improved building codes, strict land use zoning, sophisticated warning systems for volcanoes, landslides and tsunamis and the addition of geologists to the staffs of all state and local growth planning agencies.

Other hazards and potential damage listed by the report included: mineral resources loss due to urbanization $17 billion; landslides $9.9 billion; flooding $6.5 billion; erosion $600 million; expansive soil (shrinking and swelling) $150 million; Fault displacement $76 million; volcanic eruption (most probably in the Mt. Shasta-Mt. Lassen area) $49 million; tsunami $41 million, and soil subsidence $26 million.

Thomas E. Gay, a senior state geologist and one of three authors of the report, said that although it dramatized loss figures, it was not intended to be a "scare report."

But he continued, "It's an expression of the seriousness of the problem. There are things that should be done and we should get to them."

State and local agencies, he added, should plan ahead and "not wait to be reminded by earthquakes or flooding disasters."

The master plan, according to Bruer, will be a "working document. We will continuously review not only its contents but also we're going to attempt to monitor the new measures or increased level in reduction measures taken in the state to see how much ground we're gaining, if any."

But he added, "We don't have any legal clout to go tell people to do this or else. What we tried to say is if you do these things you'll prevent a great deal of loss and pain in the future."

Pewter is no passing fancy

"Everyone needs one extravagance."

With this statement Burton Pell reveals the philosophy which has built this fine collection of pewter.

Pewter, with its satin-like soft-to-touch surface, has been known to craftsmen for at least 4,000 years. If you like pewter, you will probably say it has a mellow, rich appearance. If you don't like pewter you will probably think it is a dull imitation of silver.

Pell said he is "hooked on pewter" and has a collection of antique objects fairly representative of English, European and American craftsmanship.

Pewter is a very workable alloy, composed of tin and copper with lead and antimony or bismuth added. Generally, the higher the lead content the cheaper the grade of pewter.

Because it is so workable very little early pewter is to be found. Usually broken or damaged pieces were taken to the pewterer and traded for new. The old pewter was then melted down and reworked.

This is particularly true of the Colonial American pieces which resembled English pewter in style.

"Most of our early pewterers were of English or Dutch descent," Pell said, explaining the similarity of design. However, he added that it is easy to distinguish the American pieces because they lack the luster that English pewter possesses. The more often pewter was reused the more impure it became.

Pell likes to talk about the individual pieces in his collection although a large share of his pewter was acquired by purchasing a "collection gathered by someone of great taste," he explained.

An interior designer, Pell travels extensively and has garnered some very fine pieces of Continental pewter. "Continental is a coverall term because it is very difficult to determine the exact origin of many European pieces.'

It was on on of his European trips that he purchased a pewter handwarmer, thinking it was a flask. When he found a similar one pictured in a German book on pewter he had the description translated and learned the true identity of the object.

Pell is interested in articles of workship and he has a rare French crucifix, candlesticks, communion cup and baptismal fount. He explained that in times of economic depression churches sold their silver plate and replaced it with pewter, using the money to aid the poor.

He recently acquired two alms basisn. One by Samuel Cocks is English, circa 1820. Inscribed on the rim of the face is, "Body, south side, begin at east end," denoting how and where the offering was to be taken.

The second plate has the words, "Dissenting Congregation, Edin. 1804," on the face. It is his first piece of Scottish origin.

A member of the Pewter Collectors Club of America, Pell attends at least one meeting a year and through the club has access to the expertise of pewter authorities.

He advises new collectors: "Don't just grab and buy. Find the thing that you like and specialize in it."

Judge to 'tell it to judge'

RENO, Nev. (UPI) — District Judge John Barrett will "tell it to the judge."

He was cited by a California Highway Patrolman for going too slow on Interstate 80. Barrett, accustomed to Nevada's unlimited speeds on the open road, thought he was being a good citizen by going along with President Nixon's recommendation that motorists drive at 50 miles per hour to conserve gasoline.

"That's not the law," said the patrolman. "That's too slow."

Barrett took the ticket and said he would appear in court— after driving home at 50 m.p.h.

BENEFIT PLANS MADE

Gerald Stiles, left, discusses plans for holiday tour with Mrs. Lawrence Smith and Mrs. Gerald Rathbun, right. The Stiles home will be decorated in a "Cookie House" theme.

Auxiliary schedules home tour

Three charming homes in Claremont, each with a distinct personality, will be opened to guests at the "Christmas Fantasy" sponsored Wednesday by the Pomona Valley Community Hospital Auxiliary.

Open from 2 to 10 p.m. will be the homes of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Atwell, 739 Harvard Ave.; Dr. and Mrs. Edward Hauch, 693 W. 9th St., and Dr. and Mrs. Gerald Stiles, Claremont.

Proceeds from the tour will benefit the Sick Baby Fund of the auxiliary which financially assists families when babies or children are in need of medical care.

Mrs. William H. Ariss is general chairman for the yule home tour. Chairmen for the homes are Mrs. Nelson Bell, Atwell home; Mrs. Gerald Rathbun, Stiles home; and Mrs. Harold S. Edick, Hauch home.

Serving as chairmen also are Miss Edith Frances Eells, Mmes. Harry Kinne, Carl Ohler, Lawrence Smith, Chester Rappe, Charles Pacini, G. J. McGuire, Herman Wente and Robert Steele.

Tickets are available at the Volunteer Office at the hospital or by calling Mrs. Chester Rappe, 624-2191.

Attending the Christmas Fantasy promises a delightful way to start the holiday season while supporting the fund for children, states Mrs. Ariss.

Children stage grabbing spree in toy departments—for free!

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
UPI Family Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Every little kid dreams at one time or another of being locked in toyland overnight.

The visions occur every year around this time, frequently after seeing a picture of Santa or, even better, visiting him.

Very few children ever get to spend that night among the toys, to play with them all, testing ones they might want. But eight really lucky boys and girls ranging in age from seven to 12 got a chance to stage a grabbing spree in toylands in their cities.

The aisles were cleared. The children—six girls and two boys —were told they could take home all the toys they could grab in three minutes. At no charge to their parents. At no risk of a shoplifting charge.

The names of children selected to live out the fantasy of a young lifetime were drawn at random. Each child participating in the lottery had put on a homemade carnival to raise money for the Muscular Dystrophy Association of America.

The winners spent these free three-minute shopping sprees in toy supermarts in the Toys-RUs chain, which footed the bill. In the suburbs of Chicago, Washington, D.C., Baltimore, Los Angeles, San Diego, Detroit, San Francisco and Richmond.

Of interest to Santa's helpers is which toys scored high with the kids. Going through a list of what they grabbed, there are some surprises.

Two little girls took footballs. The biggest puzzlement was created by Christine Eisel, 10, of Hamtramck, Mich. She ran off with a red football uniform. Said it was for her male cousin in Ashland, Ohio.

Aside from bicycles, the only items that might be described as favorites were tape recorders (seven), radios (six), sleeping bags (five), cameras (five) and phonographs (three).

Aside from those items, not more than two children agreed on any other categories. The only unanimous choice: bicycles. One little girl took two: one for herself and one for her mother.

Only two girls selected dolls and only one a doll buggy.

The youngest child who won a free toy shopping spree was Wendy Percy, 7, of Glenview, Ill., a Chicago suburb. Her loot included a bike, a watch, a tape recorder, a camera, two radios, two dolls, a doll house, a typewriter, a phonograph, a couple of games, a couple of paint-by-number sets and a marking printing set. Retail value of her free toys: $247.98.

Charles Hilliard, 10, of Glendora, Calif., a suburb of Los Angeles, made off with the highest dollar value by concentrating on expensive items. To wit: a 10-speed bike, an electric train set, a casette recorder, a walkie-talkie, a three-band radio, a gym set, two tennis rackets, a skate board, a phonograph, a football, a sleeping bag and a back pack. Total value: $521.33.

Of specific help to you uncles, aunts and grandparents who need some idea of what children of specific ages selected:

—Girl, 11. Ten-speed bike, tape recorder, walkie talkie, tent, sleeping bag, slumber bag, radio, two games.

—Girl, 10. Tandem bike, football game, football, organ, show-n-tell records, large bear, telescope with tripod, pogo stick.

—Boy, 10. Ten-speed bike, train, cassette recorder, three band radio, gym set, skateboard, phonograph, tennis rackets, football, sleeping bag, back pack, racing banner—for his new bike.

—Girl, 11. Four band radio, AM-FM radio, cassette recorder, camera, guitar, sleeping bag, stereo system, directional signals and many assorted other things for her bike— chrome mirror, combo chain lock, rainbow spokettes, water bottle, kickstand.

—Girl, 10. Ten-speed bike, doll buggy, pocket camera, clock radio, tape recorder, roller skates, candle molds, guitar, furniture set.

—Girl, 12. Ten-speed racer bike. Back pack, tennis racket, football, sleeping bag, steel tennis racket, basketball and other sports and outdoor equipment.

If this look at the toy tastes of some children still leaves you puzzled over a gift for a child on your list, send money.

Attention, brides

Complete kitchen

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (UPI) — More than 95 per cent of all American homes in 1970 boasted complete kitchens, including hot and cold running water, according to the Building Components Division, Rockwell International Corp.

Slightly more than 93 per cent could claim a bathroom with hot and cold running water, a flush toilet and bathtub or shower, the plumbing supplies producer reported.

Nutritionist is speaker for meeting

Pomona Valley Chapter of the American Nutrition Society has invited the public to join the members in hearing a talk by Elizabeth Broadston, lecturer, author and radio personality, Tuesday at 7:30 p.m.

Mrs. Broadston's topic will be "Nutrition Potpourri." The speaker has held many positions in dietetics and has brought up her family according to the basic principles of the American Nutrition Society.

The meeting will be held at Pomona First Federal Savings and Loan, Indian Hill and Foothill boulevards, Claremont.

Information on the program may be obtained by calling 626-6974 or 626-6277.

Lepire, Eckeard troth told

JEANETTE LEPIRE

Mr. and Mrs. Ray J. Lepire of Pomona announce the engagement of their daughter, Jeanette Marie (Ginger), and John Raymond Eckeard III.

Miss Lepire is a 1969 graduate of Claremont High School and a 1971 graduate of Modesto Junior College where she majored in Police Science. She has attended Cal Poly Pomona and Cal State San Jose.

The bride-elect is employed by Los Angeles County as a deputy clerk in Pomona Municipal Court.

Her fiance is the son of John R. Eckeard Jr. of La Verne and Mrs. Margaret Ulfers of Chino. He graduated from Bonita High School and attended Mt. San Antonio College.

Mr. Eckeard served 18 months in the Army as a member of the military police in Ethiopia. He is now an investigator for the State Department of Labor Law Enforcement. He is attending the California Highway Patrol Academy.

The couple will be wed on June 29.

Mr. Lewis to speak in Chino

Jerry Lewis will address the Monday morning meeting of the Chino Federation of Republican Women. A coffee is planned at 10 a.m. in the recreation room of the Pembroke Downs Mobile Park, 12400 Cypress, Chino.

Mr. Lewis now represents the 73rd Assembly District and is seeking the 20th District Senatorial Seat vacated by Sen. William Coombs. The special election will be Dec. 18.

At 11 a.m., Mrs. Robert Wilson of the San Bernardino County Club, will install new officers of the Chino group. The new officers are Mmes. Donald Lamb, president; Sherman Pruitt, first vice president; Clarence Wanger, second vice president; Bruce Barnes, secretary; Roy Harris, treasurer; James Sanchez, publicity chairman; Jack Moons, parliamentarian; Pete Vander Poel, legislation chairman; Arie Van Lueween, chaplain; and George Fritz, auditor.

The public is invited to hear Mr. Lewis and need not stay for the business session unless they wish.

Volunteer group sets luncheon

The Police Declaratory Quorum has scheduled a no-host luncheon Monday noon at the Claremont Depot.

The volunteer citizens group which is dedicated to promoting good police-community relations will visit the California Youth Authority in the afternoon, according to Mrs. Helene Worness, chairman.

Reservations for the luncheon and tour may be made by calling 624-6531 or 622-3659.

Scarves

Give a girl enough scarf . . . and that's just what is happening in the fall and winter clothes. Scarves come in all dimensions and in all sorts of exaggerations. Sometimes they add sharp color contrast to a costume but more often they're coordinated in color. Special favorites are the pale beige and camel tones and the long rectangular shapes that loop loosely at the throat and fall to the waistline or lower.

There's a shirtdress for every home seamstress to tackle — from the young homesewer who's used to jeans as a way of life to the woman who never gave up wearing comfy shirtdresses in the first place.

GOP Women to hear Richardson Thursday

An evening with State Sen. H. L. (Bill) Richardson is planned for the Christmas program of the Pomona Valley Republican Women's Club Thursday.

"The Coming Victory" will be the senator's topic for the dinner meeting at Buffums Palomares Room. A social hour at 6:30 p.m. will precede the 7:30 dinner.

Senator Richardson's recognized knowledge in the field of conservation gained him a seat on the Natural Resources Committee of the California Senate. He was formerly chairman of the Senate Commitee of Fish and Game.

Raised in Chicago, the senator is a self-made man who worked his way through schools and colleges after once dropping out of high school. His creative ability in commercial art and writing has been an asset to him in the senate. His book, "Slightly to the Right," has sold over 300,000 copies and he has produced film strips on subjects ranging from marijuana abuse to the death penalty.

H. L. RICHARDSON

Husbands and guests of members are invited to the holiday program. Christmas music will be presented by a Pomona High School musical group.

Reservations are due by Friday and may be made by calling 629-8602 or 622-4966.

LORETTA VARELA

June date selected by couple

Miss Loretta Varela and Greg Gulick are to be married on June 29.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julio Varela of Montclair. She graduated from Montclair High School in 1971 and attended Chaffey College.

Miss Varela is employed at May Co., Montclair.

The groom-to-be is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gulick of Newport Beach. She attended Claremont High School and Citrus College. He is employed at Pacific Rubber Stamp Manufacturing Company.

Ontario BPW sets activity

Christmas music will be presented by the Chaffey High School ensemble at the Tuesday meeting of the Ontario Business and Professional Women's Club.

Mrs. Samuel Kaufman will present the program for the evening, "My Visit to Russia."

Members will meet at 6 p.m. at the Holiday Inn, Ontario, and will take unwrapped gifts to the meeting for inmates of Patton State Hospital, San Bernardino.

Bridge section of the Ontario BPW will meet Dec. 20 at the home of Celesta Walters.

Annual dinner dance charted Saturday eve

"Las Posadas" is the theme for the annual Christmas dinner dance sponsored by Our Lady of the Assumption Catholic Church on Dec. 15.

The 7 p.m. party will be in the Damien High School gymnasium, 1124 Bonita Ave., La Verne.

Las Posadas spotlights the procession of Mary and Joseph as they seek shelter on Christmas Eve. The traditional procession includes music, featuring singers in the parish.

Chairmen are Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lerma and Juan Gambea. Mr. and Mrs. Jose Obeso will again make the pinata which will be smashed by some lucky guest during the evening.

Other chairmen include Mr. and Mrs. Art Escovedo, treasurer and reservations; Mrs. Jim McEwan and Chris Torcivia, decorations; Roman Salizar, refreshments; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gerdeman, publicity. Assisting with plans is the Very Rev. Msgr. William J. Barry, pastor.

Sal Vsquez, and his band will play for the dancing after dinner.

Among the special guests will be nuns and priests who have served Our Lady of the Assumption parish in the past. Menudo will be served Sunday morning after the party. It will be at the church auditorium.

Fire Dept. Auxiliary sets party

The Pomona Fire Department Auxiliary has planned its annual Christmas party Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Robert Hecht.

Hostesses for the evening are Mrs. Ed Neilson, Mrs. Larry Ogle, Mrs. Kurt Lindebaum and Mrs. Dwaine Lindebaum.

Officers will be elected and committee reports submitted at the meeting. The party will include a gift exchange and fondue snacks. A Christmas basket will be collected and then given to a needy Pomona family.

Fire department personnel and their children will gather on Saturday at Station 6 for a Children's Christmas Party from 10 a.m. to noon.

Included will be special entertainment and Santa Claus. Punch, coffee and candy will be provided and parents are asked to take a $2 gift with their child's name on it and a half dozen cookies per child.

Prices celebrate 25th year

Members of the congregation of Trinity Lutheran Church in Pomona held a reception recently in observance of the 25th wedding anniversary of their pastor and his wife, the Rev. and Mrs. Harold C. Price.

At the mornng service Pastor Price and his wife repeated the wedding vows they ahd made 25 years ago in San Diego. He pointed out that five of the years have been spent in the Pomona parish.

Pastor Price is chairman of the Community Life Commission for Pomona and dean of the San Gabriel District of the Lutheran Church in America.

Library to show yule films

A series of Christmas films for preschool children will be shown at the Pomona Library on Tuesday starting at 10 a.m. in the story hour room.

Different films will be shown on Dec. 18 at the same time and place.

Parents and preschool teachers are invited to accompany the children. Each program will be about 45 minutes long and free of charge for all residents of West End, Pomona and San Gabriel Valleys.

"How the Animals Discovered Christmas," "The Littlest Angel," and "Christmas Crackers" will be shown this Tuesday. The second program will include "The Great Toy Robbery" and "The Story of the Night Before Christmas."

Films are part of the continuing series of children's activities offered by the Pomona Library. For more information, call the library.

Vicksburg WRC plans potluck

The nomination and election of officers will be held at the Wednesday meeting of Vicksburg Woman's Relief Corps at the VFW Hall.

A covered-dish luncheon will be served at 11:30 a.m. to honor members having birthdays in October, November and December. Mrs. Ethel White will bake the birthday cake and Mrs. Annie Bentley will have charge of the dining room. Mrs. Ruby Barrett and Mrs. Anna May Clark will be in charge of the kitchen.

The business meeting will begin at 1 p.m. Members are asked to bring donations for baskets to be delivered to shut-ins at Christmas.

On Friday at 8 p.m. the Women's Activities group will meet for a Christmas party and gift exchange.

The grange will meet for a potluck dinner and Christmas program on Saturday at 6:30 p.m. An exchange of gifts will take place during the evening.

VISIBLE MAN

FOR PATIENTS—Mrs. Betty Clark and Mrs. Delbert E. Barb, right, stack models, kits and games to be delivered to the Camp Pendleton Hospital by members of the Pomona Navy Mothers Club.

Navy Mothers bring gifts to Pendleton

Two hundred dollars worth of games, models and various kits are being presented to patients at the Camp Pendleton Hospital by the Pomona Navy Mothers Club 444.

Members of the club visiting the hospital are also delivering apples donated by the San Dimas Grange, Christmas candy, and knitted cast socks and lap robes. Mrs. Gertrude Burton and Mrs. Katie Esqueda are chairmen for the annual holiday program at the hospital. Three wards, with a total of about 50 patients, will be visited.

Funds for the gifts were raised during the Baby Pageant sponsored by the club.

The Navy Mothers will have a Christmas luncheon and gift exchange on Dec. 18 at noon at the Naval Reserve Trining Center, 1700 E. 1st St.

Pen Women schedule yule party

Claremont Branch of the National League of American Pen Women will have a Christmas party and meeting Thursday at 2:30 p.m. in the home of Mrs. Philip White, 2461 Mesa Terrace, Upland.

Other hostesses will be Mmes. Alan T. Doody, Alan Palmer, Ivan Petroff and Fred Riddington.

Several members will present creative work in prose, poetry, art or music appropriate to the season.

Fur patterns

Watch for something new in fur patterning. Designer Pauline Trigere calls it marbelizing, skillfully working skins in tones of beige, gray and off-white into an unusual mix. The fur is dyed fox.

Campus group to fete women at colleges

All campus women are invited by the Campus Women of the Claremont Colleges to attend a Christmas coffee at the Athenaeum on the Claremont Men's College campus from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. Monday.

The Athenaeum is located at 890 Columbia Ave., across from the new addition to Honnold Library.

There will also be a Holiday Punch from 4 until 6 p.m. on the same day so that individuals who are not free in the morning may have an opportunity to attend.

The occasion will provide an opportunity for women on and off campus to get together to mark the holiday season, to share a holiday recipe or a Christmas decoration idea and to enjoy the Athenaeum's special Christmas decorations done by Jil Stark.

MR. AND MRS. CARROLL PALMER

Carroll Palmers mark golden anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Palmer of Pomona greeted the 150 guests who gathered Saturday to honor them at their 50th wedding anniversary reception.

Hosting the celebration were the couple's son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth E. Palmer of Upland.

The former Dorothy Pedley and Carroll Palmer, both natives of Pomona, were married Dec. 23, 1923, in the Trinity Methodist Church of Pomona. Mr. Palmer was employed by the Consolidated Water Company for several years before it was purchased by the City of Pomona in 1926. In 1965 he retired as a mechanical electrician after 39 years of employment with the City of Pomona.

Mr. Palmer was active in the Old Baldy Scout Council as a neighborhood commissioner for several years. Mr. and Mrs. Palmer are members of the Community Baptist Church of Ontario where they have served as deacons and Sunday school teachers.

Besides a son the couple also has three grandchildren and a great-grandaughter.

Mrs. Helen Jones and Mrs. William Ward attended the guest book at the golden anniversary reception. Serving were Mmes. Blanche Bashford, Karen Flohr, Jenn Palmer, Bev Palmer, Virginia Ward, Ruth Carlson, Ruth Roberts, Ethel Richards, Virginia Pedley, Estella Pedley, Delia Mickel, Louise Palmer, Ruth Gerrard, Mary Morrison, Francis Holmes and Leahfaye Anderson.

Wearing hats

A woman about town in New York the other day reported seeing more men wearing hats. It may mean that the men's hat industry, on the dormant side for so many seasons, may come to life.

"I saw," said one woman, "four men walking four abreast and they looked peculiar. Then I figured out why they looked peculiar. Each had on a hat!" Then she looked around and saw other men with hats.

Mrs. Reeves to entertain

''Creches Around the World'' will be presented by Mrs. Florence Reeves when the Pomona Woman's Club meets at her home, 2705 Park Ave., La Verne, Monday at 1:30 p.m.

Her large collection of creches will be displayed and she will relate incidents of various tours during which the collections was granted. Many are also of her own design.

Roll call will be answered with a favorite toy. Mrs. Winona Crow will offer the thought for the month.

Assisting the hostess will be Mrs. Kay McClellan and Mrs. Edith Dean.

Program and party scheduled

A birthday program honoring past noble grands will be presented by Maxine McCormick at the Heliotrope Rebekah Lodge meeting Tuesday. at 8 p.m. at 11667 S. Monte Vista Ave.

Refreshments will be served by Mrs. Lynn Chapin and her committee.

On Monday at 6 p.m. the Rebekahs will join with the Odd Fellows for their annual Christmas dinner at 11667 S. Monte Vista. As a Christmas project the Rebekahs will pack cookies for shut-ins.

YLI plans party here

Gifts will be exchanged and secret pals revealed at the Christmas party of the Pomona Institute 143, Young Ladies Institute, on Wednesday.

A potluck dinner will begin the activities at 6:30 p.m. in the Knights of Columbus Hall.

'Voice box' is key to teacher's speech

By JOHN LESAR

MERRILLVILLE, Indiana (UPI) — "The night before surgery, I shed a few tears, like any other adult would, not knowing what the future might hold," recalled Andrean High School football coach Pete Billick.

Billick submitted to the surgeon's knife May 20 for the removal of his cancerous vocal cords and part of his trachea, not knowing if he would ever be able to talk or teach again.

But in August, he was back on the football field, growling orders to his Andrean 59ers and in September, he was in the classroom, conducting four industrial arts classes in a sure, steady voice.

Three weeks after surgery, Billick was fitted with a new artificial voice box—a voice prosthesis developed by researchers at Northwestern University in Evanston, Ill. Doctors at the university say Billick has displayed extraordinary motivation and spectacular progress in using the new device, described by university otolaryngologists as a "research tool."

In the classroom, Billick uses a sound system to amplify his voice and avoid undue strain. He comes up sounding just a little like James Cagney.

Wondrous comeback

"I'm not ready to hang it up yet," the 40-year-old teacher said. "I can't say enough about the research and technology that has allowed me to come back."

But Billick is pretty resourceful himself. One day he noticed, on his way to work, that he had forgotten his voice box. He simply fashioned a new one from a few "spare parts" he had with him and some adhesive tape.

The new device consists of lightweight tubes and valves that help the patient direct air to the part of the throat at which maximum vibration can be produced. The tubes are attached to two openings in the patient's throat and, because the new device is placed well above the esophagus, it has the potential of giving voice to patients unable to develop any other kind of speech due to extensive throat surgery.

But the voice box is not the end of the road for Billick. He goes to speech therapy sessions about once a week to learn a system of speaking by using the esophagus.

His esophageal speech is not yet as firm or fluent as the voice he masters with the new voice tubes, but he's working at it and, eventually, hopes to have two ways of talking.

Billick says his football players and students have, if anything, been more cooperative since he returned with his new voice. He cannot shout but can still keep a class in line.

Northwestern's developers of the new voice box, Dr. George Sisson and Dr. Fred McConnel, say initial results with the first four patients, particularly with Billick, have been encouraging. They plan to test the device on 20 patients before making any claims but are hopeful it will become the most useful and effective "artificial larynx" now in existence.

MECHANICAL VOICE — Pete Billick, industrial arts tecaher and football coach at Andrean High School, lost part of his larnyx and vocal cords to cancer. Now the Merrillville, Ind., instructor addresses his students with the help of an artificial larynx.

78,700 GIs on casualty list of WWII are still missing

ARLINGTON, Va. (UPI) — The day after Hiroshima was leveled by the first atomic bomb used in war, five American airmen disappeared on a routine flight over "the hump" in Asia.

Their recently recovered remains were being buried today in Arlington Nationali Cemetery.

Each year a few bodies of Word War II servicemen are recovered and identified —46 in the past three years. But Pentagon records still show 78,700 men missing in jungles, hedgerows and islands, 22 per cent of American servicemen killed in World War II.

From Vietnam there remain 2,400 men unlocated —half still listed as missing and the remainder declared dead although their bodies have never been recovered. They account for 4 per cent of the Vietnam death rolls.

On Aug. 7, 1945, the five being buried today in a common coffin took off from China in a B24 Liberator assigned to haul gasoline. They headed over the Himalaya Mountains —"the hump" — toward India and were never heard from again.

Recently, wreckage was sited in a remote jungle area of India. It was a B24 bearing the tail number 441293. Skeletal remains were also found, and laboratory checks confirmed they belonged to the missing crewmen.

They were:

Flight Officer Richard H. Franken, 21 at death, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Franken, Aransas, Tex.; 1st Lt. James W. Cantrell, 23, whose father lives in Mexia, Tex.; Flight Officer Francis P. Yuskaitis, 20, son of Stella Yuskaitis, Brockton, Mass.; S. Sgt. Harvey E. Brockmiller, 20, son of Emma O. Brockmiller, Waseca, Minn., and Sgt. William J. Cannady, 24, whose former wife, Mrs. Hazel Haviland lives in Jenison, Mich.

They were among the last Americans to die in the war. Seven days after their disappearance, Japan surrendered.

Nine artists teamed for Scripps show

CLAREMONT — Nine contemporary California artists will show their work in "The Lyric View," an exhibition opening Tuesday at the Lang Gallery of Scripps College. It continues to Jan. 25.

The public may view the exhibit from 1 to 5 p.m. daily. The gallery will be closed during the Christmas holidays, Dec. 20 to Jan. 2.

All the artists have received prizes and exhibited widely. Joyce Treiman of Pacific Palisades, the only woman in the show, had a one-woman exhibit of her work at the La Jolla Museum in January, 1973. She will display three oils — "Campers," "Portrait of Uta" and "Model Series."

South Laguna artist John Paul Jones, a University of California at Irvine faculty member, will display two paintings, "Match Play" and "Spectator." Ray Saunders of Oakland, a leading Black painter, will show "When I Was Young and a Little Older," two mixed media selections.

Sculptor Manuel J. Neri of the San Francisco Bay area will have "Three figures standing around" in the exhibit.

UCLA professor Ray Brown will show two oils entitled "Grandfather" and "Grandparents." Keith Crown, a member of the USC faculty, will exhibit three watercolors, "California Landscape," "Illinois Landscape" and "Soybean Field."

"Dyptich," a two-part oil painting and "Butterflies" will be shown by Arthur Okamura of Bolinas. Roger Kuntz of Laguna Beach will have three oils — "Santa Cruz Pier," "Sunset Pattern" and "A Winter Landscape" — in the show. Roland Petersen, a Danish artist who is associate professor of art at UC Davis, is displaying three acrylic paintings entitled "Aerial Changes," "Silent Glider" and "Cloud Shadow Vertigo."

Reviews of movies

By SARAH SMILEY

"Kid Blue" is a marvelously funny, yet at the same time shrewdly observant social comedy.

It's about a reformed young train robber (Dennis Hopper) who tries to go straight in Dimebox, Tex., but whose very air of strangeness and alienation make him an easy target for the insanity, self-righteousness, and cruelty of the "straight" citizenry.

Hasseled endlessly by a bullying sheriff who hates him on sight (Ben Johnson), cheated and humiliatted by his employers, patronized by the fellow boarders in his rooming house, and seduced by his best friend's wife, Kid finally decides to return to the only line of work from which he can turn a modest profit and still be his own man.

His partners in crime are, fittingly, as much social outcasts as he: three dispossessed Indians and a harmlessly psychotic preacher. The whole movie is done with such a light touch that its serious insights into the machinations of power and respectability never get preachy or heavyhanded, and we enjoy ourselves all the way through.

My only complaint is the ending, which as it is a bit too slapstick and contrived, tends to blunt the precarious comic-realistic balance that the majority of the film maintains so beautifully. Still, this is an enjoyable film well worth seeing, clever and quietly hip. At The Montclair Theater.

It plays with "Ace Eli and Roger of the Skies," a messy, jumbled, movie set in the Midwest of the 20's about a father and son who barnstorm all over the place having "cute" adventures. It is badly directed, badly written, badly acted, badly edited; in short, it just doesn't fly.

2 U.S. destroyers sold to Brazilians

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — The U.S. Navy destroyers Brinkley Bass and Henry W. Tucker were formally turned over to the Brazilian navy in a ceremony recently.

Both ships were launched in the closing days of World War II, and saw action in the Korean War and Vietnam. No sale price was disclosed.

Brazilian crews have been training on the ships for several months, the Navy said, and are expected to continue training in the San Diego area for another month before sailing for Brazil.

Chorus, wind ensemble to perform Christmas music

CLAREMONT — Christtmas music by Bach, Daquin, Mouton, Schneidt, Schutz, and other composers will be featured in the Pomona College music department's annual Christmas concert next Sunday, in Bridges Hall of Music. All seats will be reserved for the three performances, scheduled at 1:30, 4 and 8:15 p.m.

William F. Russell, chairman of the music department, will direct the 150-voice Pomona College Choir and 25-piece Wind Ensemble in a program of familiar carols sung by the audience and choir, a 16th century motet by Flemish composer Jean Mouton, Old English carols in settings by Holst and Vaughan Williams, Gregorian chants for the Christmas season, and two Baroque double choruses; Samuel Scheidt's "Nun Komm, der Heiden Heiland," and Heinrich Schuetz's famous "Deutsches Magnificat." In addition, Pomona College organist David McVey will play organ music by Bach and Daquin.

Admission to any of the three performances is 50 cents per person. Since all seats are reserved, and capacity houses are expected, patrons are urged to purchase their tickets early. Tickets may be obtained at the Thatcher Music Building office, fourth Street and College Avenue, or by calling 626-8511, ext. 2242. Mail orders will be filled in order of receipt, and should specify the performance preferred, together with a second choice and a stamped, return envelope. Checks should be made payable to Pomona College.

Any remaining seats will be sold at the Bridges Hall box office on the day of the program. The box office will open a half hour prior to each concert. Arrangements for wheel chairs may be made in advance through the Thattcher Music Building office.

MSAC slates program of exercise

WALNUT — Two demonstrations of the ancient exercise, Tai Chi Chuan, will be presented by James Wing Woo on Tuesday and Wednesday at 2 p.m. in the Mt. San Antonio College Art Gallery. Both programs are open to the public free of charge.

Woo, who teaches Tai Chi Chuan, Kung Fu and other Chinese martial and art form exercises, says the system demands patience, dedication and humility to perfect the muscular control necessary for this art form. But, he says, the rewards are great for both physical and emotional control and a feeling of total well-being.

The slow, purposeful movements are all designed to elongate the muscles and gain total control in order to tone the mind as well as the body.

Artists plan Yule festivity

ONTARIO — The Associated Artists will have a Christmas party at the Ontario public library, 215 E. C St., at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday.

The program will include a gift exchange, brunch, and selection of the painting of the month, based on a poem in the November newsletter.

Bernice Schuyler and Shirley Bonneville tied for last month's picture of the month award.

Nuclear energy potential realized in '73 activity

By LeROY POPE
UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — This has been the breakthrough year in nuclear energy potential.

Global gas and oil shortages than worsened all year helped cause the breakthrough, but spokesmen for the electric utility industry and manufacturers of nuclear steam generators say other factors helped persuade Americans that atomic power is the inevitable solution to the national energy problem. Efficiency and safety factors have been proved to most everyone's satisfaction.

It has been a record year for the sale of nuclear equipment and nuclear fuel. This pickup actually begain in 1972 after a five-year sales lag in new plants and delays in bringing plants under construction into production.

There were many reasons for the lag—opposition by environmental pressure groups, government restrictions and regulation and technical difficulties that prevented some atomic power plants from achieving expected levels of power output.

This year many of the problems became easier to handle. The general feeling of a real breakthrough resulted not only from the year's sales but from indications that sales in 1974 and 1975 may be at least as good.

Fourteen new nuclear reactors representing 15,258 megawatts of power received permits from the Atomic Energy Commission, making 1973 the industry's peak year for new construction.

Eleven plants ordered in previous years went into production this year, the latest being the Zion 2 unit near Chicago.

"Nearly one-third of all the nuclear plants now operating began operating this year," says the Atomic Industry Forum.

As of mid-November there were 40 operating nuclear power plants in the United States producing 24,766 megawatts. Fifty-eight more comprisiig 54,672 megawatts were building and 109 representing 118,992 megawatts were on firm or "letter of intent" orders.

Predictions that 1974 and 1975 will be as good or better came from the five companies making most of the equipment: Westinghouse Electric Corp. and General Electric Co., which make both electric generators and nuclear steam generators, Combustion Engineering Corp. of Stamford, Conn., and Babcock Wilcox, Inc., of New York, which build nuclear reactors and both nuclear-fired and oil or coal fired steam boilers; and Gulf General Atomics of San Diego, a nuclear specialty firm.

In addition to the booming sales of reactors, steam boilers and turbine generators, the sale of nuclear fuel picked up so sharply this year it was predicted a current surplus of enriched uranium may turn into a shortage before the decade ends.

The opposition to expansion of nuclear energy only eased, it did not collapse. For example, Crusader Ralph Nader and a Boston group called the Union of Concerned Scientists severely condemned an appeal by President Nixon for an increase in nuclear power. Nader called any step-up in nuclear production "utter folly," saying the inherent dangers in all nuclear processes have not been overcome. He went so far as to predict that within five years America will call a complete halt to expansion of nuclear power output.

But the blast of Nader and the Concerned Scientists drew vigorous and rebuking replies from the Atomic Energy Commission, the Atomic Industry Forum and companies in the industry. They said Nader and the scientists based their attacks on outdated data.

Sales volumes for the year of the individual companies making nuclear power equipment are interesting.

Combustion Engineering did so well, both in selling nuclear steam plans and steam boilers for power plants to be fired by coal and oil, that this company's stock rose from around $50 a share to around $94 during a year that has seen huge stock market losses.

Combuston Engineering landed $565 million in orders this year for nuclear powered steam boilers. It also sold $100 million of reactor vessels to its competitor, Westinghouse, and had $6 million in nuclear fuel sales. The company also racked up several hundred million dollars in sales of oil and coal fired boilers.

Its orders for new nuclear plants included: Duke Power Co., six 1,300 megawatt units, $260 million; Arizona Nuclear Power Project, three 1,300 megawatt units, $200 million, Washington Public Power Supply System, Richmond, Wash., a 1,250 megawatt unit, $55 million; and Gulf States Utilities, Beaumont, Tex., a 950 megawatt unit, $50 million.

Babcock Wilcox CE's big competitor, has obtained orders so far this year for nuclear plants totaling 41,000 megawatts, about the same as its 1972 business in this field.

The company would not identify customers or sites. "The customers have not given us the sites in most cases because finding a site and getting local permission to build the plant is the toughest part of a nuclear power program," BW said.

But the company said it has firm orders on six nuclear fired steam generators at a total price with fuel of about $300 million. BW said, "The only thing holding back fast expansion of nuclear power is the slowness of the AEC and regulatory authorities in granting the needed approvals."

Westinghouse and General Electric did more new business in nuclear reactors and boilers this year than Combustion Engineering and Babcock & Wilcox but did not reveal as many details. In addition, these companies sell the electric generators to go with some of their competitors' nuclear steam plants.

Westinghouse said it had received 20 firm and letter of intent orders so far this year for new nuclear reactors totaling around $915 million— not counting nuclear fuel.

Firm orders are for two units in Maryland, two in Wisconsin, two for Union Electric of St. Louis, two for Northern States Power in Minneapolis, one for Rochester Gas & Electric in New York, two in Texas, one in Kansas, one for the federal breeder reactor demonstrator project at Oak Ridge, Tenn. and a $200 million order for a 615,000 kilowatt station in Yugoslavia.

Westinghouse's letter of intent orders this year include two additional units for Public Service Electric of New Jersey's proposed offshore plant (letters of intent for the first two units for this project were received last year by Westinghouse), two units for Middle South Utilities of New Orleans and two for Jacksonville Electric in Florida.

Chairman W. D. Dance of General Electric said his company sold seven nuclear reactor power plants in 1973, including two abroad, a $100 million plant for Spain and one to a country he refused to identify. One domestic buyer was likewise unidentified.

Progress-Bulletin Real Estate

Before you buy a house, learn real estate jargon

By DOROTHEA M. BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) — It helps to know the jargon whether you're following a baseball game, reading a stock market report or buying a house.

Even though homebuying generally is the major purchase of a lifetime for most families, too few understand the terminology that crops up in discussions with brokers and bankers.

"Even if you have an attorney at your side through the whole deal, you're likely to feel the need of a dunce cap unless you take time out to familiarize yourself with the terms and procedures involved in buying a home," says Robert G. Walters, vice president and general manager of the residential sales division of Baird & Warner, Inc., a Chicago-based real estate company.

He offers the following roundup of the most common terms and an explanation of procedures involved in a real estate sale:

AMORTIZATION: This is a provision for gradually paying off the principal amount of a loan, such as a mortgage loan, at the time of each payment of interest. For example, as each payment toward principal is made, the mortgage amount is reduced or amortized by that amount.

BINDER OR OFFER TO PURCHASE: A receipt for money paid to secure the right to purchase real estate upon agreed terms. An offer or a binder will be considered a contract when signed by buyer and seller.

CLOSING COSTS: Often referred to as settlement costs, these costs are in addition to the price of the house. They include the mortgage service charges, title search and insurance, and transfer of ownership charges. Walters cautions: "Be sure your sales contract clearly states who will pay each of these costs — buyer or seller."

CONDOMINIUM: Terms provide for individual ownership of a dwelling unit and an undivided interest in the common areas and facilities which serve the multi-unit project.

COOPERATIVE OR CO-OP: This form of ownership often is confused with a condominium, but there is a decided difference. The co-op is an apartment building or a group of dwellings owned by residents and operated for their benefit by their elected board of directors. The resident occupies but does not own his unit. Rather, he owns a stock in the total enterprise.

EARNEST MONEY: This is the deposit money given to the seller or real estate broker by the potential buyer to show that he is serious about buying the house. If the deal goes through, the earnest money is applied against the downpayment. "But if the deal does not go through," Walters warns, "the money may be forfeited unless specifics have been spelled out in the 'Offer to Purchase' contract. There are contingencies under which the earnest money can be returned to the potential buyer if the sale fails. Such contingencies could be the refusal of a mortgage to the buyer or a defect in the title.

EASEMENT RIGHTE: A right of way granted to a person or company authorizing access to or over the owners' land. Utility companies (electric, natural gas, telephone, water) often have easement rights across your property.

EQUITY: A buyers initial and increasing ownership rights in a house as he pays off the mortgage. When the mortgage is fully paid off the buyer has 100 per cent equity in the house.

ESCROW FUNDS: Money, or papers representing financial transactions, which are given to a third party (usually a realtor or lawyer) to hold until all conditions in a contract are fulfilled.

FHA APPROVAL: This is a misnomer. "There is no such thing as an FHA approved house," Walters points out. "If a builder advertises 'FHA approval' he is misleading you at worst and, at best, badly stating his belief that his house will meet the standards for an FHA insured mortgage."

HAZARD INSURANCE: Insurance to protect against damage caused to property by fire, windstorm and other common hazards. Aside from its importance to homeowners, such insurance always is a stipulation by the mortgagee (lender) to protect his investment.

HOME MORTGAGE LOAN: A special kind of long term loan for buying a house. There are three main kinds of mortgage financing in the United States for single-family homes, townhomes, or condominiums — the conventional mortgage; the VA (Veterans Administration), sometimes called the GI mortgage; and the FHA (Federal Housing Administration) insured loan.

MORTGAGE COMMITMENT: This is the written notice which you will receive from the savings and loan association, bank, or other lender, saying it will advance you the mortgage funds in a specified amount to enable you to buy the house.

MORTGAGE DISCOUNT "POINTS": Discounts (points) are a one-time charge assessed by a lending institution to increase the yield from the mortgage loan to a competitive position with the yield from other types of investments. "It is important to note here," Walters says, "that such points always are paid by the seller at the time of closing." Discounts are generally involved with FHA and VA mortgages.

MORTGAGE INSURANCE PREMIUM: The payment made by a borrower to the lender for transmittal to HUD-FHA to help defray the cost of the FHA mortgage insurance program and to provide a reserve fund to protect lenders against loss in insured mortgage transactions. In the case of an FHA insured mortgage this represents an annual rate of one-half of one per cent paid by the mortgagor (borrower) on a monthly basis to FHA.

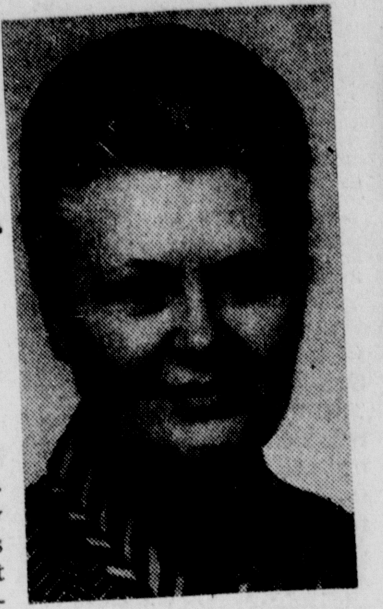
MORTGAGOR: The homeowner who is obligated to repay a mortgage loan on a property he has purchased.

MORTGAGEE: The bank, savings and loan association, or other lender who loans the money to the mortgagor.

SPECIAL ASSESSMENT: A tax for a specific purpose such as providing paved streets or new sewers. Owners whose properties abut the improved streets or tie into the new sewer system must pay the tax.

TITLE INSURANCE: Special insurance which usually protects buyers and lenders against loss of their interest in property because of unforseen occurrences that might be traced to legal flaws in previous ownership. Likewise, a homeowner can protect his interest by purchasing separate coverage.

TITLE SEARCH OR EXAMINATION: Research of title records generally at the local courthouse, to guarantee that you are buying the house from its legal owner and that there are no liens, overdue.



LUCILLE KESTER

MARIA BORJE

Realty sales awards received by 2 women

POMONA — Two women have received awards for real estate sales made during October.

Mrs. Lucille Kester had the largest single sale and Mrs. Maria Borje had the greatest number of sales.

John Kelly of Title Insurance and Trust Co. presented them plaques on behalf of the Pomona Valley Board of Realtors during a recent breakfast meeting.

Mrs. Kester, a member of the realty board since February, has been associated with Rosa Schwartz Realty for the past year.

She is a docent with the Museum of Science and Industry in the Hall of Health, a member of the Crippled Children Guild of Los Angeles and a member of the Trojan Women of USC. She and her husband, George, reside in Claremont. They have two married daughters and three grandchildren.

Mrs. Borje is associated with the Herbert Hawkins Co., Inc., in its Claremont office. She has been involved in real estate in California for the past eight years, three of them as a licensed broker.

She and her family reside in Claremont.

Realtors install leaders

POMONA — Mildred J. Heckmer has become the first woman ever installed as president of the Pomona Valley Board of Realtors.

She succeeded James Odom during an annual installation and dinner dance held at the Pomona National Country Club.

Other new officers are Gordon T. Curtis, first vice president; Joseph D. Beck, second vice president; Charles L. Canfield Jr., secretary; and William B. Johnson, treasurer.

New directors include Peggy Vick, Tom B. Jones, Fern Spaulding and Dale Colby.

Those from the Pomona board serving as directors of the California Real Estate Association are Odom, Canfield, Mrs. Heckmer, Roger Wheeler and Everett E. Legters. Legters will also serve as a director of the National Association of Realtors.

Mrs. Heckmer and her husband have been involved in real estate since 1959 and they opened their own real estate office in Pomona in 1965.

Gravestone, but no body

BOISE, Idaho (UPI) — Police have been holding Francis Headen's gravestone since June because they can't find where he is buried.

Sgt. Mel Lynn said the headstone was found in the street and local cemeteries have been unable to find a grave to go with it.

PUC approves rate increase

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The California Public Utilities Commission has granted another 30 cent per month per customer rate increase to Pacific Gas & Electric Co. to offset increased gas costs.

Tuesday's increase was the final step in a proceeding that began in February, when the company asked for increases amounting to $46.8 million to offset increased prices for Canadian and California producers.

Hearings were held in May, and on July 10 the PUC authorized an interim increase of $18 million to offset part of the Canadian price increase.

Further hearings were held in September on the California supplied gas and the remainder of the Canadian supply.

The PUC said the latest increase would amount to $19.4 million a year for California gas and would increase the figure for Canadian gas to $27.4 million.

Richard Lewis:

Interest drop is expected

UPLAND — "The economic skies are clearing for families whose hopes of owning a new home had been clouded in recent months by tight money and formidable interest rates," said Richard Lewis, president of Lewis Homes of California.

"Oakley Hunter, chairman of the Federal National Mortgage Association, has predicted interest rates on home loans would probably drop to eight per cent by the middle of 1974," he added. The association is a federally backed corporation which purchases mortgages as a means of stabilizing the mortgage market.

"Hunter's encouraging prediction is already being borne out as we are now offering eight per cent loans on many of our new homes and even less at some developments."

These include two newly opened housing projects in Upland—one at Mountain Avenue and 15th Street and the second at San Antonio Avenue and 21st Street.

The purchase price doesn't influence the development's interest rate, said Lewis.

Homes at Mountain Avenue and 15th Street are priced from $28,950 to $31,500. The three and four bedroom homes have up to 1,711 square feet of floor space.

Homes at San Antonio Avenue and 21st Street are priced from $38,000 to $43,950.

Energy crisis dominated news

By ANDREW L. LUBERES
United Press international

The energy crisis dominated much of the nation's headlines this week. John A. Love, who gave up the Colorado governor's mansion last July to become President Nixon's first but short-lived chief energy adviser, resigned this week.

Love's resignation and that of his chief deputy was said to be the result of a top-level squabble with the Nixon Administration over gasoline rationing—a step Love wanted implemented immediately.

Love's successor, Deputy Treasury Secretary William E. Simon, said on being named as head of Nixon's new federal energy agency that Americans could expect significant price increases and perhaps rationing of gasoline and home heating oil.

If gasoline rationing is imposed as "an absolute last resort," Simon said March 1, 1974, would be the earliest possible date for nationwide controls. He said a decision on rationing would be made by the end of the month.

Saudi Arabian Oil Minister Ahmad Zaki Al-Yamani announced in Washington that the Arab countries were prepared to start relaxing their oil embargo as soon as Israeli forces start withdrawing from occupied Arab territory. Holland, the only Western European country faced with the embargo, denied it was altering its views on the Middle East conflict to win Arab favor.

The foreign and economic ministers of the nine Common Market countries postponed a decision on whether to band together and share existing oil supplies. Norway and Britain announced new strong measures to deal with the energy crisis.

As the Cost of Living Council ruled that refiners could increase the price of heating oil but had to cut gasoline prices, truck drivers protesting lower speed limits and higher fuel prices staged blockades on major roads in several states.

WASHINGTON — Gerald R. Ford took office as the nation's 40th vice president and with President Nixon sitting silently by his side pledged dedication "to the rule of law and justice for all Americans." The 60-year-old congressman under six administrations became the first vice president to be confirmed by Congress under the 25th Amendment. He made no mention of the dramatic events leading up to his elevation to the nation's second highest office.

WASHINGTON — President Nixon's diary, submitted during U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica's hearings on gaps tnd flaws in the subpoenaed Watergate tapes, conflicted with the testimony of his personal secretary, Rose Mary Woods. Sirica spent more than four hours listening to the tapes, and heard Nixon's chief adviser testify that the President was "very, very disturbed" and "almost incredulous" when he found out about an 18-minute gap on one of the tapes.

WASHINGTON — A four-day filibuster ended when Senate liberals gave up their battle for federally financed presidential elections. They had attempted to attach the measure to a bill increasing the national debt, but Sen. James B. Allen, D-Ala., the White House and conservative Republicans joined forces and defeated the amendment.

NEW YORK—After dropping sharply for five weeks—even to a three-year low on Wednesday —stock prices rallied strongly Thursday on indications of some progress in the Middle Eeast peace talks.

Israeli and Syrian troops, supported by tanks and artillery, dueled along the Golan Heights and Israeli and Egyptian planes battled over the Gulf of Suez in the heaviest fighting sin e the Middle East cease-fire began. The United States said it would send Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger on a tour of Israel and five Arab countries beginning Dec. 13.

COPENHAGEN — Premier Anker Joergensen resigned after his Social Democratic party fell victim to a shattering election defeat in a voter revolt against high taxes and inflation. The magnitude of the revolt was underscored by the fact that the second largest number of seats in the Foketing (parliament) went to an antitax party whose leader advocated replacing the armed forces with a telephone-answering device announcing "We surrender" in Russian.

Friend is boy crazy

By JEAN ADAMS

BAD NIGHT: (Q) I have a girl friend who is BOY CRAZY. When I am with her she gets into trouble. I spent the night with her. She didn't tell me her parents wouldn't be there or that her two boy friends were coming over.

Well, my mother called to say goodnight and one of the guys answered the phone. Now my mother doesn't trust me anymore. Can you tell me what to do?—Caught in California.

(A) When you got to your girl friend's house and found out what the facts were you should have called your mother to come get you. Tell her that if anything similar ever happens again anywhere you will do that.

Also consider looking for a more dependable girl friend.

"BROTHER": (Q.) Three years ago Kenny and I "accepted" each other as brother and sister. I was 11 then and, being an only child, wanted so much to have a brother.

I am 14 now and find that I feel romantically toward Kenny, who is now 18. I have never felt like that toward a boy. Do you think my feelings are inordinate? —"Little Sister" in Pennsylvania.

(A.) It is not at all surprising to me that you have found that what you thought three years ago was "brotherly" love was and still is in reality the kind of emotion that the standard girl feels for the standard boy.

But do not assume (or even hope) that Kenny will return your feelings. You started this and he went along, and probably now he has his mind on 19-year-old matters. It is time for your to get YOUR mind on 14-year-old boys.

(Jean Adams reads every letter but regrets that she cannot send individual replies. Address your letter to Jean Adams, care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 2402, Houston, Texas 77001.)

Thieves looting offices posing as repairmen

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Thieves are getting away with $25,000 worth of office equipment each month in San Francisco's financial district, according to police.

Inspectors Gerard Evans and David Kellog said that thieves pose as rug cleaners and typewriter servicemen to gain entrance to corporation offices. They do most of their work during the noon hour and between 5 and 6 p.m.

Evans said a man will come in posing as a rug cleaner, for instance, and when a secretary goes to check with her boss, the thief picks up a calculator or other piece of expensive equipment and leaves.

Some people have more than one story.

Not us. Our story is always the same at Orchard Lane: one-story condominium homes with two or three bedrooms—for people who don't like to climb stairs... who resent strangers dancing on their ceiling...who are bothered by the patter of little feet overhead... who want maximum quality throughout their home.

Love it and leave it. Take off whenever you like—for a weekend or an extended trip. With all exterior maintenance taken care of by the Homeowners Association, there are no bothersome chores to keep you home. But when you are home, there's much to enjoy at Orchard Lane. All windows are fully draped...many rooms are fully carpeted. There's a color-coordinated, built-in range with continuously self-cleaning oven...and an automatic dishwasher. Other features include cathedral ceilings, ash cabinets, Formica countertops, cultured marble pullmans...even fireplaces in some models. Then there's the swimming pool, the Jacuzzi, and...well, you'd better come see the rest. It's a real value, priced from

A MESSAGE TO CLASSIFIED AD USERS

You are about to invest money for an Ad and you are entitled to get results. To accomplish this it is necessary for you to TELL ALL about the details of your offer. Be sure you don't omit any of the following errors that prevent results. Readers can't guess on important details. Remember, a well written informative ad will get results faster and cost less in the long run.

1. Don't Omit The Address

Many out-of-town readers will write you but will not spend money for a long distance call.

2. Don't Omit The Phone Number

Many readers will call you but do not find it convenient to come to your home.

3. Don't Use Blind Box Numbers

Avoid them if at all possible. They are difficult to answer and many people are suspicious of them.

4. Don't Conceal The Price

Surveys show that a high percentage of readers will not answer an ad unless the price is given.

5. Don't Leave Home On The Days You Advertise

Many good prospects will not call the second time if your phone is unanswered.

6. Don't Forget, Check Your Ad The First Day It Runs. Call Us!

7. Don't Omit Important Words To Save Money

DEPARTMENT OF HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT

The government will hold a sealed bid sale on Dec. 18, 1973 on properties listed below.

"HUD properties are offered for sale to qualified purchasers without regard to the prospective purchaser's race, religion or national origin." Purchasers should contact the real estate broker of their choice. Offers to purchase may be submitted direct to the local office when the purchaser cannot secure the services of a qualified broker. The local HUD office is located at 2500 Wilshire Blvd., L.A., Calif. 90057, Room 414.

All offers must be submitted on a per property basis, all cash. It is permissible to submit offers on two or more properties, however, only on an individual basis. This is so that the highest offer received for each property prevails.

Bids are to be opened on December 18, 1973 at 2:00 p.m.

FRIENDS,
Here are just a few of the many written comments we receive from our happy customers:

Courteous, cooperative, considerate attention on every detail from all your personnel.
H. & B. RUSH, Mira Loma

Cooperation and concern of your personnel made the transition to mobile home living a pleasant experience.
L. HUTCHINSON, Pom.

Thanks for the fine way you have treated us in our new mobile home and we love every minute of it.
R. & M. BLAND, Pom.

Your Service Personnel have been exceptional, both in workmanship and pleasant attitude. Thanks so much.
A. & D. KRUGER, La Puente

Yes folks, our entire staff of efficient, cooperative personnel are at your service to provide you with courteous customer relations for the rest of your life!

★★★★★★★
BUT
Don't buy a new mobile home before you read this. A new home 12 x 64 expando cost $7,500, license the first year $250, skirting and awnings $1,200, porches $1,500, landscaping $600, utility sheds $250, cooler and dishwahser $550, decorations $500, total $10,600. The first year you'll spend $4,000 and you'll not be able to recover this money. So why not buy my better than new mobile home with all this work done, and I'll sacrifice my equity and give you $500 worth of bookcases. Total cost equals loan balance $6,600, bank will finance total (714) 599-5655.

LOOK, ED!
SPORTSMEN AND NATURE LOVERS!
DON'T DISTURB A BODY OR ITS REMAINS FOUND IN THE FIELD. MARK LOCATION AND NOTIFY POLICE. Dick Tracy
INTENSIVE SEARCH REVEALS BUT ONE LIVING MEMBER OF "DIAMOND-TOOTH" RINKLES' CLAN, A HALF-SISTER.
THIS WAS HIS ROOM.
THAT WAS HIS HAT.
MY, MY! I CAN SEE HIM NOW.
APPARENTLY THE KILLERS WERE AFTER THE DIAMONDS IN HIS TEETH.-
OH, NO, IT COULDN'T HAVE BEEN THAT.
THEN YOU WERE PRESENT WHEN THOSE WERE REMOVED?
YES, I WAS PRESENT! HE AND I WERE IN HIS CAR. THERE WAS A TRAFFIC ACCIDENT.
HE LOST THESE THREE TEETH WHEN HIS HEAD WAS HURLED AGAINST THE REAR VIEW MIRROR AND WINDSHIELD.
HE GAVE THE BROKEN TEETH TO ME FOR SAFEKEEPING. THAT'S THE LAST TIME I SAW MY HALF-BROTHER ALIVE.
SOMETIMES HE WORE A WIG -THAT'S THE WIG.
MISS RINKLES, YOU'RE QUITE DISRESPECTFUL TOWARD YOUR HALF-BROTHER. -HOW COME?
MR. TRACY, HE WAS A BEAST. -A REAL BEAST.

Polly's Pointers

DEAR POLLY — Once I had no fancy paper for giftwrap and could not get out to get any. I resorted to using newspaper and a bright bow. The children were so delighted that I have continued to do this — the women's page for a lady's gift, sports pages for a man and the funnies for children. This is inexpensive, handy, uses old papers and is FUN. — LAVONNE

(Polly's note: The big, fat yarn used for gift wrapping looks great on newspaper - wrapped packages, particularly when red or green yarn is used.)

Polly pays $1.00 for every idea used. Send them to her, c/o this newspaper.

DEAR POLLY — Here's how I made a cute holder for my pencil and reminder pad. I cut the shape of an owl, about 12 inches high, out of a rug remnant, sewed two buttons on for eyes and glued a triangle of colored felt for the beak. I stuck a small felt pocket on the lower front to hold a small pad of paper and placed a pencil in the two claws. A cord run through holes made in each ear can make a hanger for this. — BLANCHE.

DEAR POLLY — I am only 13, but have a good Pointer for the owners of new puppies. If you do not have a cool place to keep your puppy the bathtub is the place. Put some newspapers at one end and a little washable rug at the other, with some space left between that will be smooth and cool. If he seems to be too cool pick him up and place him on the rug. The sides of the tub cut off any drafts. If you like, a stuffed animal could be put in for him to play with. — MARY H.

DEAR POLLY — My daughter and I who live in different states exchanged address labels. Now, it only takes two licks to completely address an envelope. — MRS. E. J. W.

DEAR POLLY — Cutting a child's nails can pose a real problem. To make it easier and safer sit in front of a mirror with the child on your lap. The child's attention is caught by seeing himself in the mirror and you are saved a lot of squirming around. — LUCILLE

DEAR POLLY — So that our emergency flashlight is always handy we hang it from a cup hook placed behind the headboard of our bed. — MRS. M. P.

DEAR POLLY — Put a mirror on the inside of your kitchen cupboard and find it very handy for a quick peek when the doorbell rings. — PAT

THIS WEEK'S TOP PRIZE QUESTION:

THE HOLES WE FIND IN SWISS CHEESE ARE MADE BY BUBBLES OF GAS THAT FORM IN THE CHEESE AS IT IS BEING MADE. IN THE CHEESE FACTORY, A SAFE KIND OF BACTERIA IS ADDED TO THE MILK FROM WHICH THE CHEESE IS MADE. THE BACTERIA CAUSE THE CHEESE TO RIPEN OR FERMENT. AS IT FERMENTS, THE BACTERIA MAKE AIR BUBBLES WHICH BECOME TRAPPED IN THE CHEESE IN THE FORM OF THE FAMILIAR HOLES.

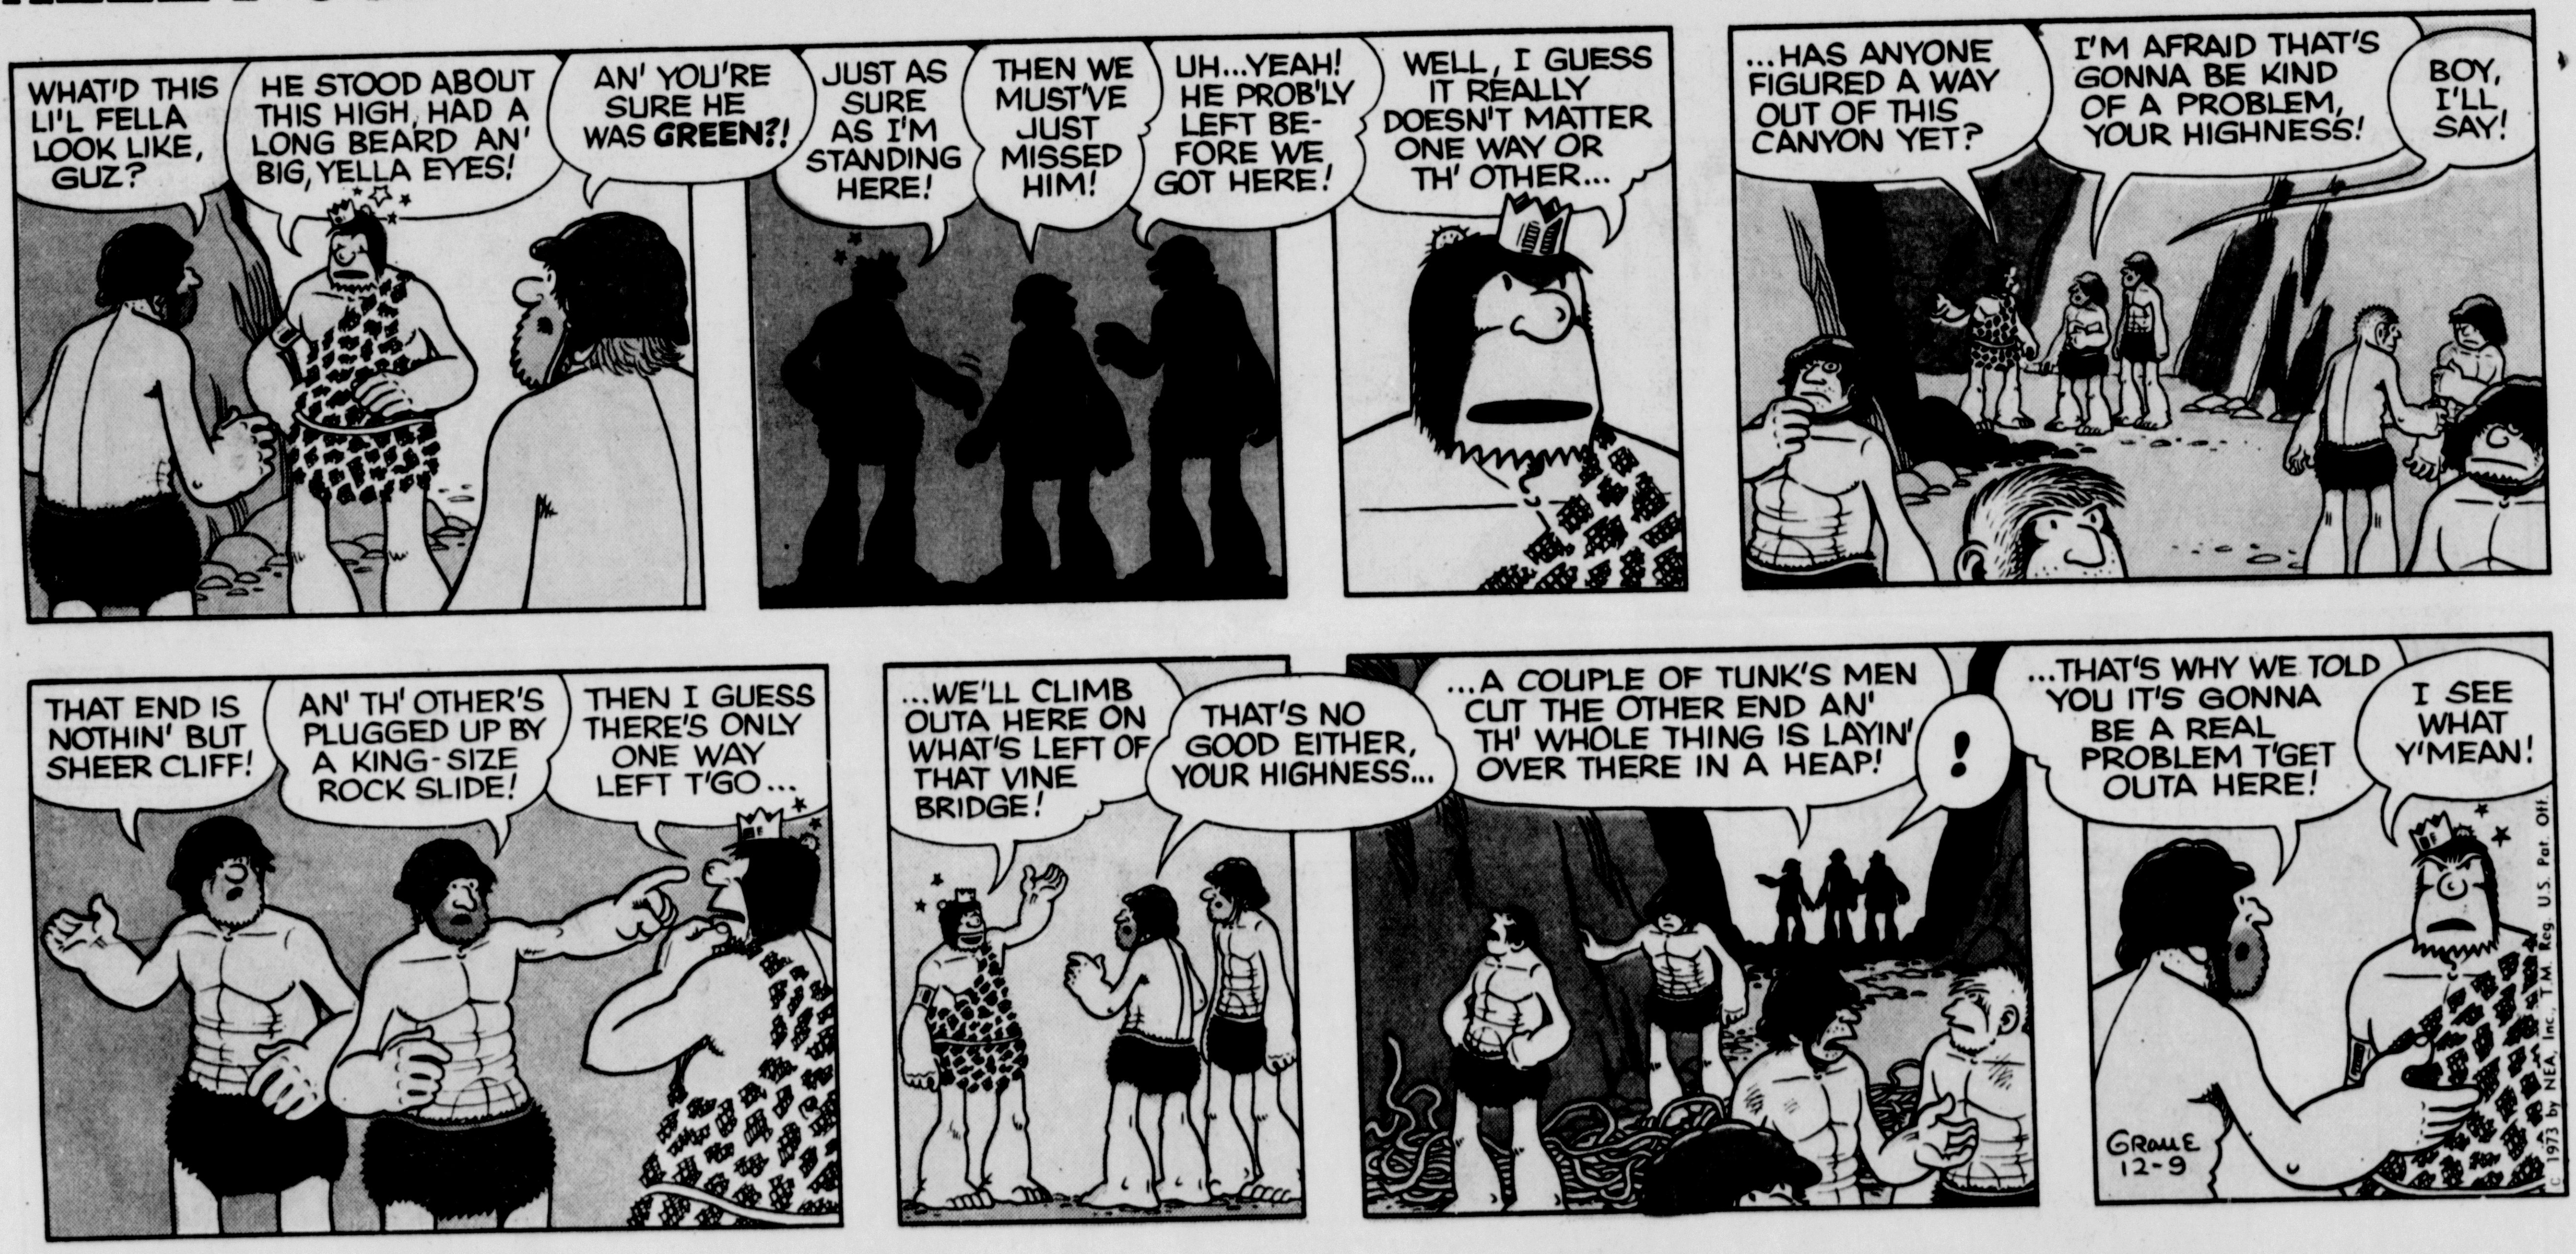
BY DAVE GRAUE



WHAT'D THIS LI'L FELLA LOOK LIKE, GUZ?
HE STOOD ABOUT THIS HIGH, HAD A LONG BEARD AN' BIG, YELLA EYES!
AN' YOU'RE SURE HE WAS GREEN?!
JUST AS SURE AS I'M STANDING HERE!
THEN WE MUST'VE JUST MISSED HIM!
UH...YEAH! HE PROB'LY LEFT BEFORE WE GOT HERE!
WELL, I GUESS IT REALLY DOESN'T MATTER ONE WAY OR TH' OTHER...
...HAS ANYONE FIGURED A WAY OUT OF THIS CANYON YET?
I'M AFRAID THAT'S GONNA BE KIND OF A PROBLEM, YOUR HIGHNESS!
BOY, I'LL SAY!
THAT END IS NOTHIN' BUT SHEER CLIFF!
AN' TH' OTHER'S PLUGGED UP BY A KING-SIZE ROCK SLIDE!
THEN I GUESS THERE'S ONLY ONE WAY LEFT T'GO...
...WE'LL CLIMB OUTA HERE ON WHAT'S LEFT OF THAT VINE BRIDGE!
THAT'S NO GOOD EITHER, YOUR HIGHNESS...
...A COUPLE OF TUNK'S MEN CUT THE OTHER END AN' TH' WHOLE THING IS LAYIN' OVER THERE IN A HEAP!
...THAT'S WHY WE TOLD YOU IT'S GONNA BE A REAL PROBLEM T'GET OUTA HERE!
I SEE WHAT Y'MEAN!

A NEW TRADITION

"Merv Griffin And The Christmas Kids," the KTTV holiday special which airs Sunday at 6:30PM on Channel 11, puts forth a solid example of the non-existing generation gap. The personable talk-show host, brings together a cast of mini super stars for his Christmas special.

A "Christmas Village," no doubt an imaginary and wondrous township, finds its residents the creative elfins currently seen and enjoyed by adults on such television series as The Waltons and The Partridge Family. Merv's Special Guest Star is Rodney Allen Ripey, who again chimes his way into America's hearts with his rendition of Santa Claus Is Coming to Town."

The Waltons have sent Mary Elizabether McDonough and Eric Scott to the Christmas Village. The Partridge Family's new friend, Rickey Segall is there too. Kim Richard, formerly of Nanny And the Professor series, brilliant young pianist Leland Greenwald, guitarist Randy Gray, The Mitchell Singing Boys Choirs, John Sheldon, and three year old "Kejo" also have been provided special visas to the Christmas Village.

The young people all have the occasion to offer their talents and contribute to the merriment of the village.

'MAKE-BELIEVE WINTER'

Perry Como's annual "Winter Show" is not only a pre-holiday salute to the season, it is a nostalgic, make-believe and very personal return to a familiar December climate for the singer himself. Born in Pennsylvania and a long-time resident of New York State, Como grew up with Jack Frost nipping at his nose and knows all about the icy beauties of a winter wonderland.

The veteran performer "retired" to Florida several years ago (if his schedule of television specials, guest appearances and Las Vegas headlining can be called retirement) and now makes his permanent home in the Sunshine State. So the artificial snow and icicles on the set of his "Winter Show," which will be presented as a special Monday at 9PM on CBS, is as close as he gets these days to the real trappings of winter. Just to make the imaginary qualities of it all complete, the show is produced in California!

"Make-believe can be very convincing at times," says Como. "We had a scenic rural backdrop on the show that was so close to my memories that my ears got cold!" After all, he reminds, this whole industry is built on make-believe. "And if we performers can't use enough imagination to see through to the reality it's based upon, we're in the wrong business." And so saying, Como buckled his overshoes and walked out to an al fresco lunch in the 85-degree sunshine.

Perry Como and special guest star Sally Struthers (of "All in the Family") get into the Christmas spirit by delivering gifts.

COVER CLOSE-UP

'A PERSONAL EXPERIENCE'

Telly Savalas believes that an actor has the right to his opinion. This attitude and Savalas' willingness to exercise his rights hinges Kojak as much on the solid craftsmanship of its star as it does on the skill of the creative personnel behind the series.

"Kojak is everything I hoped for," he says, "and the acting is a full-time occupation. But if there's something which feels wrong or synthetic in a script we make changes on the spot. I feel that an actor should be able to voice his feelings about character, dialogue and story. Otherwise his validity suffers."

Long a television holdout, Savalas took on the title role in Kojak after the success of "The Marcus-Nelson Murders," the special three-hour movie for television which introduced the tough and compassionate, brutal and gentle detective. From it, Savalas won an Emmy award nomination and a host of new fans. Something not to be taken lightly by any actor. How well Savalas does under the ardors of weekly television is apparent on Wednesdays at 10PM on CBS. He, and the series, are doing just fine.

Savalas' unusual background places him in a position well qualified for an objective look at an actor's place in today's television scene. It was a freak circumstance which brought him into acting in the first place. Born Aristotle Savalas in Garden City, New York, he grew up in a large and lively family. His mother, Christine Savalas, is a leading American Painter and his late father is described by Telly as "an extraordinary man."

Headed toward Psychology, he interrupted his education at Holy Cross Institute in Connecticut to enlist in the army when World War II broke out. Following military service, he resumed his education at Columbia University, graduating with honors and a B. S. degree. Disillusioned with his initial entry into psychology, Savalas joined the Information Services of the State Department. After two years he was promoted to executive director. Three years later he moved to ABC-TV as a senior director of news and special events. It was during this time that he created the "Your Voice of America" series which garnered both the Freedom and Peabody awards.

His acting career began when he was unable to find for an agent an actor who could do a proper accent. He went himself to the audition on a whim and to his astonishment won the role of a European judge in an "Armstrong Circle Theatre." That performance led to three character roles on CBS' "The Witness" series—Lucky Luciano, Arnold Rothstein and Al Capone. Burt Lancaster was so impressed with the Luciano portrayal that he signed Savalas for the role of a hardened criminal in "Birdman of Alcatraz," which won Savalas an Oscar for best supporting actor in 1962.

A long list of memorable screen characterizations followed. Notably as a homicidal religious fanatic in "The Dirty Dozen" and as Pontius Pilate in "The Greatest Story Ever Told," and there were villainous roles in "Day of the Landgrabber," "The Battle of the Bulge" and "Cape Fear," among others.

Although Savalas earned a reputation as the "Best of the baddies," he was usually the heavy until CBS-TV's "Marcus-Nelson Murders." Two days later he went to the race track and was literally mobbed. Savalas was used to a respectable amount of fan attention, but nothing like he's been accorded through the powers of television. And he likes it.

"You have to be crazy not to like applause," he reasons. "The danger is not knowing what you will do with your life if it stops. For myself, I could always be a teacher."

It's doubtful if Savalas will ever get to teach, unless it's a course on how to be a successful actor. Kojak will probably have a long and healthy life and Savalas will continue to revel in its environment. For him, the series is an experience far more personal than many actors can claim from their roles. His strong presence is a major factor of the series and his inherent drive as a perfectionist is apparent in helping the hour-long episodes stand way above the plethora of other police series now on the air.

And behind the cameras are such other talents as Kojak creator Abby Mann, executive producer Matthew Rapf and producer James McAdams. The four make a formidable team.

FOR SUZANNE PLESHETTE

Is there any similarity between Bob Newhart, who plays your husband on "The Bob Newhart Show," and your husband [Thomas J. Gallagher III]?—N. Roberts, Fairbury, Neb.

● Many. They are two of the brightest, funniest men I know—to me, the two most important qualities in a sustaining relationship. Each is strong in his own fashion. They don't feel they have to prove anything. Both are also active and interested in other things. And both are rooted in middle-class ethics and morals, and believe in fidelity. In other words, they're the kind of people I'd want my children to be like. They also share one trait that makes it difficult to get along with them: a need for privacy. This is difficult for a woman as gregarious as I am, or as Bob's wife, Ginny, is. It is not that they don't want to be with us, they just seem to need time alone. Also, both men sit on their anger and prefer to resolve conflicts by themselves rather than talk them out.

FOR JOE NAMATH

How do you keep your morale up after you suffer an injury that ruins a season for you?—Charles Johnson, Austin, Texas

● The big thing is that thank God you've only got a football injury instead of something like cancer.

FOR TAYLOR CALDWELL, author

I know you've had an interesting life. Have you ever considered writing your autobiography?—J. J. Evans, Birmingham, Ala.

● My late editor at Doubleday asked me about this, and I gave him a three-page outline. His comment was, "No one would believe this!" That was the end of that.

FOR JACQUELINE BISSET

We hear of so much divorce and drug-taking. Do you think actresses can ever be happy?—B. J., Jonesboro, Ark.

● I know that I enjoy life—maybe because I am not driven by a desire for success. I am not consumed by my career. I honestly feel I could give it up if something better came along. In fact, I am happiest in the gap between films.

FOR WILLIE MAYS

Why were you called the "Say Hey Kid"?—G. Barber, Las Vegas, Nev.

● I got that name when I came to New York. I didn't know anybody's name, so when I wanted to talk to a guy, I'd say, "Say-hey." What else was I gonna say?

FOR PAT BOONE

On TV recently you said "Watergate" was mentioned in the Bible. Could you please tell me where?—W. P. H., Newport, Ohio

● It's in Nehemiah, Chapter VIII. The water gate in the rebuilt Jerusalem wall served as the backdrop against which people heard God's law again after many years of ignoring it. The people wept as they realized how far they had wandered from God. Isn't it interesting the way history repeats itself?

FOR SEN. HENRY M. JACKSON (D-Wash.)

It's been charged that the Russians have lobbyists on Capitol Hill. Can this be true?—A. A. J., Fort Pierce, Fla.

● The Soviet Embassy does indeed have a staff assigned to the Hill. They come in and out of my subcommittee on national security office, getting material and literature. Anyone who thinks the Soviets are not active up here is not keeping up with what's going on. It would be nice if we could have similar access to people in the Kremlin.

FOR KAREN BLACK, actress

If you could use just one adjective to describe yourself, which one would you use?—P.B.O., Oceanside, Calif.

● Direct.

FOR JULIET PROWSE

You used to be good friends with Frank Sinatra. In fact, if I remember correctly, you almost married him. Do you still see each other?—P. Wingate, Kankakee, Ill.

● I'm married now—and I haven't seen Frank in two years.

FOR SEN. CHARLES PERCY (R-Ill.)

Do you think Watergate has hurt the chances of future Republican presidential candidates?—Scott Haas, Decatur, Ill.

● Not necessarily. In 1924, in the first general election after the infamous Teapot Dome scandal—which was also during a Republican administration—the Republicans not only won the Presidency but also gained three seats in the Senate and 23 seats in the House. I believe voters will recognize that no evidence has ever been offered to connect Republicans in general with Watergate.

Hal Linden cuddles pleasingly plump Mary Jo Catlett and Margret Coleman, who appear with him in "The Pajama Game."

Joy to the Rounder Woman!

By Anita Summer

What better place to discover the charms of plumper women than backstage at the revival of the hit musical, "The Pajama Game?" The cast includes Mary Jo Catlett and Margret Coleman, who tip the scales, respectively, at 185 and 168. Director George Abbott, producer-composer Richard Adler, and Hal Linden, the star, are all fanciers and defenders of the rounder, more generously-built woman.

"My first wife was a plump woman," recalls Abbott, "and for years I wasn't aware there was any other kind. I was originally attracted to her by her mind, legs, hands and healthy appearance." "The Pajama Game" is Abbott's 116th show, so during his long career he has met actresses of all shapes and sizes. "I've always found plump women know instinctively when a man needs to be consoled or comforted. They must have built-in radar. My wife always had a ready, sympathetic ear."

Said Richard Adler: "Men have always enjoyed cuddly women. Paintings from the Renaissance era depict females with rounded bellies and behinds. The first thing that strikes you about Mary Jo and Margret is not their weight, but their lovely features, peaches-and-cream complexions and expressions. They remind you of a Renoir . . . A man doesn't want to feel he's holding another man in his arms. He doesn't want a muscular woman, but one who is soft. It's called Desire of the Flesh, not Desire of the Bone. Men like women to be rounded and 'zoftig.'"

Hal Linden says he thinks plumper women are more relaxed—and so more appealing—because they're less competitive. "If a thinner woman puts on weight, she's a nervous wreck until she loses it. Her personality suffers. But if a plumper woman gains a few pounds, it's not noticeable and, consequently, she doesn't dissolve into a neurotic episode." As a high school student, Linden fell for a girl who was on the hefty side. "It was because of her face," he explained. "She was beautiful. Also," Linden decided, "plumper women are warmer. They give off more body heat." fw

Are Plump Girls More Affectionate Than Slim Ones?

By John E. Gibson

In this quiz, which concerns itself with the ladies, we take a look at the shape they're in.

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. Women tend to have specific personality traits, depending on whether their figure is slim, medium, on the "pleasingly plump" side or decidely overweight.

2. Fashion-wise, the cards are stacked against women who are "more generously endowed" than others.

3. People who are overweight tend to be hard to get along with.

4. Women who are heavier than average tend to be more feminine.

5. Women with slim figures tend to be preferred by men who are aggressive, gregarious and outgoing.

6. Buxom women have the greatest attraction for the majority of men.

7. Plump girls tend to be more affectionate than slim girls.

8. People who cause the weight scales to cringe a bit as they approach usually have a jolly, easy-going, take-life-as-you-find-it personality.

9. Most women who are heavy get that way because they eat too much and take too little exercise.

10. Many women are at their best when a few pounds overweight.

True or False: Women who are heavier than average tend to be more feminine. (See number 4)

ANSWERS

1. True. Studies in both Britain and the U.S. have shown that slim women tend to be the most secretive, the least inclined to wear their hearts on their sleeves, and to be the most discriminating in forming relationships. Those of medium build tend to be energetic, frank, outgoing, and to enjoy the excitement of risk and chance. "Pleasingly plump" girls, it was found, tend to be characterized by love of physical comfort (including food), enjoyment of socializing with others, and a deep need for affection and approval. The obese—or extremely overweight—women are more likely to be troubled with inner conflicts, frustration and anxiety.

2. True. A team of Harvard University investigators, who have completed a study of the subject, succinctly sum up the situation as follows: "For the last several decades, fashions have been tailored for the very tall, narrow-hipped, rather wide-shouldered female figure. Women who are short, stout, or wide-hipped with narrow shoulders have difficulty dressing à la mode." Also, women with more ample endowments are not only at a disadvantage but often feel compelled to take steps to make their figures conform to current ideals.

3. False—as evidenced by National Science Foundation studies of overweight individuals, which showed that people who give the scales a "bad time" actually tend to be quite amenable in most cases, willing to compromise when necessary, quick to adapt to social situations and usually open to suggestion.

4. True. University studies have shown that women who are heavier than average make significantly higher femininity scores on psychological tests and personality questionnaires. They have also been found to have "greater emotional reactivity"—to be more acutely sensitive to the feelings of others.

5. False. Psychological studies have shown that men of this temperament tend very definitely to prefer more generously proportioned women – those whose physical endowments are on the impressive side.

6. False. Psychologist Hans J. Eysenck, who has conducted extensive studies in this area, finds that the majority of men (and they are those whom personality tests show to be reserved rather than demonstrative, controlled rather than impulsive) tend very definitely to shy

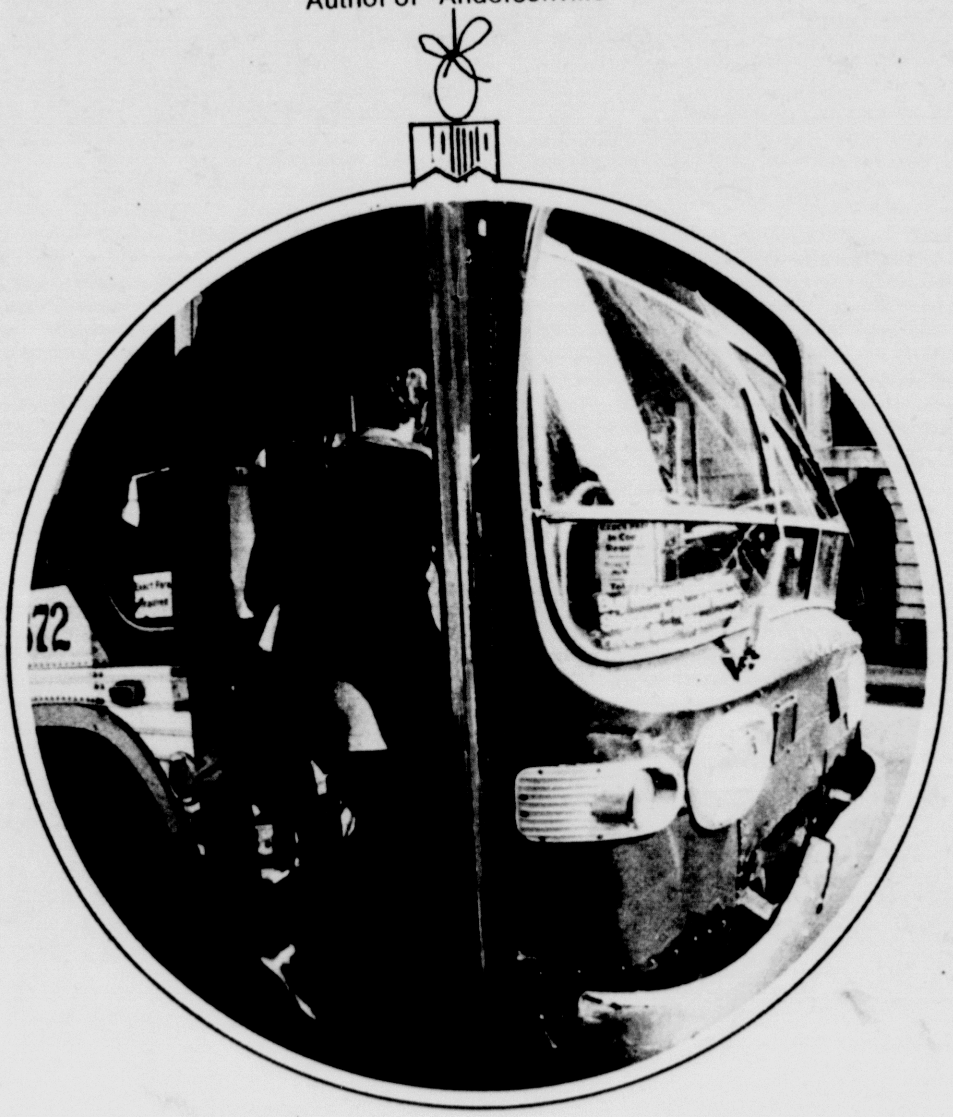
Christmas on a Bus, In the Heart Of the Great City

A Special True Story

By MacKinlay Kantor

Author of "Andersonville"



Dick regarded his fellow passengers: a full load of sad faces, tired faces, cold faces, grim faces.

MacKinlay Kantor

Evening weather spread no Good Tidings of Great Joy as the bus plowed north on New York's Third Avenue. Aboard the bus, my friend Dick Glendinning decided that the weatherman had deliberately attempted to abolish Christmas Eve as an institution.

Rain fell on sooty slush along the sidewalks. Drab figures huddled under umbrellas, hurrying to escape raw unpleasantness. Dick regarded his fellow passengers: a full load of sad faces, tired faces, cold faces, grim faces. Many were carrying gaily wrapped Christmas parcels. Still, they looked sullen.

A scrawny woman got on, her coat pebbled with sleet. She had trouble finding change in her purse. The driver was a hulking man with a thick neck. He growled, "O.K., lady, let's get going." The passenger found money for her fare, but she snarled as she dropped coins into the receptacle.

Sixtieth Street would be next. Glendinning signalled and moved to the front and stood grasping a pole for support. The bus groaned to a stop.

Before getting off, Dick looked first at the driver, then at the sullen passengers. He lifted his voice so that it would carry to the back of the bus:

"You're the worst bunch of sourpusses I ever saw in my life!" he shouted. Then he got off and walked up to his mother's apartment.

Dick and his wife Sally were from Baltimore. They had traveled to New York City to spend Christmas with Dick's mother. When Dick got back, he found Sally alone in the kitchen, making pies.

"Well, was it fun?" she asked.

"It was horrible."

"The club was horrible?" (Dick had been having a drink with some old friends at the Dartmouth Club.)

"No, no, that was fine. It was that Third Avenue bus—"

He told the whole story and concluded, "But at least I had the satisfaction of telling them off!"

Sally was quiet a moment. Then she said, "I don't think that was a very nice thing to do. Maybe those folks could have done with a little cheering up. How might it have been if, instead of glowering at them, you'd wished them a warmhearted Merry Christmas?"

Dick sulked off into the living room, sat in the dark and looked down at cold streets and traffic lights. He felt ashamed of himself. Sally was right. He got up, went to the bathroom and washed his face. When he stopped at the kitchen doorway again, he had his topcoat on and was carrying his hat. He said to Sally, "I just had an idea. I'm going to try to make amends." He went out into the hall and down.

When the next bus came south on Lexington Avenue and Dick stepped aboard, it was obvious that he'd defied the laws of probability. It was the very same bus he had caught on Third Avenue; it had turned around and was now heading back down Lexington.

As Glendinning reached into his pocket for change, the driver lifted his gaze from the street ahead. His eyes narrowed as he recognized the passenger.

"Sourpuss yourself!" snarled the driver.

Dick began, "I'm sorry I said—"

"What the hell's the difference?" The driver turned away and slouched over his wheel.

This time there were a number of empty seats. Nevertheless, Dick sat down next to a boy of about 14.

He nerved himself to begin. Then, out loud, he began singing Jingle Bells. The youth beside him looked as if he were alarmed—then amused. He said, "We had that in school."

"Good. Come on, let's go."

The boy began to sing with him.

Two black women sat just ahead, and they turned and smiled. One said to her companion, "Somebody's happy!" Dick beckoned her and nodded his head. She nodded back, cleared her throat and added a clear contralto.

Dick looked toward the front. The driver was twisting around to see what was going on back there. Other people nearby were humming, and some of them seemed to be singing a little, although they were shy about it.

Across the aisle, a young woman spoke up. "Haven't we ridden in that one-horse open sleigh about long enough?" she laughed. And she began, "The first Nöel the angels did say...."

By the end of the second chorus, half the people on the bus were singing along with her.

Near Twenty-third Street the bus halted. There'd been a fire alarm—just a grease fire in some restaurant kitchen—but a lot of equipment had responded. Traffic was blocked solidly. The bus sat there for a few minutes; then the cops had the driver back up and go around a couple of blocks.

The odd thing was that folks who'd been observing the fire seemed to find that bus with its singing passengers much more fascinating than what they'd come out to watch. Pedestrians laughed and pointed. Dick could hear one man outside explaining to his wife that probably this wasn't a regular Lexington Avenue bus; it was a chartered deal. Some club or

IN THIS GRIND-EM-OUT WORLD, ISN'T IT NICE TO KNOW SOME PEOPLE REFUSE TO GRIND-EM-OUT?

We're sticklers about how Kent is made.

That's why Kent is probably the most quality-tested cigarette made.

We try to get rid of any taste-robbing imperfections before a Kent ever sees the light of a match. (Over 200 different quality checks in the manufacturing end, alone.)

But Kent quality goes beyond that.

We go to 3 continents, 4 countries and 10 states to find the right kind of tobaccos for the milder Kent blend.

To complement this blend, we even invented our own filter, the famous Micronite filter—to smooth the flavor of Kent.

Why are we so adamant about how Kent is made?

Because, that way we can give you the mild, smooth taste that makes Kent what it is: America's quality cigarette.

A Garland of Christmas Verses

By Richard Armour

About Richard Armour

Richard Armour, who writes "Armour's Armoury" for FAMILY WEEKLY, is an English professor who has been writing at least three pieces of verse or prose every morning for the past 35 years. He claims, "My writing is 33⅓ percent inspiration, 33⅓ percent perspiration and 33⅓ percent desperation!" He has written more than 40 books, his latest being "It All Started with Freshman English." Retired as a dean from Scripps College, Claremont, Calif., Mr. Armour lectures at campuses across the country and for (of all things) the State Department!

I.

Christmas is the time of year
Known for happiness and
cheer,
Time for being kind, forgiving,
Generous to all the living.
Christmas, too, is something more:
Being trampled in a store
Seeking bargains, on and on,
Getting there before they're gone,
And when wrapped (don't laugh or scoff),
Making sure the price tag's off.

II.

Christmas, time of merry
cheeriness,
Also is a time of weariness,
Time of stamping envelopes
Full of notes with news and hopes
Sent to friends who live no
more
Where they did the year
before,
Likewise getting (quite a plight, too)
Cards from those you didn't write to,
Also duplicated pages
Which to read would take you ages.

III.

How, I ask, could Christmas be
If there weren't a Christmas tree?
Yet there's choosing one just right,
One that's bushy, proper
height.
Place an angel or a star
On the top, which seems up far.
Dad will do it on a ladder
Held by Mom (he's glad he had her).
Then there's that stern choice
judicial:
Tree that's real or artificial?

IV.

Christmas is when people
gather.
Some you welcome, some you'd rather Stayed away. No, that is wrong—
Stayed, but didn't stay so long.
In-laws, outlaws congregate;
Some come early, some come late.
Some are old and some are young,
Most are fun to be among.
"Next year," some say, "we invite you.
Visit us." How they delight
you!

V.

Christmas, time of starry skies,
Time for puddings, too, and
pies:
Apple, mincemeat, plum, and
others,
Baked by sacrificial mothers.
Time of turkey, gravy, dressing,
Cooked by recipes—and
guessing.
Just this once, forget your diet,
Take a second on the quiet.
One consoling thought, at that:
Santa's happy, and he's fat.

VI.

Christmas greetings, one and
all!
Christmas can be quite a ball.
Open presents, hide your sorrow—
They can be exchanged
tomorrow.
Sing a carol, sing like birds,

JACQUELINE BISSET

I had such lovely Christmases as a child. But I think what has happened to Christmas is rather dreadful. It isn't just that I've grown up and out of the marvelous conviction that the mystical sudden appearance of the Christmas tree at six on Christmas morning, lighted and loaded with gifts and ornaments, was really, truly magic; it is my disgust at how commercial Christmas has become. I hate buying presents on cue. I don't even send Christmas cards any more. I like the spirit of Christmas, and I like having people be nice. This is very admirable. I just wish they'd be like that all year long!

DENNIS WEAVER

I attend the Church of Self Realization, and I have come to understand that an individual's peace is carried within him. The object of our senses doesn't have the power to make us happy. For example, you see a hat and you buy it. Then you're happy, you say. But when you get it, almost immediately the pleasure begins to fade away. If it had the power within itself to make happiness, then it would do so for everybody. But it doesn't. So you see, it's what's within you, that creates peace and breeds gentleness. And that's the way I feel about Christmas—it's a time to get in touch with the feelings within you.

ROBERT YOUNG

I'd like to feel that Christmas is not especially different. Betty and I just like to spend several days with our children and our grandchildren, among the decorations. We also enjoy the gift-giving on our patio, which Betty decorates especially for the occasion. That's the heart of a memorable day.

MITZI GAYNOR

Love! Love! Love! is what Christmas means to me. Love of family, love of friends, love of business associates. . . . I know it sounds Pollyannaish, but Lord! Don't we have to start somewhere?

MIKE CONNORS

To me, Christmas means a time when love of family and friends is more openly expressed. The tragedy of the American family is that the emotion of love is usually buried and only surfaces during the Christmas season. Let's hope the philosophy of the present Love Generation rectifies all that!

SAMMY DAVIS, JR.

I refuse to think of the commercial aspect of Christmas but try to honor the holiday in terms of what it is supposed to mean. In other words, the ethics of the holiday.

SUSAN DEY

I hate to say this, but I think Christmas has become a big pain. It's come to mean a lot of things it shouldn't. Like rushing around like crazy. And commercialism. It's become so commercialized that the fun has gone out of it. Before Halloween I started getting Christmas catalogs, and by Thanksgiving, decorations were up all over and stores were pushing their Christmas items. So where does that leave the warmth and friendliness of Christmas? In the cash register, that's where!

JIM FRANCISCUS

Christmas is more than a day to me. It's a special season at the end of the year that peaks on Christmas Day. It's a time for family in our home, and I like to think it's a time when togetherness is symbolic throughout the world. It's a time when Kitty and I doubly enjoy and appreciate one another and our three lively daughters. Personally, I feel and believe in the timeless tradition that Christmas is the time for giving of yourself.

JOAN BLONDELL

That's the time I collect whatever family there is around, and we all get together. It means in. Not going out to parties. But coming together in the home. And I do the whole thing myself when it is my turn. My brother and sister and I take turns having everyone in. We're all so glad to be together, and there's presents for the kids, and it's just a lovely close time.

RODDY MCDOWALL

I believe Christmas means doing things for children. It's the time of the year when one makes a special effort to make things better for them, and to bring them happiness. After all, Christmas really does belong to the children, doesn't it? And since I have no children of my own, I try to do for others. But don't ask me what, or which charities I am involved with, because I won't tell. I feel that is very, very private.

DINAH SHORE

Christmas is a time for tradition, and we try to do it all: the tree, the time-honored dinner and, especially, having the family together to celebrate the occasion. I have always tried to observe one other tradition, and that is to create homemade gifts. I like to hand-paint my own holiday greetings or make fruitcakes or make some accessories in needlepoint. This has always been the essence of Christmas.

MARY TYLER MOORE

Christmas to me means family—family and presents and wrapping paper and ribbon; a tree and lights and holly and all sorts of decorations, indoors and out; tripping over the dogs and keeping them away from the cookies; Christmas cards on the piano and the mantel and new names hastily added to old lists; and a big, big family dinner – that's what Christmas means at our house.

MONTE MARKHAM

Christmas has always been a special time in our family, but not in the conventional sense. By that I mean we have attempted to keep an expression of love and need for one another throughout the year, and the culmination of that togetherness manifests itself on Christmas Day.

LUCILLE BALL

Christmas means getting together with the kids and all the family at home or in Snowmass, Colo., where I have a condominium. Ironically, I broke my leg skiing right after I bought the place, but that mishap hasn't kept me off skis. I get everyone together and we go cross-country skiing. I just love it. I pack picnic baskets and away we go! This year, because we started shooting my series late and I'll soon be leaving on a publicity tour with "Mame," we'll gather at home in Beverly Hills and have an old-fashioned Christmas dinner with turkey and cranberry sauce and persimmon cake.

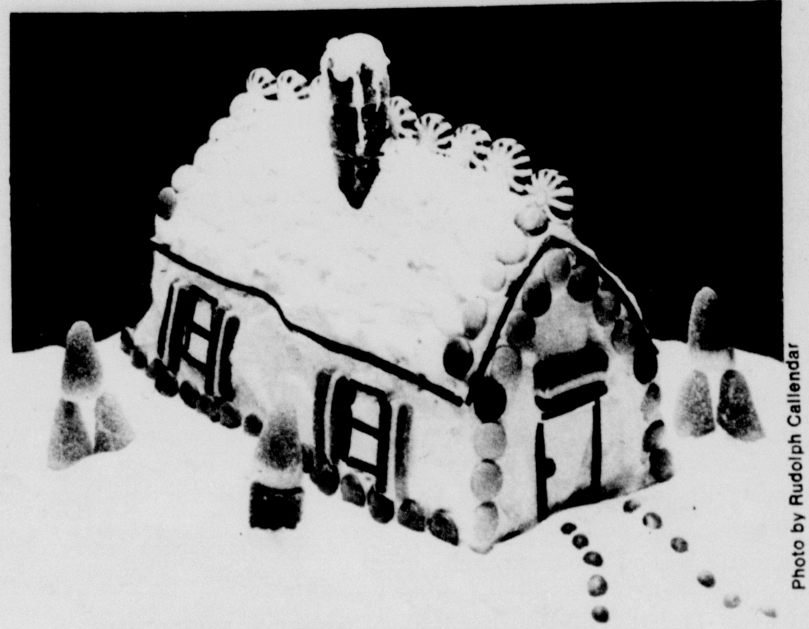
This Sugar House Is Easy to Make

This week Food Editor Marilyn Hansen makes a festive frosted cake house. "I've always been intrigued," says Marilyn, "by those sugar houses you see at Christmas. Finally I've worked out a recipe that's both quick and easy to make. You can use your own imagination to decorate and finish off the cake just as you choose."



Marilyn's "Sugar 'n' Spice 'n' Everything Nice House" is so beautiful, you can use it as a centerpiece.

SUGAR 'N' SPICE 'N' EVERYTHING NICE HOUSE

Sugar 'n' Spice Cake:

1 cup (2 sticks) butter or margarine
2 cups sugar
4 teaspoons ground cinnamon
1 teaspoon ground ginger
1 teaspoon ground nutmeg
½ teaspoon ground cloves
2 teaspoons pure vanilla extract
4 eggs
3½ cups unsifted all-purpose flour
1 tablespoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup milk
Seven Minute Frosting (recipe below) or 1 pkg. (7.2 ozs.) fluffy white frosting mix
Thin red candy "shoe string" licorice, peppermint rounds, jelly candy slices and squares, multi-colored chocolate candies

1. Preheat oven to 325° F. Grease and lightly flour two 9x5x3 inch loaf pans.

2. In a large mixing bowl with electric mixer at medium high speed beat butter and sugar together until light and fluffy.

3. Add cinnamon, ginger, nutmeg, cloves and vanilla extract; beat at low speed until blended.

4. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition.

5. Combine flour with baking powder and salt. At medium-low speed, add flour mixture and milk alternately, beginning and ending with flour.

6. Pour batter into prepared loaf pans. Bake for about 1 hour and 20 minutes or until a cake tester inserted into center of the cake comes out clean.

7. Cool in pans 5 minutes. Turn out onto wire racks and continue cooling.

Makes 2 9-inch loaf cakes

SEVEN-MINUTE FROSTING

The Frosting:

2 egg whites
1½ cups sugar
½ cup water
1 tablespoon corn syrup
½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons pure vanilla extract

1. In top of double-boiler combine egg whites, sugar, water, corn syrup and salt. Blend with electric mixer at high speed for one minute.

2. Place over rapidly boiling water and beat on high speed until mixture forms peaks, takes about 7 minutes.

3. Remove from water. Add vanilla extract and beat until thick enough to spread, about 2 minutes longer.

Fills and frosts 2 8 or 9 inch layers or 13x9 inch cake or 2 9-inch loaf cakes.

To Assemble the House:

1. Place one of the Sugar 'n' Spice loaf cakes in center of a serving tray or foil-covered cardboard.

2. Spread top with Seven-Minute Frosting; set aside.

3. Cut "roof" out of second loaf (a triangular wedge, cut lengthwise.)

4. Place the "roof" triangle on the frosting of the loaf cake. (Remaining cake may be cut up and decorated as desired.)

5. Spread remaining frosting over entire "house."

6. Decorate using thin red licorice strips to outline roof, windows and doors, peppermint rounds to top roof, jellied candy slices for shutters, etc.

7. If desired make "snow" by using additional frosting over top of serving tray.

Grandma Moses: What My Life Was Like

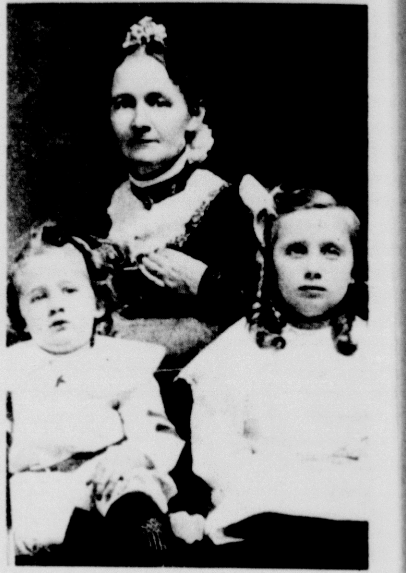
Anna Mary at age 15. At this time, she was working as a hired girl.



Anna Mary Moses with two of her youngest children, Hugh and Anna, around 1904 much in winter, owing to the cold. Therefore, my school days were limited. Although I was kept busy helping at home and helping the neighbors, when 12 years of age I left home to earn my own living as then was called a hired girl. This was a grand education for me, in cooking, housekeeping, in moralizing and mingling with the outside world.

I went to live with a family by the name of Mrs. and Mr. Thomas Whiteside. They were lovely people, while well along in years.

I was cared for by them as a child of their own.

They were Presbyterians by creed, so one of my duties was to drive the horse "Old Black Joe" to church for them on Sunday mornings and place bouquets on the pulpit in the church and always remember the text. I lived with the Whitesides for three years, caring for Mrs. Whiteside, who was an invalid and finally died. Then I kept house for Mr. Whiteside for a year till his nephew and wife could come and take care of the farm and him.

I was very proud in those days, could get up such fine dinners for his friends who came from far off to see him. When the minister came and I could bring out the fine linen and the China tea set, and the heavy silver, then the hot biscuits, the homemade butter and honey, with home-cured dried beef—I was proud. But I sometimes now think they came for eats more than to see him.

Then Mr. Whiteside died, and I drifted away from that neighborhood.

1880. Still working as a hired girl, and caring for the sick. Those were busy days.

In the fall of 1887—Nov. 9 it was—I married Thomas Salmon Moses, a farmer by occupation. We left on our wedding trip for North Carolina to take charge of a horse ranch in North Carolina. But we never reached there. We were kidnapped at Staunton, Va. Or I should say, we were "over-persuaded" to go no farther south. So we hired a farm near Staunton for a year, to see if we would like the south.

The people there were over-anxious for northerners or westerners to come in and build up the state. They were in a way helpless since the colored help had been taken from them. We remained on this farm one year, then moved farther down the valley onto a 600-acre dairy farm.

"Here I commenced to make butter and ship it to the White Sulphur Springs, W. Va. I also made potato chips, which was a novelty in those days. This we continued for several years.

There our ten children were born. And there I left five little graves in that beautiful Shenandoah Valley.

We came back up north to New York State Dec. 15, 1905, with our five children to educate and put on their footing. We bought a farm and went in to the dairy business selling milk and doing general farm work. Here my oldest daughter married and left home. Here my two oldest sons bought a farm and struck out for themselves. And here, on Jan. 15, 1927, my husband died, my youngest son and wife taking over the farm, leaving me unoccupied. I had to do something, so took up doing pictures—first in worsted, then in oil."

"In the fall of 1887 . . . I married Thomas Salmon Moses, a farmer by occupation. We left on our wedding trip for North Carolina. . . . But we never reached there."

How your Horoscope can bring you wealth, love, success and happiness.

Astrology Today

PRESENTED BY THE AMERICAN ASTROLOGICAL ASSOCIATION
"The Nation's Largest Astrological Society"
© 1973 American Astrological Assn. of Ohio, Inc.

by Norman P. Kennedy

Did you know your horoscope could mean the difference between happiness or sorrow; between success or failure?

Picture a long room with doors at each end. In this room there are money, attractive persons of the opposite sex, books that tell you the secret of happiness and many other valuable articles. But, also in this room are bottomless pits, traps, hostile persons and dangerous beasts chained in various places around the room. You must walk through this room, but you may take out of it anything you can.

Now if you had a choice, would you choose to 1) go through the room blindfolded or 2) go through the room with your eyes open and with written instructions on which places and people to visit or avoid.

Of course, all of us would pick the second choice in a case such as this. Isn't it ridiculous, then, that we would choose to go through life, the same situation, blindfolded! Even when there is a means to go through life with a map and our eyes wide open! The means provided is Astrology. The map is our astrological horoscope.

How does it work? Nature's cosmos imprints each of us at the time of birth – when the umbilical cord is cut. We then become ourselves. Until the cord is cut, we are part of our mother. Why or how we presently do not know. The movement of the large solar bodies then times potentials for events in our lives. Astrology does not cause events but is timing of events. But, it's not fortune telling. It's a prediction of potentials which free will can override.

What does a natal horoscope analysis by a qualified astrologer contain? A natal horoscope analysis contains the best psychological analysis of yourself that you can get today. Because, in a controlled experiment in 1960, astrologers beat psychologists in predicting case histories.

In addition, a natal horoscope analysis includes discussions on the following: financial outlook; taxes and inheritances; early home environment; relationships with family, relatives and parents; lovelife and marriage; children; career and occupation; hopes; wishes and goals; and subconscious attitudes. In a major analysis, a one year forecast is also included.

Many people think that astrology only appeals to "way out" unscientific people. Nothing could be farther from the truth. In fact, studies show that astrology appeals most to intelligent and logical people. Famous scientists Galileo, Carl Jung, Johannes Kepler, Roger Bacon, Tycho Bache and Albert Einstein all believed in astrology.

Your horoscope can help you be in the right place at the right time.

Your horoscope can help you avoid disasters while guiding you to your beneficial opportunities.

Did you know that astrology helped the allies win World War II? The allies employed astrologers. The axis powers started out employing astrologers. But, this was ceased early when the famous astrologer, Karl Ernst Krafft, predicted the exact time and place of an attempt on Hitler's life in 1939. Hitler thought the astrologers were conspiring against him, so they were imprisoned.

Hitler turned back to astrology – too late. He read his horoscope in the last moments of the war as Berlin burned around him.

More on avoiding disaster, came these stories from a recent article in the Miami Herald newspaper. The article tells the story of Mary Kelly, a Miami computer programmer, who heeded the advice of her horoscope which warned her of a wrong medical diagnosis. She avoided an unnecessary operation that would have left her a cripple.

The Miami Herald also tells the story of astrologer Clifford McMullen, who is George McGovern's personal astrologer. He warned McGovern that if he ran for president, that he would win the Democratic nomination, but he would lose badly to President Nixon in the November election.

Your horoscope can bring you wealth. Famous business tycoon, J. P. Morgan, used astrology to acquire his fortune. Morgan did not make a financial move without checking his natal horoscope forecast.

From an article in the Miami Herald came this story:

"Stockbrokers on Wall Street are as likely to call an astrologer in this decade as Hollywood film stars would call a psychiatrist in the last. David Williams, a 75 year old retired financial expert who lives in Clearwater, has made $150,000 from the stock market in 13 years by using astrology as an investment guide."

Your horoscope can show you the way to success and happiness in love and marriage. Horoscopes of Grace Kelly and Jackie Kennedy predicted their current successful marriages, Grace Kelly to Prince Rainier and Jackie Kennedy to Aristotle Onassis.

Princess Grace and Prince Rainier have recently had their horoscopes done together by American astrologer, Keith Clayton. As with these famous people, your horoscope can help you find and keep a lasting and meaningful love relationship.

Now and through the ages a good natal horoscope analysis has meant success for many people. In other cases many men have missed their opportunity; some with tragic consequences, such as Adolf Hitler.

Will you miss your success opportunities? Will you stumble into pitfalls you could have avoided?

Today, right this moment, you can have your natal horoscope cast and analyzed. You can get it for only the cost to make your duplicate copy. You get the expensive casting and analyzing process – FREE. The article below will tell you how. The means are available, but the choice is yours.

HOW TO GET YOUR NATAL HOROSCOPE FOR ONLY THE COST OF MAKING COPIES.

by John F. Ford

Send me your exact time and place of birth. I'll cast and analyze your natal horoscope for research purposes. You may have duplicate copies of your horoscope for only $3.00 – the cost to make your copies plus postage and handling costs. You get the expensive casting and analyzing process – FREE, because of the fact that we must produce your horoscope for research anyhow.

Your natal horoscope will consist of nine pages and over 3,000 words. Your natal horoscope will contain your psychological analysis plus a discussion of the following: your lovelife; financial outlook; marriage, family and children relationships; career and occupations; hopes, wishes and goals; and subconscious attitudes. A horoscope of this type would cost up to $300 if done by an astrologer.

I will cast your horoscope with the help of our 360 - 65 I.B.M. computer, which contains over 24 million bits of information. Your horoscope will not be the worthless type found in daily newspapers. Your natal horoscope will be cast from your exact time and place of birth for you and you alone.

THERE'S ABSOLUTELY NO CATCH. I need this information for my astrological research. I am looking for certain planet configurations. If you are chosen as a research subject, I will mail to you a research questionnaire. If you fill out and return this questionnaire, you will be entitled to extra bonuses.

There is no need to worry about findind out about an unavoidable coming disaster thru your chart. As mentioned, astrology deals in potentials. Your free will can override potentials if you know about them. In any case, the policy of qualified astrologers is positive astrology. If there is something negative in your chart, you are told what you can do to make it positive.

To get your horoscope thru this special opportunity, simply fill out the research computer form and mail to the address given on the form. Include the $3.00 copy cost for each horoscope or charge your credit card. There is a limit of two per family. If you don't know your exact time of birth, fill in 12:00 PM.

If you have any questions, call me, John F. Ford, president, The American Astrological Association. Telephone m at (216) 478-2171. Thank you!

COMPUTER DATA ENTRY FORM - PLEASE PRINT

I submit my birth data for research. I am now eligible to promptly receive my 3,000 word natal horoscope for only a $3.00 cost to make my duplicate copy. One or two names from my household may be submitted. (Limit of 2 - no exceptions)

Grandma Moses:

Continued

Her Simple Genius...

BY OTTO KALLIR

The autobiographical sketch you may have just finished reading was written by Anna Mary Robertson Moses in 1945. It is an outline of the years up to her husband's death in 1927—that is to say, the time preceding her career as a painter.

The astonishing story of Anna Mary Robertson Moses's development has aroused the interest of the American and the European public for more than three decades. As "Grandma Moses" she has become known all over the world. Wherever her pictures were shown, they met with exceptional response – in the U.S., in Western Europe and in Russia. People everywhere have been impressed by her paintings, which so vividly depict life in rural America, the changing seasons, the daily chores and pleasures of farm life, of which the artist was a part for close to a century.

Although Anna Mary Moses started painting seriously only in her old age, one cannot set an exact date for the beginning of her artistic activities, because, almost without being aware of it, she had from early childhood on done painting and decorating in her home.

"When I was quite small," she once wrote, "my father would get me and my brothers white paper by the sheet, like the kind used for newspapers. He liked to see us draw pictures. It was a penny a sheet and it lasted longer than candy. My older brother loved to draw steam engines, the next brother went in for animals, but as for myself I had to have pictures, and the gayer the better. I would draw the picture, then color it with grape juice or berries, anything that was red and pretty in my way of thinking."

But the inclination for painting, shared also by her father and other members of the family, was always subordinated to the duties and obligations of everyday life. Anna Mary did not have the leisure to develop her talent, either in her early youth, as a young housewife in Virginia, or after the family returned to New York in 1905. But her artistic urge often expressed itself in a desire to decorate objects of daily use around the house.

Two examples have been preserved: a fireboard and a table. She wrote about the fireboard: "One time I was papering the parlor, and I ran short of paper for the fireboard. So I took a piece of paper and pasted it over the board, and I painted it a solid color first, then I painted two large trees on each side of it, like butternut trees. And in back I did a little scene of a lake and painted it a yellow color, really bright, as though you were looking off into the sun light. In the front, to fill in that space, I brought in big bushes. I daubed it all on with the brush I painted the floor with.

"Finally we re-papered the parlor and papered over the picture. When we re-papered the room again a few years ago, we took the paper off the fireboard, but the colors had faded somewhat. That was my first large picture."

About the table, she wrote: "I have an old tip-up table, on which I paint. My aunt gave it to me 35 years ago. It was built for a log cabin. . . . The table was made of pine planks, under the top between the standards there was a box in which they kept their pewter dishes. . . ." My aunt sent it to me for a flower stand. I have painted scenes on the standards and covered the top with postal cards, and now use it for my easel."

The painting on the fireboard is dated May 10, 1918, and those on the table were done about 1920. These first attempts already show a painterly technique rarely found in works of self-taught artists.

Everybody aboard this jet plane has a gimmick...almost everybody. Pick the one who doesn't.

1. Nope. He's Húgo Slavia, impoverished secret agent. Gimmick: Sells "hot" watches as a sideline. His cigarettes smoke even hotter. 2. Mike L. Angelow. Gimmick: Artist who draws everything but attention. At last sidewalk exhibition he got a ticket for littering. Smokes decorator pack cigarettes. 3. No. Ralph Knoshow (not pictured). Transistor radio salesman. Resigned when given new territory... Japan. His cigarette's taste is missing too. 4. Right. Wherever he goes, he leaves the far-out gimmicks to others. Likes his cigarette no-nonsense too. Camel Filters. Honest. Good tasting. 5. Charles Chizlar. Gimmicks: 5 overcoats, 4 sweaters, 3 pairs of pants. Saves on overweight luggage. Drains tap in men's room for his water-filtered cigarettes. 6. He's Vaseli Overaidt, wrestler. Gimmick: Demonstrating arm wrestling techniques to strangers. 7. Helen Back, stranger. Also black belt karate expert.

AKLAND'S JIM OTTO: Football's Superstars Make oo Much Money!"

Jim Otto, center for the Oakland Raiders, is not only the "Iron Man" of the NFL—he is also the No. 1 "straight man." The 255-pound, 35-year-old Otto joined the Raiders when the American Football League was formed back in 1960, and is the only original member of the team left. Before the current season began, he had started in 182 consecutive league games for the Raiders. He is the Raiders' offensive captain, has been an All-League center, and is known to his opponents as a man who hustles every minute in every game. . . . Otto considers himself a "straight man" because he adheres strictly to the old traditions of discipline, dedication and self-denial. "I'm interested in the money I make from pro ball, but I don't consider it as important as having pride in my job," he says. . . . Otto is outspoken in his criticism of other pro football players who selfishly insist on "doing their own thing," who are prima donnas who will not give of themselves 100 percent to help the team. "The superstars of this game get too much money, don't care about their teammates, and are undisciplined people who tend to play only in spurts," he says. . . . To demonstrate just how "straight" he is, Otto had a picture of himself and his family taken for Christmas cards. The picture showed him in Oakland uniform while his son also wore a football uniform. His wife and daughter held Oakland pennants. "A lot of people in football thought this was corny, but that's just because they don't have pride in their uniform and are only in the game for what they personally can get out of it," he says. . . . Otto is a native of Wausau, Wis. He won all-state honors as a center and linebacker for the University of Miami, and set a Miami record for tackles by linebackers. . . . After receiving his B.S. degree in education, he was drafted by the new Oakland team.

Plump Girls

away from center-fold type girls. They prefer the slimmer girl whose physical charms are more conservative.

7. True—according to psychological studies which show that women who are somewhat heavier than what is considered the "ideal figure" tend to be much more affectionate, and to have significantly more enthusiasm for love and romance, than many women who don't have a weight problem.

8. False. Consensus of psychological studies shows overweight people are quicker to suffer from real or fancied slights, more subject to social anxieties, more easily saddened or dispirited by events or circumstances which others might take in their stride.

9. False. Studies sponsored by the National Institutes of Health show that "not all people who are heavy are excessively fat, and that the relative contributions to overweight of bone, muscle, and fat varies from person to person."

10. True. When a woman's natural weight is a few pounds over the norm, she is likely to feel better, look better and radiate more charm personality-wise if she doesn't try to shed poundage to achieve the slenderness encouraged by current fashion trends but which may be quite unsuitable to her constitution and individual body structure. And in such cases, the rigors of a weight-reduction regime may play such havoc with her nerves and general disposition that any attractiveness she may gain may be more than offset by her irritability and jumpiness. Many a woman's personality has suffered when she forced herself to shed pounds she didn't really need to lose, just because she was brainwashed by the fickle tides of contemporary fashion.

Never Have Rough Hands Again!

Gloves
You Can't See

Most hand creams and lotions try to replace natural skin moisture with unnatural oils and chemicals after hands have become rough. 'Gloves You Can't See' works differently. A few drops rubbed over the hands create an invisible, non-greasy 'glove' that actually seals in the natural moistures and oils your skin produces — seals out detergent, water, dryness before damage can begin. The result is naturally soft, smooth hands that never become rough . . . even for real problem hands.

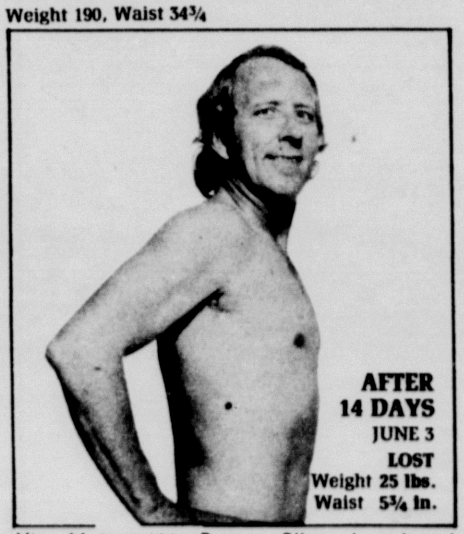
After 7 Days — A remarkable transformation — pot almost gone — revitalized.

Weight 190, Waist 34¾



After 14 Incredible Days — Slimmed, reshaped, looking 15 years younger, feeling 25 years younger.

Joe Weider, fitness expert and trainer of champions since 1936 says:

"Give me 5 minutes twice daily for only 7 days and you'll lose up to 3 inches from your waistline, up to 6 pounds of unwanted weight, and 'shape up' — or I will return every penny."

LET'S FACE THE FACTS WHY YOU'RE OUT OF SHAPE

You eat the wrong combination of foods, you do not get enough exercise to thoroughly work your muscular, metabolic and respiratory systems daily. Because of this, fat accumulates around your waistline, heart and other body organs, slowing you down, aging your body and destroying your vitality, virility and youth. There is only one way to firm up and shape up: that is through proper exercise and proper nutrition. Effortless exercisers, reducing pills, sauna shorts, weighted belts, dangerous and painful diets and other gimmicks designed to appeal to your laziness will not work and have been exposed by the medical profession as frauds, ineffective and in some cases dangerous. They can only reduce your pocketbook.

Face up to it...If you want to slim down, firm and shape up, you must work off the inches, and there is no safer, faster and more enjoyable way to do it than with our patented, truly miraculous "5" Minute Body Shaper Plan.

HOW DOES THIS INGENIOUS "5" MINUTE PLAN SLIM, FIRM AND SHAPE YOU UP?

Its miraculous slimming action is based on doing one simple "5" Minute Continuous Rhythm coordinated exercise, lying on your back! That's all you do! That's all your body needs to help make up for the lack of activity it doesn't get most of the day. The action is designed to supply your waistline and hipline (where fat accumulates quickest, giving your body a flabby, weak and distorted look) with the activity it needs to slim you and keep you slim. It also burns off excess fat FAST by speeding up your metabolism and respiratory system, using up stored calories, carbohydrates and fats and releasing excess water, thereby shaping and firming up your total body!

It's safer than strenuous gym workouts, beats the time consumption and dangers of gym workouts...or any other vigorous sport.

The unit weighs about 16 ounces and fits any wallet-size case. You can carry it with you and use it — anytime — wherever there's floor space for your body. Even while watching television.

Patent Pending. © Copyright Joe Weider, 1973

WHAT THE EXPERTS SAY:

Medical Doctors, Chiropractors, Osteopaths, Athletic Coaches...agree its the most successful Waistline-Weight Reducer and Shaping Up Plan ever invented!

"Doctors have always known, exercise done while lying on the back virtually eliminates strains while slimming and reshaping the body. Yours is the finest Body Shaper Program on the market."
RICHARD TYLER, D.C.

"Beats jogging and working out in gyms — and much safer. I lost 4½ inches off my waist in 14 days." — JIM HANLEY, famous athletic coach.

"Miraculous! Weighs less than a pound, is simple to use and beats working out in a gym with 30 different exercisers!" — TOM MINOCHELLO, famous gym owner.

"Based on sound physiological and medical knowledge, it burns fat and shapes the body without strain to the heart or other organs. I lost 12 lbs. of excess weight using it." DR. ANITA D. SANTANGELO, Chiropractic Orthopedics

WHAT COMES OFF IN 14 DAYS?

Individual results vary, but during an average 14-day period you can expect to lose up to 4 inches from your waistline and up to 10 pounds from your present weight. It strengthens your heart and lungs, increases stamina and endurance, improves your digestive function and general health. It also shapes you up — from head to toes. For a "5" Minute Exerciser — it sure does a lot.

*EXPOSING EFFORTLESS EXERCISERS

Reader's Digest (Sept., 1971), New York Times and Good Housekeeping, among others, exposed sauna wraps, inflated belts, weighted belts and effortless exercisers as frauds. Scientific researchers, medical and fitness experts all agree...there is only one way to firm, shape and trim up your body...you must work the inches off!

Because you may have been fooled in the past by "Effortless Exercisers," we are giving you our no-nonsense Free Trial Offer as shown in the coupon below. Now, medical science has the power to say to you:

Follow these 3 simple steps, and

BEGIN YOUR "MIDDLE YEARS" AT 70, 80, EVEN 90!

Announcing — an incredibly simple, medically proven, overwhelmingly documented ANTI-AGING program that is designed to:

give you the lean, glowing look of a youngster past sixty . . .

retain the strength and grace and power of a trained athlete in your body beyond your seventies . . .

and keep you in vibrant good health till ninety or more . . . even if you feel "rotten" today . . . even if your mother or father died far too young of diseases that are STILL carried in your bloodstream!

Yes, This Medical "Youth-Building Program" is so Strong That It Can Even Overcome Poor Heredity!

It is so strong, in fact, that it may actually make you look twenty or more years younger than your parents did at the same age . . . at the same exact time that it enables you to live thirty or forty years longer than they did!

We realize, of course, that these facts may seem virtually impossible to you at this moment . . . until you are shown the new medical techniques by which these goals are attained! They are:

1. The most powerful "age-reversing mechanism" known to man . . . which takes exactly six minutes per day . . . may be done by any man or woman, no matter how poor their health today . . . and which is bluntly recognized by one of the leading physicians in this book to give far better "youthifying" results – far faster – than even "cell therapy" treatments costing hundreds of dollars apiece!

2. A direct attack on the stored-up emotional poisons in your body that eat away strength and youth like internal acid, and replace them with never-flagging fatigue! This incredibly simple technique drains out those poisons, and that deadly fatigue, in approximately ten of the most revivifying minutes you have ever spent!

And, finally –

3. A new way to lose weight – not a diet – designed to change your present suicidal eating habits in exactly 48 hours! And, to break at last the vicious fat-multiplying cycle inside your body, that causes you to put on more weight, from less food, than your thin friends.

Let Us Repeat Again: These Medical Techniques Are So Powerful That They Actually REVERSE THE AGING PROCESS — WITHOUT DRUGS!

They cause you, quite simply, to grow stronger and not weaker, as you grow older! And here is the medical documentation to prove it:

In tests conducted at a leading University and Medical School in Southern California, it was discovered that life-prolongation, accomplished this way, not only added decades to potential human life spans, but – even more important – also produced vastly increased vitality and vigor, as well as startlingly heightened resistance to dread "senile decline!" (Reported on page 129 of this thrilling new book.)

As a result of scientific observations and experiments conducted in several different locations in the United States (as well as in Europe and Soviet Russia), it was definitely established that these techniques will enable almost any individual to live beyond 90 . . . and even beyond 100 healthy, productive, thoroughly enjoyable years – even if he or she had tragically short-lived parents or grandparents! In other words, disastrous heredity can now be overcome! (See page 36.)

At a leading Gerontology Research Center on the Pacific Coast, its' president bluntly stated that a single one of the techniques given to you here had (in essence): ". . . reversed the aging process and over a period of time restored the characteristics of youth to the bodies of middle-aged men!" (See Page 129.)

And one of his colleagues, discussing the same simple procedure, went so far as to state that it: ". . . relieves joint stiffness, lowers the blood pressure, and reduces the amount of fat in the body tissues. It acts like a miracle drug, and it's free for the doing!" (Italics ours – see page 130.)

But All This Research Documentation Is Only The PROLOGUE To The Real Meat Of This Revolutionary New Book! FOR NOW THE YOUTH-RESTORING PRINCIPLES LEARNED ALL OVER THE WORLD ARE PUT TO WORK — INSTANTLY — FOR YOU!

How to lose weight without counting calories – by harnessing the same exact forces which made you overweight in the first place! (It is not unusual, with these methods, to lose 15 and more pounds the first week – up to 10 pounds the second week – and a good hundred pounds or more, in as little as 15 weeks. And the weight stays off – for decades!)

How to add 10 . . . 20 . . . perhaps even 30 glowing years to your life, simply by avoiding the everyday "Life-Traps" that make you grow old too fast!

How a careful examination of your eye can tell you, with unerring accuracy, if you've eaten the wrong foods that night for dinner . . . and therefore have to give them up for a few days till your body's digestive powers restore themselves to the correct balance!

Little-known-stress-on-the-heart Number 1 . . . that kills unwary thousands every year . . . and can be prevented simply by reading a single sentence on page 70!

When you must eat . . . and eat . . . and eat if you really want to lose weight!

"Hungry enzymes" that now infest your body! They are the real reason all past attempts to peel off ugly fat have been such torture for you! And you can "command" your body to destroy them – for good – as simply as this! (See page 82.)

Why most people's muscles simply "melt away" as they grow older! (No wonder "old age" to them means ever-growing weakness!) And how you can stop that muscle-melting process overnight . . . and replace it with vibrant new strength!

And More! And More! And More! Like This —

What really causes vigor to drain out of the "aging" body! A simple fluid that if the body gives up too much of, it then dies of old age! And how you can "pump that vital cell-nourishing fluid" right back into your body . . . actually increase your body capacity to utilize by as much as 133% . . . in just a few thrilling minutes every day!

How to exercise your heart! Anyone – no matter what age– can do it! And prevent the greatest tragedy of all – premature heart attack!

Read the line in the middle of page 144 as though your life depended upon it! Because, if you've ever worried about killing your own heart through the worst possible error you can make – this one line will show you how to avoid it . . . forever!

World's easiest exercise program – for men and women who are pitifully out of shape!

How to avoid the man-made diseases! And save your body, and your nerves, at exactly the same time!

What your sleep, or lack of it, is really telling you! And how to ease yourself into a good night's rest again!

What your fingers tell you that can save your life! Listen to them . . . obey their command . . . and you may be able to out-run your own youngster!

If your blood pressure is soaring, you must do this, right now!

World's most effective weapon against demolished nerves! Gets you back to loving life, instead of hating it, in just about ten blessed minutes!

No more nervous breakdowns! And no more un-necessary heart attacks (or strokes!) The technique shown to you on page 197 may banish them from your life – for good!

How to add ten years to your life, by avoiding one little fatal mistake – at night! Before you go to sleep!

How to laugh at old age – at least till you're ninety! A simple program so effective that it may actually cause strangers to think that you are your best friends' grown children!

And Yours To Prove — In Its Entirety — For 30 Days, Entirely At Our Risk!

The choice is yours. This is a book for people who mean business. It costs you nothing! We take all the risk! Fair enough? Why not send in the coupon – TODAY!

SPECIAL ADDED BONUS SECTION

How to survive a heart attack! Why so many heart attacks are the "silent" type, that kill without the victim even being aware he has been seriously ill before! The one warning signal you simply CAN'T ignore! Why HALF of all heart attack victims ACTUALLY KILL THEMSELVES because they just don't know what to do!

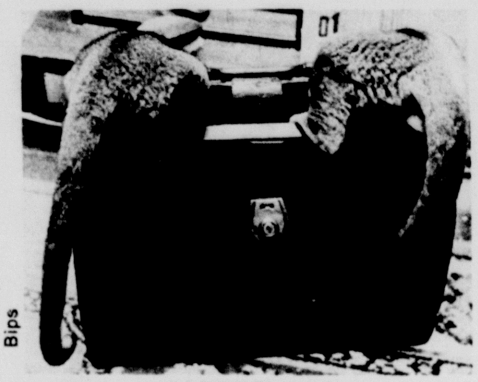
What in the World!



Bips

BOTTOMS UP!
Kinkajous Clarissa and Fuzzypeg

In case you've never seen a kinkajou before, this picture won't help much to identify them. But it is indicative of the nosey nature of these soft furry animals from South America, who are members of the raccoon family. They sleep all day and live it up at night (when not dining on fruit and insects). If you are trying to keep anything hidden, don't get a kinkajou. Like these two, named Clarissa and Fuzzypeg, thev rifle through everything. Even a briefcase.

The color red causes aggressive behavior in people—like waving a red flag in front of a bull. And this (say the experts) bodes ill for beleaguered firemen in tough city ghettoes. But it's only one of the reasons red fire engines are changing their hue to lime yellow. More firemen, according to a study done by the Ward LaFrance Truck Corporation in Elmire Heights, N.Y., are killed traveling to and from fires than in actually fighting fires. This because of the poor visibility of the red fire truck to motorists and pedestrians. An answer to both these problems is to paint all fire-fighting apparatus lime yellow—a color that has a high degree of visibility and one that causes no hostile response in people. So far, fire departments in Detroit, Newark, Jacksonville, Rochester and Winston-Salem have switched.

Senator Abourezk

QUOTE. From Sen. James Abourezk (D-S.D.): "Instead of insisting that we cannot help someone until his income or our subsidies are adequate to finance a $25,000 home, our bill would make a small, but livable, weathertight, leakproof, safe, heatable home with plumbing a reality for millions of Americans who now live in shacks, car bodies, tents and hovels. There are nearly one million American families with an average rent-paying capacity of $14 a month who need housing. The overwhelming number of them are elderly. It is time we had a national housing policy that speaks to the special needs of rural America." UNQUOTE.

RICHARD THOMAS
Why actors slam doors

Richard Thomas, star of "The Waltons," voices his opinions on actors and discipline: "If anyone but an actor has a problem while a movie is being made, he can have a production conference to try and solve it. If an actor has a problem and holds up work, it is considered childish behavior and a lack of discipline—which is one reason so many actors rely on guerrilla tactics to make a point, like slamming their dressing-room door and not coming out until they get their way. I haven't had to do that yet, but I can sympathize with the actors who do. The time may come when I will do it. But as long as I respect the people I work with and they respect me, I'll do as my parents did—the best I can, without complaining."

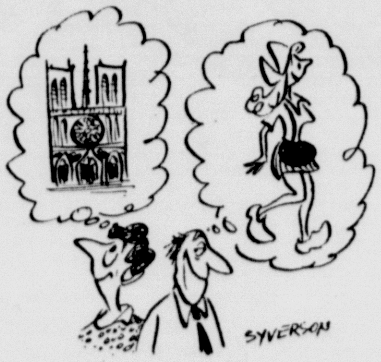
ARMOUR'S ARMOURY
By Richard Armour



NO SHOW

Though we have traveled quite a bit
And seen some scenes, we must admit
Apologies profuse we owe you:
We've not a slide that we can show
 you.
We have no camera, no tripod;
We bipeds barely have a bipod.
We have no meter that we treasure,
The waxing, waning light to measure.
Our pictures all are in our minds,
And these are hard to screen, one
 finds.
At least we shall not bore you, for
Our heads are what you'd have to bore
To see, arranged on mental shelves,
The pictures that we show ourselves.

It's interesting to realize that economy size means big when you're talking about soap boxes and small when you're talking about cars.

Our three-year-old daughter was playing in the room where her daddy was indulging in a particularly serious game of bridge. She ran over to watch the cards being dealt. Having been forwarned not to talk about the cards in someone's hand, she leaned over to her daddy's ear and said in a very audible whisper, "Sure did get a lot of VALENTINES, Dad!"

The trouble with political platforms is that they are made for running on, not for standing on.
—Lucille J. Goodyear

The gateman at Cape Florida State Park was under orders not to divulge information on the whereabouts of President Nixon's house. One day a determined tourist insisted that the gateman direct him to the house. The gateman refused.

"Well," the man said, "if you won't give me directions, just answer this one question—how will I know when I'm near the President?"

The gateman smiled wearily. "That'll be easy, sir. A Secret Service man will shoot you." —Dean Morgan

Sign left in a motel bathroom by a disgruntled guest: "Talk about hick towns . . . plug in your electric razor and the streetlights dim."
—Lane Olinghouse

Yesterday I went into a fancy barbershop to get a haircut, and they had two prices: haircuts $5, and shaves $2. So I asked for a shave and sat down backwards. —Robert Orben
